U.S. Leaders Seek To Stop Allied Hassel

Berlin Settlement Rift End Is Goal Of Administration

WASHINGTON (AP)—Kennedy administration officials are planning a quiet but determined effort next week to heal the split in the Atlantic Alliance over terms of a possible Berlin settlement with the Soviet Union.

The division between the United States and Britain on one side and West Germany and France on the other is considered here to be mainly troublesome to Allied relations. It could become dangerous if permitted to go unchecked too long, particularly if East-West agreement on Berlin seemed to be likely.

A new Soviet turn to antagonistic policies would eliminate the whole problem because when the Russians get tough Allied disputes disappear in a common determination.

IDEA STUDIED

The possibility of some such new twist in Soviet Premier Khrushchev's line has been under study here since he wrote a tough letter to British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan 10 days ago, indignantly rejecting the Briton's appeal for a nuclear weapons test ban treaty.

Khrushchev is due to make a policy speech to the Supreme Soviet within a few days. The line he takes may have a crucial bearing on the future course of Berlin negotiations.

Another development which will have unpredictable impact on East-West relations generally is the scheduled U.S. resumption within the next week or so of nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk is known to believe that the chief basis for hope about a Berlin settlement is that Khrushchev is becoming convinced the United States and its allies will never withdraw from West Berlin and will never accept Communist interference with access to the city.

On the other hand, Rusk has indicated to the Soviet government that many other Berlin-related issues are negotiable. It is on this point that he has gotten into differences with the West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Adenauer's former foreign minister, Heinrich von Brentano, is due here Wednesday. Informants said Saturday a number of U.S. officials expect to talk with Brentano, who is still the top Adenauer associate through his leadership of the chancellor's party in the Bundestag.

AT BERLIN BORDER

Tourists See Fire Exchange

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin and Communist police fought a gun duel across the border Saturday in full view of a group of tourists visiting the divided city on the Easter weekend.

No one was injured although the Communists fired two machine gun bursts across the border, and West Berlin police replied with 10 carbine shots.

The shooting brought quick reinforcements to the border from both sides. Saturday night about 50 French gendarmes and West German police backed up by three armored cars faced 50 East German border guards on the walled-off Bernauer Strasse. The road and sidewalk there are in West Berlin and the houses on the east are across the border.

By the time the reinforcements arrived the shooting had stopped. There was no further trouble although the opposing forces continued to face each other across the border.

MOVED BACK

West Berlin police moved back scores of tourists who had watched the exchange and barred the area in the French sector of the city to hundreds more who were touring the anti-refugee wall Saturday.

An estimated 100,000 West Germans and foreigners jammed into West Berlin for the Easter weekend, and authorities called the influx a demonstration of solidarity with the encircled city.

All hotels and lodging houses in West Berlin were filled, and many of the visitors overflowed into private homes which were made available at the request of West Berlin city officials.

Solid lines of West German automobiles moved slowly through the two available entry points into East Berlin for a few hours reunion with friends and relatives trapped behind the wall.

The border flareup at mid-morning came at a time when it had appeared the border tension was easing. Only two days ago the Soviet Union disclosed the return to Moscow of Marshal Ivan S. Koniev who was sent to East Germany to back up the East Berliners when they built the wall last August.

The border skirmish started when a Communist policeman threw a tear gas grenade from a

Burgess Remains Silent As Federal Team Is Expected

By JACK OWENS

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A team of federal investigators is expected here, probably Monday, to start probing events which led to the firing of four state highway department engineers and suspension of another.

As Rep. Frank Fulco of Caddo complained of "a mounting scandal," highway director Ray W. Burgess continued to keep silent about the firings in the department's fourth district at Shreveport.

BURGESS QUIET

Burgess has given little information other than that irregularities were involved in state projects and secondary and primary road jobs on which some federal funds are used. No federal interstate highway system construction is concerned.

The four men dismissed April 13 were Ben Barnes, 55, Minden, assistant district engineer; Charles Brasher, 53, Bossier City, senior project engineer; Alfred E. Simpson, 37, Mansfield, district laboratory engineer, and James G. Merritt, 47, Minden engineering aide.

Louis Quinn, attorney for the state Civil Service Commission, said their appeals had not been received. He said hearings probably would not be heard before June.

After Burgess went to Washington to report to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, the agency said it would look into the situation with its own investigators. There were reports the FBI would investigate also to check whether federal funds were mismanaged.

The investigators were expected to go to Shreveport later.

Burgess spent Saturday in Shreveport, where he is reported reorganizing the fourth district. Previously he told F. M. Gillen to take a few days off from his post as district engineer.

Fulco, chairman of the House Transportation and Highway Committee, said he was unable to look at contracts, specifications and other records of questioned highway projects.

He said "the people of Louisi-

A CHURCH STEEPLE rising against the blue of the sky is always a warm and comforting sight. It is particularly so on Easter, the day on which Christians the world over commemorate the Resurrection of Jesus from the Dead. The Easter Story, which never grows old with the passing of time, will be told again today in churches throughout the Twin-Cities and the world. This steeple, on one of the many churches in this area, is symbolic of the spirit that will prevail today — a lifting up of hearts and hands to heaven. For truly all Christians can say our Saviour is not dead — he has risen. (Color Photo and Engraving by Staffer Greg Hare)

Uneasy Rest Falls While Armor Moves

BUENOS AIRES (AP) —President Jose Maria Guido, supported by a tough cavalry general and a column of tanks, gained the upper hand over ultimatum - bearing Argentine military chiefs Saturday just as civil war seemed to be exploding.

The diminutive president imposed a truce while insurgent armor stormed into the outskirts of Buenos Aires and probed machine gun and artillery emplacements of army commander Gen. Raul Poggi in the heart of the capital.

CRISIS RISES

The crisis, the nearest Argentina has come to serious bloodletting since dictator Juan D. Peron was routed seven years ago, burgeoned when cavalry Gen. Enrique Rauch launched unexpectedly an insurrection against the army high command Friday night from Camp de Mayo, Argentina's most important military camp, 30 miles outside the capital.

The insurrection snowballed and surprised Poggi, key leader in deposing and imprisoning President Arturo Frondizi on March 29. Guido is Frondizi's military-picked successor.

All morning it seemed blood would be spilled on the issue of whether Peronists, who won in the March 18 elections, would be barred from office by Guido's dictatorial decree, as the high command demanded, or by legal processes sanctioned by Congress, as the insurgents insisted.

The upshot was a dramatic summit conference of Argentina's generals and admirals behind the heavily guarded gates of Guido's suburban residence.

Rauch, 48, commander of the cavalry corps at Camp de Mayo, came out smiling and declared himself satisfied with a truce formula proposed by Guido himself.

Poggi sourly waved to newsmen and refused to talk.

As events unfolded it seemed clear Guido had triumphed.

The main development suggesting this was, when Guido's office announced the appointment of

FEW EXCEPTIONS

Nation To Enjoy A Pretty Easter

By CHARLES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer

"He is risen."

In song and prayer, the words spoken 20 centuries ago echoed around the world Sunday in Christian celebration of the Resurrection.

The bells of Rome's 500 churches, muffled until midnight, rang out the glory of Easter.

In silence, too, the faith was kept.

A joy of color lent emphasis to the white lily symbol of the day. Gaily decorated eggs, bunnies and chicks filled children's baskets. Finery awaited the Easter parades.

For most of the United States, the Weather Bureau forecast a sunny and mild day, except for a band of showers across the middle of the nation and some rain on the northeast coast.

Easter penetrated the Iron Curtain, carrying its hope of life everlasting into Orthodox and Baptist churches in Moscow.

The commemoration of Christ's sacrifice on the Cross brought thousands of pilgrims to Jerusalem, tens of thousands of visitors to the Vatican in Rome and millions of the faithful to special services throughout the world.

On mountain tops, in valleys, beside lakes, in city stadiums, the rising sun found worshipers gathered in prayerful thanksgiving.

The Easter message of Pope John XXIII, Roman Catholic pontiff, repeated the words of Christ risen: "Peace be to you."

Pope John invoked Heaven's blessing "to all men without exception."

In the First Baptist church of Frankfort, Ky., about 150 deaf persons, many of them also mute, neared the end of a wordless three-day vigil. Flying fingers spelled out in the sign language

Two Are Killed As Plane Falls At World's Fair

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — An aerial salute to the Seattle World's Fair ended in tragedy Saturday when an Air Force F102 jet fighter plane crashed in a residential area north of here, killing two civilians.

The jet fighter was one of 24 Air Force and Navy planes that flew over the fairgrounds at noon to mark the start of the six-month exposition. The others returned safely to their home bases.

The plane's pilot, Capt. Joseph Wildt, of Cincinnati, Ohio, parachuted into Lake Washington. He was reported to have suffered only minor facial scratches.

Reports indicated the pilot had completed a second pass over the fairgrounds when he encountered difficulty with the plane. He reported his trouble on the radio then sent out a distress signal and ejected himself.

Nation's Census At 186 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's constantly increasing population reached 186 million Saturday.

The Census Bureau's population "clock" — a device which resembles the mileage meter in an auto dashboard — hit 186 million at about 2 p. m. est.

Officials said that the reading was symbolically accurate but not scientifically precise. The "clock" shows a gain of one person every 10½ seconds of the day (it is shut off at night and corrected in the morning) on the basis of the following averages:

A birth occurs every 7½ seconds.

Someone dies every 19 seconds.

An immigrant arrives in the United States every 1½ minutes.

Hardboiled Easter Eggs Are Weapons

PETERS HOLLOW, Tenn. (UPI) — Raymond Lowe's little hard-scrabble yellow hen "got herself hung in a tree" a few years back, but Lowe has been combing the mountain country for ammunition to retain his championship in the century-old Peters Hollow egg fight Sunday.

You won't find Peters Hollow on the map. But for more than 100 years, the farm families in the Watauga Valley of northeast Tennessee have been gathering here each Easter Sunday to answer the challenge of "I fight ye . . . come hit me."

The weapons are hardboiled, colored hen eggs. Goose eggs or guineas hen eggs are frowned upon.

The challenger poises his hard-set egg, small end up, in the cup of his hand. His opponent taps it with the small end of his own egg. The one that cracks loses.

The 66-year-old Lowe, in front of whose home the contest is staged, dominated the event for years because of a little yellow hen that laid eggs with a rock-hard shell. But he has "no chickens a-tall now" and has been forced to buy his six dozen entries from chicken farmers in Hampton and Shady Valley. He knows what to look for.

"Hens fed on laying mash lay soft eggs," he said. "A chicken that has to get out and scratch for anything it can find lays the hardest shelled egg. I always fed mine on scratch feed, corn and oyster shells."

Saturday's top, under mostly sunny skies, was 82 with the overnight low dropping to 53 degrees.

Easter Observance Joined By Pilgrims

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims of many Christian faiths joined on this Easter Sunday morning to celebrate the Resurrection of Christ.

Midnight Mass ushered in the joyous holy day in churches near the scenes of Christ's trial, agony and crucifixion.

Lights from the Mount of Olives twinkled over this darkened, ancient city in the hush before dawn.

Catholic worshipers gathered in the churches of St. Stephen and St. Savior near the heavily guarded frontier of Israel to sing of the Resurrection.

Baptists, Mennonites, Protestants and other faiths assembled for outdoor services at the rock near the garden tomb near Damascus Gate. Here, they hold, lies the true crypt of Jesus. Other Christians believe it is within the massive Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

It was in the 1,600-year-old Church of the Holy Sepulcher, rebuilt by the Crusaders, that Saturday's celebrations began at dawn.

Black-coated dragomen with carved silver swords led Bishop Filgenso Passini through the church to perform "the blessing of the fire."

Beside the Stone of Unction, where Christ's body was anointed, the bishop lit a candle to symbolize the light of the earth rising from the tomb.

The procession of hundreds of tourists solemnly followed the service to an altar before an ornate Byzantine sepulcher, erected over the tomb itself.

The Easter Story, which never grows old with the passing of time, will be told again today in churches throughout the Twin-Cities and the world. This steeple, on one of the many churches in this area, is symbolic of the spirit that will prevail today — a lifting up of hearts and hands to heaven. For truly all Christians can say our Saviour is not dead — he has risen. (Color Photo and Engraving by Staffer Greg Hare)

Easter Showers Are Possibility

Easter bonnets may be in need of protection this afternoon and tonight with the forecast calling for a few scattered showers.

The outlook is for partly cloudy skied with southerly winds of 10 to 20 miles-per-hour. Today's temperature, with a high of 84 degrees and low of 60, will climb a little above Saturday's readings.

Saturday's top, under mostly sunny skies, was 82 with the overnight low dropping to 53 degrees.

Nation To Enjoy A Pretty Easter

By CHARLES L. WEST

"He is risen."

In song and prayer, the words spoken 20 centuries ago echoed around the world Sunday in Christian celebration of the Resurrection.

The bells of Rome's 500 churches, muffled until midnight, rang out the glory of Easter.

In silence, too, the faith was kept.

A joy of color lent emphasis to the white lily symbol of the day. Gaily decorated eggs, bunnies and chicks filled children's baskets. Finery awaited the Easter parades.

For most of the United States, the Weather Bureau forecast a sunny and mild day, except for a band of showers across the middle of the nation and some rain on the northeast coast.

Easter penetrated the Iron Curtain, carrying its hope of life everlasting into Orthodox and Baptist churches in Moscow.

The commemoration of Christ's sacrifice on the Cross brought thousands of pilgrims to Jerusalem, tens of thousands of visitors to the Vatican in Rome and millions of the faithful to special services throughout the world.

On mountain tops, in valleys, beside lakes, in city stadiums, the rising sun found worshipers gathered in prayerful thanksgiving.

The Easter message of Pope John XXIII, Roman Catholic pontiff, repeated the words of Christ risen: "Peace be to you."

Pope John involked Heaven's blessing "to all men without exception."

In the First Baptist church of Frankfort, Ky., about 150 deaf persons, many of them also mute, neared the end of a wordless three-day vigil. Flying fingers spelled out in the sign language

HOLY LAND RITES

Easter Observance Joined By Pilgrims

JERUSALEM (AP) — Pilgrims of many Christian faiths joined on this Easter Sunday morning to celebrate the Resurrection of Christ

Midnight Mass ushered in the joyous holy day in churches near the scenes of Christ's trial, agony and crucifixion.

Lights from the Mount of Olives twinkled over this darkened, ancient city in the hush before dawn.

Catholic worshipers gathered in the churches of St. Stephen and St. Savior near the heavily guarded frontier of Israel to sing of the Resurrection.

Baptists, Mennonites, Protestants and other faiths assembled for outdoor services at the rock of the garden tomb near Damascus Gate. Here, they hold, lies the true crypt of Jesus. Other Christians believe it is within the massive Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

It was in the 1,600-year-old Church of the Holy Sepulcher, rebuilt by the Crusaders, that Saturday's celebrations began at dawn.

Black-coated dragomen with curved silver swords led Bishop Filgenso Passini through the church to perform "the blessing of the fire."

Beside the Stone of Unction, where Christ's body was annointed, the bishop lit a candle to symbolize the light of the earth rising from the tomb.

The procession of hundreds of tourists solemnly followed the service to an altar before an ornate Byzantine sepulcher, erected over the tomb itself.

The only keys to the ancient church—the most hallowed spot in

Uneasy Rest Falls While Armor Moves

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Jose Maria Guido, supported by a tough cavalry general and a column of tanks, gained the upper hand over ultimatum - bearing Argentine military chiefs Saturday just as civil war seemed to be exploding.

The diminutive president imposed a truce while insurgent armor stormed into the outskirts of Buenos Aires and probed machine gun and artillery emplacements of army commander Gen. Raul Poggi in the heart of the capital.

CRISIS RISES

The crisis, the nearest Argentina has come to serious bloodletting since dictator Juan D. Peron was routed seven years ago, burgeoned when cavalry Gen. Enrique Rauch launched unexpectedly an insurrection against the army high command Friday night from Camp de Mayo, Argentina's most important military camp, 30 miles outside the capital.

The insurrection snowballed and surprised Poggi, key leader in deposing and imprisoning President Arturo Frondizi on March 29. Guido is Frondizi's military-picked successor.

All morning it seemed blood would be spilled on the issue of whether Peronists, who won in the March 18 elections, would be barred from office by Guido's dictatorial decree, as the high command demanded, or by legal processes sanctioned by Congress, as the insurgents insisted.

The upshot was a dramatic summit conference of Argentina's generals and admirals behind the heavily guarded gates of Guido's suburban residence.

Rauch, 48, commander of the cavalry corps at Camp de Mayo, came out smiling and declared himself satisfied with a truce formula proposed by Guido himself.

Poggi sourly waved to newsmen and refused to talk.

As events unfolded it seemed clear Guido had triumphed.

The main development suggesting this was, when Guido's office announced the appointment of

Two Western policemen, who were patrolling the border in a squad car, saw the Communists throw the grenade, and then responded by hurling two tear gas grenades through the window at the Communist policemen.

A Communist policeman in the building leaned from the window and fired two bursts from his machine pistol, and the West Berliners fired back with their carbines.

Hearing the shooting, the East Germans rushed up 50 border guards with a heavy machine gun, and they occupied all of the second and third floors of the house on the border.

The French gendarmes were armed with rifles and submachine guns, and heavy machine guns were mounted on their cars.

Christendom—have been held by a Moslem family named Joudeh since Saladin reconquered Jerusalem from the Crusaders.

While the bishop and the procession waited at the entry, a little gray-haired warden of keys, who himself worships at a nearby mosque, clambered up the ladder to swing open the doors.

Jerusalem's twisting old streets were thronged with about 6,000 pilgrims for Easter—Africans in bright flowing robes, Chinese and Filipinos, Arab Christians, European priests and nuns in a wealth of costumes, and hundreds of Americans. More than 100 Christian sects were represented.

Overflow hotels opened makeshift annexes, and private homes in the congested old section of the city were filled with guests speaking dozens of different languages.

But it is only the beginning of Holy Week for Greek Orthodox and other Eastern churches. In vaulted bazaars, where sheep carcasses hang in the street, bearded men were weaving palm fronds for the Eastern Palm Sunday.

Special Arab police, in blue uniforms, were detailed to handle the Easter throngs and prevent souvenir hunters from damaging hallowed masonry or the sacred shrines of the city.

Gen. Juan Bautista Loza, comparatively unknown politically, as the new army secretary with a free hand to name his own army commander in chief.

This meant Poggi was through, as well as Gen. Marino Bartolome Carrera, army secretary, who resigned Friday night.

The showdown came quickly after Rauch, solidly based with more than 12,000 soldiers and 150 Sherman tanks at his command at Campo de Mayo, ordered an armored column to advance on Buenos Aires.

Poggi, depending on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Motorized Infantry regiments, deployed defenders in trenches in Palermo suburb in the path of the armored column.

His forces wheeled out light artillery and antiaircraft pieces behind a barricade of buses and cars around the dominating War Ministry building facing the Plaza de Mayo and pink-walled Government House in the heart of the city.

Rauch's tanks and armored personnel carriers stormed on into the suburbs, despite the risks of warfare, and 60 men seized control of the national radio station.

But just as it seemed that something would break out, cars filled with generals began arriving at Guido's gates to seek a peaceful solution.

What apparently turned the tables on Poggi was this: In the minutes before he went to Guido's residence the huge army garrisons at Santa Fe and at Rosario, Argentina's second largest city, came down on the side of the insurgents.

Elements of the air force also were reported to have declared themselves for Rauch.

The navy throughout kept hands off, declaring the crisis an army affair.

Spokesmen for Frondizi's Intransigent Raidcals, who from the first have opposed outlawing the Peronists by decree, also proclaimed their support for Rauch.

Immediately after the high-level conference, Poggi began pulling back—but not demobilizing—the troops he had thrown around the Plaza de Mayo and Government House. The troops withdrew to positions around the War Ministry.

Rauch was said by his aides to have been adamant on the point that Loza, the new army secretary, should not pass through Poggi territory to take the oath of office at Government House.

Rauch said his troops would remain in their positions until the new army secretary is firmly established in office.

Loza was summoned to Guido's house immediately after the conference.

The new army secretary is a career infantryman who took an active part in the revolution of Gen. Arturo Ramirez in 1943 which paved the way for Peron's advent to power. He fell out with Peron in 1944 over Peron's strong-arm methods and took part in the 1955 overthrow of Peron. He fell out with provisional President Pedro Aramburu, who succeeded Peron, and asked to be retired in 1957.

Rauch told newsmen his honor as a military man had been satisfied by the Guido truce, which he called "satisfactory for all and for the good of the nation."

His aides said he had gone to the conference with five demads, including the expulsion of Poggi as army commander, the naming of a new army secretary, an urgent conference of key generals from all parts of the country, ... troops be allowed to hold their positions for the time being, and that he himself be allowed to keep command at Camp de Mayo.

He thus abandoned his claim to the post of war secretary to which Guido appointed him Friday night to succeed Carrera.

In an early morning communique he demanded that Guido be allowed to solve the problem of Peronism by legal means and without ultimatums.

That problem is posed by the victory of Peronists in five races for governorships and 45 seats in the House of Deputies last March 18 when Frondizi allowed them to seek office for the first time since 1955.

He called the highway situation "a mounting scandal" and asked voters to urge their representatives to give his committee power to look into records.

Any state records, Rayburn said, "should be available to any member of the committee or any member of the legislature."

Rayburn said, however, his committee is strictly a legislative committee and is not in position to investigate administraton.

He said, "until the time that the Legislature asks us to look into specific cases . . . . I don't believe we will stick our neck in."

Today in Baltimore, there are 110 known hitching rings embedded in curbstones, 7 hitching posts, 67 carriage blocks and 600 footscrapers.

Anti-Spy Group To Watch Tests

aids can maintain close watch against the landing of spies or saboteurs.

The primary danger from Soviet intelligence efforts exists in other quarters.

First, there is the possibility of reconnaissance by Russian submarines or "fishing boats." To meet some of this threat, the United States has announced two danger zones, one in the Christmas Island area, the other around Johnston Island.

The stated purpose if to protect commercial shipping and aircraft by keeping them out of danger.

Warships and planes will patrol the zones during times of testing to warn straying merchant ships or planes. At the same time, it is to be presumed a substantial anti-submarine and aircraft search will be maintained.

The next possibility for spying exists in another quarter—one that probably offers counterintelligence a more serious challenge.

Espionage agents make some of their most intensive efforts among personnel working on secret projects who may leave their jobs temporarily or permanently. Special attention is paid to personnel, military or civilian, who talk carelessly or who may bear grudges which can be exploited.

Security experts screen both military and civilian personnel carefully. This includes laborers and technicians of firms holding construction and installation contracts at the site. The mission of counter-intelligence men is to locate espionage agents in debarkation ports to which personnel return, to learn whether agents attempt to contact returned workers and military personnel and to stop relay of information if obtained.

And among the techniques of counterintelligence is the planting of false or misleading information.

In the case of the nuclear tests, foreign agents would have interest in knowing when specific detonations are to occur, for purposes of technical monitoring and analysis by submarines, distant seismological and upper altitude measurement devices. Any data on types and designs of towers, target areas and recording systems would be grist for the espionage mill.

The deep water close to the areas of both Christmas and Jackson Island, combined with hundreds of thousands of cubic miles of empty ocean, enhance the possibilities for submarine reconnaissance in the test zones.

The story is that one Easter morning at least a century ago the men of Rome Hollow on one side of the valley challenged the men of Peters Hollow on the other side to find out whose hens laid the hardest eggs.

Lowe was the champion until his yellow hen died. Then Paul Peters beat him two years ago, and Freeman Taylor beat Peters last year.

Advance indications are there will be at least 6,000 eggs in the contest this year, and the fighting will last until after dark when only one of them is left uncracked.

much the whole matter may be caught up in political rivalries in Bonn. They speculate about the relationship between Brentano as former foreign minister and Gerhard Schroeder, his successor. They had thought Schroeder understood what the United States was attempting to do in probing for a Berlin settlement formula and that in general he supported it.

Adenauer has made clear to Kennedy that he objects to (1) any measure giving new status to Communist East Germany and (2) any step which would seem to put West Germany into a category apart from the other Western Allies.

Thus he has opposed including Communist East German and East Berlin representatives on an international authority to operate the access routes to Berlin. He has also argued against an East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons because in the context of a Berlin settlement that would be aimed at West Germany. He objects to an agreement freezing Germany's present boundaries which technically are still subject to peace treaty negotiations.

U.S. officials are prepared to argue with Brentano, it is understood, that West Germany must begin to deal with the reality of conditions in Germany including the fact that the country is split.

"They're always out and the only people you can talk to are the little office girls."

Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa, chairman of the Senate Transportation and Public Works committee, whose position is similar to Fulco's, backed the representative's attempt to inspect records.

Any state records, Rayburn said, "should be available to any member of the committee or any member of the legislature."

Rayburn said, however, his committee is strictly a legislative committee and is not in position to investigate administraton.

He said, "until the time that the Legislature asks us to look into specific cases . . . . I don't believe we will stick our neck in."

and Mrs. Raymond Smith, both in their 60's, were recovered from the demolished home in the lake Terrace area. The house was destroyed by fire, along with the neighboring home of A. F. Retka. The five-member Retka family was on vacation.

The homes of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Andrews and the Robert Jinneman family were damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and the six members of the Jinneman family escaped.

Anita Moran, 15, was admitted to a hospital suffering from shock.

George C. Krahl, who lives about a block and a half from where the plane hit, said:

"The first thing we noticed was a tremendous boom like a sonic boom. Then everything vibrated and there was a tremendous burst of red hot blaze. Right after the crash there was a tremendous amount of debris flying all over the neighborhood. Some of the neighbors have broken windows."

BACKWARD, O BACKWARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — In a book about Baltimore, published 25 years ago, Meredith Janvier lamented the passing of the city's old-time charm.

He said he knew of only three hitching rings embedded in curbstones, only one hitching post, only six carriage blocks and only a handful of doorway footscrapers.

Today in Baltimore, there are 110 known hitching rings embedded in curbstones, 7 hitching posts, 67 carriage blocks and 600 footscrapers.

aids can maintain close watch against the landing of spies or saboteurs.

The primary danger from Soviet intelligence efforts exists in other quarters.

First, there is the possibility of reconnaissance by Russian submarines or "fishing boats." To meet some of this threat, the United States has announced two danger zones, one in the Christmas Island area, the other around Johnston Island.

The stated purpose if to protect commercial shipping and aircraft by keeping them out of danger.

Warships and planes will patrol the zones during times of testing to warn straying merchant ships or planes. At the same time, it is to be presumed a substantial anti-submarine and aircraft search will be maintained.

The next possibility for spying exists in another quarter—one that probably offers counterintelligence a more serious challenge.

Espionage agents make some of their most intensive efforts among personnel working on secret projects who may leave their jobs temporarily or permanently. Special attention is paid to personnel, military or civilian, who talk carelessly or who may bear grudges which can be exploited.

Security experts screen both military and civilian personnel carefully. This includes laborers and technicians of firms holding construction and installation contracts at the site. The mission of counter-intelligence men is to locate espionage agents in debarkation ports to which personnel return, to learn whether agents attempt to contact returned workers and military personnel and to stop relay of information if obtained.

And among the techniques of counterintelligence is the planting of false or misleading information.

In the case of the nuclear tests, foreign agents would have interest in knowing when specific detonations are to occur, for purposes of technical monitoring and analysis by submarines, distant seismological and upper altitude measurement devices. Any data on types and designs of towers, target areas and recording systems would be grist for the espionage mill.

The deep water close to the areas of both Christmas and Jackson Island, combined with hundreds of thousands of cubic miles of empty ocean, enhance the possibilities for submarine reconnaissance in the test zones.

Indian campfires surrounded the town then and the settlers calmed their children by telling them it was the Easter bunny building fires to boil dye for Easter eggs.

Coupling Easter observance to a plea for global peace, Quakers stood silent and motionless in New York's Times Square. The demonstration began Good Friday and was to last through Sunday morning.

Shortly after noon Saturday, a five - block - long line of "peace walkers," three abreast, filed through Times Square, nearing the end of a march to the United Nations with signs pleading for peace.

No one knows for sure just how the Peters Hollow Easter egg fight started. Lowe said there are participants 90 years of age who have been competing since boyhood.

The story is that one Easter morning at least a century ago the men of Rome Hollow on one side of the valley challenged the men of Peters Hollow on the other side to find out whose hens laid the hardest eggs.

Lowe was the champion until his yellow hen died. Then Paul Peters beat him two years ago, and Freeman Taylor beat Peters last year.

Advance indications are there will be at least 6,000 eggs in the contest this year, and the fighting will last until after dark when only one of them is left uncracked.

much the whole matter may be caught up in political rivalries in Bonn. They speculate about the relationship between Brentano as former foreign minister and Gerhard Schroeder, his successor. They had thought Schroeder understood what the United States was attempting to do in probing for a Berlin settlement formula and that in general he supported it.

Adenauer has made clear to Kennedy that he objects to (1) any measure giving new status to Communist East Germany and (2) any step which would seem to put West Germany into a category apart from the other Western Allies.

Thus he has opposed including Communist East German and East Berlin representatives on an international authority to operate the access routes to Berlin. He has also argued against an East-West agreement to ban the spread of nuclear weapons because in the context of a Berlin settlement that would be aimed at West Germany. He objects to an agreement freezing Germany's present boundaries which technically are still subject to peace treaty negotiations.

U.S. officials are prepared to argue with Brentano, it is understood, that West Germany must begin to deal with the reality of conditions in Germany including the fact that the country is split.

Annual Spring Concert Slated By Neville Band

The Neville High School band — rated as one of the best in the United States — will perform its annual Spring Concert May 3 at Neville High Auditorium.

Herbert Gathright, director, said the 86-piece band would play the standard Oberon Overture and Rakoczy March, from the opera Damnation of Faust by Berlioz.

Gathright, in his fifth year at Neville as band director, said the program would run slightly over one hour and would include several other favorite renditions.

The concert this year will be under sponsorship of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce. Program Chairman Jack Murphy said a portion of funds raised through the concert will be pledged to a bronze plaque for the city's new bandstand in Forsythe Park.

Balance of funds will be used to purchase band accessories.

The Neville band currently is rehearsing for the State Band Festival April 28 in Baton Rouge. Last year, Gathright led the group to a first division rating. All three judges, Gathright reported, put the Monroe organization in first place.

Costumes for the 1962 Spring Concert include dazzling white dresses for the girls and white coats with black ties for the boys.

The concert begins at 8 p.m.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Do you think it is always possible to obey one's conscience? I know it is our duty, but is it possible always to do it? R. F.

ANSWER: Conscience is not always right and is therefore an unsafe guide. The Scriptures speak of an evil conscience (Heb. 10: 22), a weak and defined conscience (I Cor. 8:7-12), and a conscience seared with a hot iron (I Tim. 4:2). The Bible also speaks of a pure conscience, a good conscience, and a conscience void of offense.

Thus it is seen that the conscience is variable and therefore untrustworthy. It is only when it is enlightened and sensitive to the Holy Spirit that conscience may be safely followed.

Fire Sends Nuns Fleeing Convent

NEW YORK (UPI) A fire in St. Brendan's convent drove 38 nuns into the street early Saturday. They formed a hand-in-hand chain to grope their way through the dense smoke.

By the time firemen arrived, all the nuns were safely out of the building, in the flatbush section of Brooklyn. The nuns are teaching sisters of the order of St. Joseph. They got out of the building in the same manner they teach children in fire drills.

Health Aid To Africa Gets Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is increasing its efforts to help Africa doctor its public health ills.

Several U.S. health officials are on a one-month tour of 10 African nations with orders from Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Secretary Abraham Ribicoff to "return with some concrete proposals for helping these newly emerging nations."

Officials emphasize that current programs and future plans are modest compared wtih the health programs underwritten in Africa by France, for example. They said the United States is focusing increasing attention on supplementing projects conducted by Europeans.

Requests have come from Libya and Togo for Cuban doctors exiled in the United States. The International Rescue Committee, Inc., already has announced plans to use some of these doctors to help treat Anlolan refugees in the Congo.

U.S. Public Health programs are being considered for the Central African Republic and the United States is "looking at" health problems in Chad, Gabon and the former French Congo.

A close look at the Central African Republic situation was to be made by Deputy Assistant HEW Secretary Lisle C. Carter Jr., and others traveling with Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams to 10 African countries.

Official sources said a program has been approved for Mali providing for personnel and construction equipment to help develop an institute of hygiene.

Negotiations are underway with the University of Cincinnati to develop the Tubman national Institute of Medical Arts in Liberia.

In March, the U. S. Public Health Service announced success in the vaccination of 439 children in Upper Volta against measles and said that when available in quantity "the vaccine will provide a means to prevent West Africa's most dreaded childhood disease." The United States helped establish a regional nursing school in Upper Volta last year.

'Biggest Crap' Game Is Raided

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)— Forty three men were arrested Saturday in an auto repair shop when police raided an alleged floating dice game described as "one of the biggest crap games that ever hit this city."

Police inspector John F. Driscoll, who headed the 13 man raiding party, said seven of the men admitted they had been caught last Jan. 20 when 75 FBI agents raided a dice game in Reading, Pa., and arrested 100.

Police confiscated dice, a "kitty" of $58.30 and $5,065.43 from the men's pockets.

Driscoll said the raiders had planned to burst into the shop but when a policeman tapped on a window, someone inside opened the only door to the place and the raiders surged in.

'POLICE STATE'

GOP Sees Issue In Steel Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans think they can build a 1962 campaign issue on what they term President Kennedy's "police state" handling of the steel price increase dispute.

Some think he used a cannon when a well-aimed rifle would have forced big steel to rescind its price hike. Correctly or incorrectly, they are gambling that time will be on their side politically. Most Democrats think the GOP couldn't be more wrong.

What entered into the "big blast" the joint Senate-House Republican leadership issued against the Kennedy steel action last Thursday?

First, its timing and form were deliberate. Key Republicans had said little about Kennedy's explosive reaction to the steel situation. Instead of sputtering singly, they fired back in unison for what they hoped was maximum effect.

They sidetracked suggestions that they argue the economic justification for the steel price increase launched by U.S. Steel Corp. Debating profit - economics would not only clutter up their case against the President, they believed, but support the Democrats' contention that Republicans and "big business" automatically share the same clubhouse. And as of last week there were not many Republicans clamoring to get into the locker room with U.S. Steel Chairman Roger M. Blough.

Second, one of their most liberal members had set the tone for a joint Republican attack. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who has challenged the right-wing Republican line on many an occasion, had already branded Kennedy's action as "punitive force" while deploring the steel price increase.

Javits made his first Senate speech on the subject April 11. At that time he criticized the $6 per ton price rise. But he also stressed that he could not "go along with a threat to business to prosecute under the antitrust laws," as suggested by Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., on that occasion.

Then on April 17, Javits, citing editorial reaction against what was termed "naked political power" — the same phrase used by the GOP leadership — went on to say:

"It is one thing to approve a denunciation of a price increase—it is a very different thing to countenance the use of the punitive force of the United States, in the Department of Justice or the FBI, to coerce anybody who is making an economic decision when there is no reasonable evidence as yet that there has been a violation of law."

Javits' stand took some of the possible curse off the fact that Senate Republican Whip Thomas H. Kuchel, a liberal Republican running for reelection in California, was not present to sanction the Thursday leadership statement. Kuchel is one of the Republicans understood to feel that big steel's action was a masterpiece of public relations blundering which could only hurt him and other GOP candidates.

Against the Democrats' contention that voters applaud the President's angry denunciation of big steel, some Republicans think that:

—With a few steel producers holding out against big steel's price increase, the President probably could have achieved the results his "big stick" tactics brought had he called Blough and other steel leaders to a White House conference. Democrats generally feel Blough invited what he got from Kennedy.

—Inevitably, the "image" of Kennedy as an older, more restrained President who has recovered from the Cuban invasion fiasco has been dimmed. Republicans may try to make use of the "angry young man" image in the '62 campaign.

How much of an issue the affair turns out to be in the House and Senate races this year remains to be seen. But at least it's one more than the GOP had, even if it proves to be a minus rather than a plus.

Annual Spring Concert Slated By Neville Band

The Neville High School band — rated as one of the best in the United States — will perform its annual Spring Concert May 3 at Neville High Auditorium.

Herbert Gathright, director, said the 86-piece band would play the standard Oberon Overture and Rakoczy March, from the opera Damnation of Faust by Berlioz.

Gathright, in his fifth year at Neville as band director, said the program would run slightly over one hour and would include several other favorite renditions.

The concert this year will be under sponsorship of the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce. Program Chairman Jack Murphy said a portion of funds raised through the concert will be pledged to a bronze plaque for the city's new bandstand in Forsythe Park.

Balance of funds will be used to purchase band accessories.

The Neville band currently is rehearsing for the State Band Festival April 28 in Baton Rouge. Last year, Gathright led the group to a first division rating. All three judges, Gathright reported, put the Monroe organization in first place.

Costumes for the 1962 Spring Concert include dazzling white dresses for the girls and white coats with black ties for the boys.

The concert begins at 8 p.m.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Do you think it is always possible to obey one's conscience? I know it is our duty, but is it possible always to do it? R. F.

ANSWER: Conscience is not always right and is therefore an unsafe guide. The Scriptures speak of an evil conscience (Heb. 10:22), a weak and defined conscience (I Cor. 8:7-12), and a conscience seared with a hot iron (I Tim. 4:2). The Bible also speaks of a pure conscience, a good conscience, and a conscience void of offense.

Thus it is seen that the conscience is variable and therefore untrustworthy. It is only when it is enlightened and sensitive to the Holy Spirit that conscience may be safely followed.

Imprisoned OAS Leader Is Charged

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Raoul Salan, imprisoned chief of the European Secret Army, was formally accused Saturday of attacking the authority of the state in his campaign to keep Algeria French. Conviction on the charge carries the death penalty.

The charge was read to Salan in the stock ex-general's prison cell. Prison officials said Salan, still wearing his black moustache and black-dyed hair, appeared relaxed as examining Magistrate Guy Courcol read the complaint. Under French law, a prisoner must be formally charged within 48 hours of arrest.

Earlier, Salan had been pictured as resigned, tired, seemingly without hope, as he told police interrogators his arrest was inevitable — "everything was collapsing around us."

The government announced that Salan's wife and daughter, arrested with him in Algiers, were en route by plane from Algiers to Fresnes Prison in Paris.

They left Maison Blanche Airport for Paris and were to be transported directly to the prison, the announcement said. It gave no other details.

In Algiers, ex - Gen. Paul Gardy declared he had succeeded Salan as head of the secret army. Gardy has been secret army commander in western Algeria.

Bemedaled Salan, former supreme French military commander in Algeria, was arrested Friday in Algiers. For the past year he had been in underground revolt against the Algerian policies of President Charles de Gaulle. Reaction to his capture caused new bloodshed in Algeria.

A year ago Sunday Salan and three other generals touched off a short-lived putsch, seizing power in Algiers. When his insurrection collapsed under the weight of De Gaulle's prestige, Salan and Gen. Edmond Jouhaud went into hiding. They formed the underground Secret Army Organization (OAS) which rallied European settlers for a last-ditch terrorist campaign against Algerian independence.

Salan and Jouhaud were stripped of rank as generals at the time of the putsch. Jouhaud was captured in Oran March 25 and has been sentenced to death. The same fate probably awaits Salan—and he seemed to know it when he arrived at the prison gates Friday night.

Salan's trial probably will open around May 15. The investigating magistrate who will prepare the case for the special high military court—the same court that sentenced Jouhaud to death—interrupted his Easter vacation to start work.

De Gaulle will meet with the Superior Council of Magistrates Tuesday to review the Jouhaud case in a clemency hearing. No matter what the magistrates recommend. The final decision will be up to De Gaulle.

Letters and newspaper editorials have been urging a commutation of sentence for Jouhaud, a native Algerian who said he could not stand idly by while his homeland was being torn from France. Many sentimental factors have been brought into play for Jouhaud that probably cannot be made to work.

Salan told police he had planned a complete reorganization of the secret army in Metropolitan France and that one of the projects was to kidnap Marshal Alphonse Juin and take him to Ireland. He said that in Ireland Marshal Juin would have been put at the head of a movement for a free French Algeria.

Marshal Juin, a native of Algeria, had expressed sympathy for Salan and the secret army but carefully remained aloof from their activities. He was kept in house arrest for a few days in Paris for sending a letter of encouragement to Salan.

Terrorism continued to reign in Algiers and secret army forces early Saturday fired on a military jeep, killing two of its occupants and wounding a third. A short time later a police bus was fired on and two policemen were injured. The secret army has attacked police and army patrols only infrequently in recent weeks, and there were speculation Salan's capture had caused a shift in tactics.

Six Moslems were killed and several were wounded Saturday morning in two separate machinegun attacks in the suburb of Maison Carree.

Fifth Centaur Launch Attempt Dies Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The fifth attempt to launch the United States' newest space rocket, the high-energy Centaur, was frustrated Saturday by last-second trouble which resulted in cutoff of the booster engines after they were ignited.

When the countdown reached zero flames burst from the base of the big Atlas first stage. But they died quickly and the rocket remained locked on its pad, enveloped in a cloud of smoke which quickly drifted away.

The 105-foot vehicle probably was saved from destruction by an automatic electronic system which detected something wrong and commanded the engine to shut off.

Many liquid-fuel missiles fired at the Cape are held on the pad in just such a manner for a few seconds after the engines fire to give the electronic system a chance to find any trouble.

Four previous attempts to launch the rocket have been postponed. Weather stopped it twice, Atlas fuel problems another time and just Friday the shot was called off because of trouble in ground support equipment.

It was originally scheduled to be fired April 7.

The missile apparently was not damaged by Saturday's misfire.

There was no word from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on what went wrong. There also was no report on how long the shot would be delayed.

The second stage of the rocket has the first rocket engines using powerful liquid hydrogen as fuel. The first launching is to be a brief 15-minute ballistic flight to test rocket systems and performance of hydrogen in space.

Plane Pioneer Dies At Age 76

LONDON (UPI)— Sir Frederick Handley Page, 76, who started building airplanes shortly after the Wright brothers launched the air age at Kitty Hawk, died Saturday.

Sir Frederick's Handley Page Ltd was the first British firm founded to build planes. It was founded 55 years ago.

King George V named him a commander of the British Empire (CBE) in 1918 for producing World War I planes. King George VI knighted him in 1942 for his contribution to Britain's air might in World War II.

Underground Test Is Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced another underground nuclear test of low yield was conducted at the Nevada test site Saturday.

It was the 29th announced since the United States resumed testing.

A low-yield nuclear explosion is equivalent to 20,000 tons of TNT.

Race Tension In Augusta Said Easing

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Disclosure of a biracial agreement in one area underscored the easing of tension in this eastern Georgia city Saturday.

While police continued a clampdown on potential troublemakers, crowds of shoppers finished Easter buying in the absence of even minor racial incidents.

A $1,000 reward was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer Lesley Lee Lutte, 16, a white youth whose slaying Thursday night climaxed four days of minor disorder.

Warning of jail terms for troublemakers came from Recorder William C. Calhoun as he sentenced a dozen persons arrested for carrying weapons or being on the street late at night.

A Negro spokesman and a grocer whose store had been picketed by Negroes disclosed they had reached a "fair and equitable solution."

The grocer, B. Dawson Hammack, declined to give details of the agreement and the Negro leader, the Rev. C. S. Hamilton, was not available.

Their joint statement said "Good faith negotiations have been entered into and the differences adjusted on a fair and equitable basis. The practice of selective buying is ended. It is our sincere hope that peace and tranquility will prevail in our community."

They had boycotted and picketed two markets operated by Hammack. They said the protests stemmed from Hammack's refusal to hire Negro workers.

Picketing Monday preceded the series of rock - throwing racial clashes and other incidents before tension reached an explosive point with the fatal shooting of the white youth.

Last week's disorder, curbed by heavily reinforced police units and appeals from leaders of both races, was the first serious flareup since Negroes began desegregation activities more than two

State Resident Dies In Crash

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) —Mrs. Voorhies Bernard Sr., 72, of Lafayette, was killed here Saturday in a two-car crash.

Mrs. Geraldine Hollenbagh, 26, Lafayette, driver of the second car was hospitalized. The drivers of both cars were alone at the time of the collision.

FACES QUESTION

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula returned here Saturday to face up the question of what comes next in his negotiations with President Moise Tshombe on ending the Katangan secession. Adoula had been visiting his native Equator Province.

In his absence, Tshombe returned to Elisabethville, despite the protests of central Congolese authorities, and it is not known whether Tshombe will return to resume the talks.

Rights Official Says Churches Must Lead Mix

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Burke Marshall, the Justice Department's ranking civil rights official, said Saturday the nation's churches are not doing enough to break down segregation barriers.

Marshall, in charge of the department's civil rights division said the churches have not adequately emphasized that segregation raises a moral conflict as well as a legal issue.

He discussed the issue while a guest of Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., on a television panel show recorded here.

Marshall was asked by a reporter whether the churches and synagogues of putting "the full weight of their influence" behind the moral aspects of desegregation.

"I think they could do a good deal more," he replied. "Not only in the South, but I think in the North there are very difficult problems in the urban centers that are a result of present discrimination or the result of past inequities."

"I think the churches in general," he added, "have not shown enough leadership in educating the people in the North as well as in the South on that subject."

Marshall said the issue frequently resolved itself to a question "of asserting moral leadership with members of churches who, themselves, condone or practice racial discrimination in housing or in employment or in other areas.

Newspaper Says Man Admits Killing

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A man has admitted killing a 10-year-old newsboy for whose murder he was twice sentenced to be hanged and then was set free, the Vancouver Sun said Sautrday.

The Sun said in a copyright story that Charles Murral Heathman signed a statement Friday afternoon about the slaying of Donald Ottley of Vernon, B.C., on Labor Day, 1960.

Heathman was quoted as saying in the statement to the newspaper: "I enjoyed killing him. I prolonged it as long as I could."

Staff Inspector Dan Brown of the Vancouver police said after the newspaper account appeared that a warrant had been issued for Heathman's arrest.

In Victoria, the provincial capital, Atty. Gen. Robert Bonner said a study of the Heathman statement might provide a basis for new charges.

Heathman was acquitted of murder in the Ottley boy's death by a 3-2 decision of the British Columbia Court of Appeals on Oct. 31, 1961.

He had first been sentenced to hang on Dec. 71, 1960, after being convicted in a lower court. He appealed, and a new trial was ordered. He was again convicted on May 29, 1961 and again sentenced to death. This time he was freed on appeal.

Throughout his trials, Heathman contended he was innocent.

The Sun said Heathman approached Simma Holt, a Sun reporter, for help in getting him a job. After taking him to the personnel department Mrs. Holt offered to drive him home.

While walking to her car, she said, they discussed the Ottley case and Heathman said, "Aw, I might as well tell you I did it."

The Sun said it regards the statement as a social document unique in legal history.

"The Sun can not vouch for the truth of the statement, it merely presents it as Heathman told it," the newspaper said.

It said Heathman was considering taking psychiatric treatment.

The newspaper quoted Heathman as saying he had been drinking in a Vernon beer parlor the day of the slaying.

"Then something came over me," the statement said. "I had the urge to kill somebody—it did not matter if it was a boy or girl, a man or woman."

He met the boy in a Vernon park and talked with him for some time, the statement said.

"There was no sex," it continued. "I'm no sex psychopath.

"I placed my hand over his mouth—my right hand ... I had my hand on him until he died ... I went back off to the beer parlor."

The majority justices in the appeals court decision said the evidence was circumstantial and failed to establish Heathman's proximity to the scene of the crime.

4 Californians Die In Crash Of Private Airplane

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Four Californians were killed late Saturday when a small private plane—apparently trying to avoid an in-flight collision—crashed and burned about a half-mile behind a row of homes near Palm Springs Airport.

Dead were the pilot, Dr. J. Remwick of Sacramento and his passengers, Kenneth Holtcamp, 26, Lynwood; Craig Jourdannair, 23, Monterrey Park; and William Steinmetz, 23, South Gate.

Witnesses said the blue and white Beechcraft Bonanza appeared to make a sharp turn to avoid another plane in the same landing pattern, went into a stall, crashed to the ground and burst into flames.

Authorities said Renwick and his wife had come to this Southern California desert resort from Sacramento Friday. They said the three Southern Californians killed in the crash had gone up with him for a short sightseeing flight over the area.

KENNEDY 'FOUNDLING'

Literacy Test Bill Fight Seems Sure

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Southern foe of the administration's voter literacy test bill called it a "Bobby Kennedy foundling" Saturday as the Senate headed toward its second civil rights battle of the year.

The measure, scheduled to be brought up Tuesday, threatens to keep the Senate tied up in controversy for two weeks or more and gradually throttle the work of its committees.

Its effect would be to exempt anyone with a 6th grade education from passing a state literacy test in order to qualify as a voter in presidential and congressional elections.

It is aimed at racial discrimination in the administration of literacy tests. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has described this as the method most widely employed in parts of the South to keep Negroes from voting.

Southern senators have roundly denounced it as an attempt to usurp authority given to the states to determine the qualifications of voters.

In an opening salvo for the Dixie group, Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., blasted Kennedy's stand and declared the attorney general wants to violate the Constitution.

"Congress is being asked to adopt this Bobby Kennedy foundling and give it respectability," Hill said in a statement.

But the legislation was described as absolutely necessary by Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., in a television interview. He cited findings of the Civil Rights Commission that literacy tests are used to deprive Negroes of the right to vote.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, also urged passage of the bill in a similar interview with Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J.

He said there was "serious discrimination in the voting process against hundreds of thousands of people, although he did not pin this wholly to literacy tests.

With the literacy test bill still in a Senate judiciary subcommittee, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana, plans to try to substitute it for a minor bill already on the Senate calendar.

A like maneuver was used last month to get action on an antipoll tax amendment to the Constitution, which was approved by the Senate by a 77-16 vote on March 27 after a scrap that lasted almost two weeks.

Southern senators were divided on the poll tax issue and didn't make an all-out fight. But they are expected to try to block the literacy test bill with a filibuster that can be shut off only by a two-thirds majority of the senators voting.

Mansfield has said he intends to let the debate run on for a "reasonable" length of time before resorting to the antifilibuster rules. This procedure has not been successfully invoked since 1927 and never to force action on a civil rights bill.

Patience Finally Pays Dividend In 11 Burglaries

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Patience finally paid off for the West Norriton Township police.

In the past eight years there were 11 burglaries at the home of Dr. Willis R. Roberts. Since early January, one of the township's four - man force has been stationed inside the doctor's home while he was at his office.

Friday, the long wait paid off.

Patrolman Francis D. Higgins Jr., in the doctor's bedroom on the second floor, heard a noise in the kitchen, then footsteps on the stairs. Higgins slipped quietly to the head of the stairs and grabbed an intruder.

Chief Ralph K. Harner of the West Norriton force, identified the intruder as Stephen John Spieles, 22, Philadelphia, and said Spieles admitted burglaring Dr. Roberts' home 11 times in eight years.

Spieles will be given a hearing Monday on burglary charges. Harner said Spieles escaped from Allentown State Hospital last Dec. 11. He had been sent there from Northampton County Jail after attempting suicide. A month earlier, he was arrested for forgery and fraudulent conversion.

SAC Chief Says Nuclear War Now Out

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) —Gen. Thomas S. Power, who commands more than 80 per cent of the free world's military fire power, said Saturday that nuclear war can be ruled out indefinitely because of America's deterrent strength.

The Strategic Air commander said 1,500 jet bombers and expanding missile forces in his global command exist to prove to Russia the "futility" of starting a war.

There is no way the Soviet Union could destroy the Strategic Air Command (SAC) by surprise onslaught today and avoid its own destruction from the retaliatory blows, he added.

Deterrence has worked up to now, the air officer said. With continuing fantastic developments which "inevitably" will include manned and maneuverable spacecrafts for SAC, "We can continue deterrence indefinitely." The general also challenged claims by some that "atomic idiots out here in Omaha are ready to blow up the world."

Power discussed U. S. deterrent power with newsmen who have been visiting underground missile bases in Colorado and Montana. They are seeing the almost impossible task that would confront the Soviet Union in trying to knock out America's ability to retaliate.

Rapidly taking shape in a Montana area that is as big as the state of Maryland is a force of Minutemen intercontinental ballistic missiles that by mid - 1963 will be able to salvo 150 rockets in a few seconds. Each launcher is far enough away from its neighbors so that a single Soviet missile could not knock out more than one. And that would have to be a direct hit.

Similarly, near Denver, underground Titan missile complexes were seen so widely dispersed that no more than three could become the victims of a direct hit.

The Air Force missile arsenal is tripling this year and will triple again next year.

NEGRO 'IMMIGRANTS'

Orleans Council Praised By Family

NEW YORK (UPI) — A destitute 10-member Negro family arrived Saturday from New Orleans with warm praise for the segregationist group that paid their one-way bus fare from Louisiana.

"They're the finest people in the world," said 41-year-old Lewis Boyd after the two-day bus trip with his wife and their eight children, aged 3 to 12.

Boyd, a stevedore who has been out of work for a year and was taken off Louisiana welfare rolls five months ago, received several job offers on his arrival, primarily because of widespread publicity given the family.

Boyd's family was one of the first to take up an offer of the New Orleans White Citizens Council to pay the bus far for Negroes wanting to leave the South. The segregationist group said it wanted to prove that Negroes in the South are as well—if not better—off than those in the North.

A spokesman said Boyd already had received several job offers—including one as an assistant janitor at a Roman Catholic church.

Some of the criticism of the move had come from New York State Welfare Commissioner Raymond W. Houston who said the newly arrived family would be ineligible for state welfare aid if Boyd were unable to support them.

He said that the family would have to be sent back to New Orleans if Boyd could not find work. He said if any other groups sent here were unable to support themselves, they, too, would be sent back.

The White Citizens Council said in New Orleans that more than 100 Negroes had applied for the free bus fare out of the South. The council defended itself against charges that the moves were to spite the North.

"If they return South they can tell the true story," said a Council spokesman. "This is one way to show what the situation is in the North."

The family, which brought their belongings in cord-tied cardboard boxes and a battered footlocker, was lodged in a midtown Manhattan Hotel shortly after their arrival. The Travelers Aid Society paid the hotel bill for the weekend.

Boyd told those who met him that he had not worked in a year and had been under a doctor's car for treatment of pneumonia. Boyd insisted he was not dissatisfied with the South, but was just seeking work. He said that his welfare payments were cut off last December when he was pronounced cured of his illness.

Long Is Planning Legislation On Campaign Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said Saturday he is drafting legislation under which the federal government would pay the cost of presidential campaigns.

Long said in a statement he thinks present methods of financing, in which large contributors play a major role, "are responsible for more than 50 per cent of all the evil in our form of government."

He said presidential candidates "cannot finance the campaigns themselves, and they have to take money where they can get it.

"When people contribute those fantastic amounts which are not tax deductible, they expect tremendous things in return. If that kind of evil in government is to be stopped, the government must pay the legitimate campaign expenditures of those who run for president," Long added.

Long said he does not believe recent recommendations of the President's Commission on Campaign Costs meet the problem.

The commission proposed a $10 tax credit for campaign contributions, with an alternative provision under which large donors could deduct up to $1,000 annually for political gifts in figuring their tax liability.

The commission's report said some such program ought to be tried out before any effort was made to provide government underwriting of campaign costs.

Optimistic World View Is Gained

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardner Cowles, an American publisher, returning from the Soviet Union where he interviewed Premier Khrushchev, said Saturday he "came away moderately optimistic about relations between Russia and the United States."

Cowles, president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and of Cowles Magazines, Inc., publishers of Look magazine, talked with Khrushchev for nearly three hours at the Kremlin Friday.

Cowles described the Soviet premier as "obviously a tough Communist who will drive a good bargain for himself from his point of view."

But he said Khrushchev "gave the appearance of a man who genuienely wants to avoid war and have the tensions between the East and West relaxed."

MOSCOW (AP) — Former British diplomat Guy Burgess, hearing of the worldwide interest in his whereabouts since Scotland Yard issued an arrest warrant for him last week, advised a Russian friend Friday: "Tell them I've gone to Cuba or South Africa or anyplace."

The Russian relayed Burgess' message Saturday. He said the runaway diplomat telephoned his Moscow apartment Friday from a convalescent home in Yalta on the Black Sea.

"I told him I had been telephoned constantly by newspapermen from all over the world. Jim Andreivich said: 'I can imagine. Tell them I have gone to Cuba or South Africa or anyplace.' "

Roberts Was Disqualified For Pro-Walker Activity

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Arch E. Roberts was told by the Army last September that he had disqualified himself for information duty because of activities on behalf of rightwing former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, it was learned Saturday.

Roberts was then chief of the Civil Liaison Section of the U. S. Army Information Office in New York. He had formerly served as a special aide to Walker when the ex-major general was commanding the 24th Infantry Division in Germany.

The major has now been suspended from military duty and confined to his post at Ft. Lee, Va., pending investigation of a speech he made Thursday before the Daughters of the American Revolution here.

He attributed a "Communist background" to Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and "leftist leanings" to Asst. Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams who is out of the country. Yorty vehemently denied the allegation and called Roberts a "crackpot."

The Army made clear that the earlier action against Roberts does not figure in the current inquiry by Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr.

Roberts was reassigned "without prejudice" from his New York post, and was given duty as a medical supply officer at Ft. Lee. The phrase, "without prejudice," meant that nothing injurious was placed in his permanent service record.

But the Army said Saturday he was told at the time that he was being transferred "because of personal actions which placed him at variance with established positions of the Department of the Army."

Roberts was then being credited by members of the John Birch Society with spearheading a letter-writing campaign on behalf of Walker, who had been removed from his command earlier on charges he attempted to influence the votes of his troops. He also was accused of, but not charged with, making derogatory remarks about prominent Americans, including former President's Truman and Eisenhower.

The Army said Roberts "had associated himself with criticism of the official action of the Army in admonishing Gen. Walker." The latter subsequently resigned and is now a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Texas.

There was no indication Saturday that the Army will act soon to bring charges against Roberts because of the DAR speech. It was delivered on an impromptu basis after the Army had refused to approve a written speech he had submitted for clearance.

The House Committee on Un-american Activities repudiated Roberts' statement concerning Yorty, one-time Democratic congressman, declaring it was based on testimony of a witness who was later discredited. Stahr said Friday that the questioning of Williams' loyalty was fantastic. The DAR passed an emergency resolution protesting Roberts' suspension.

Law Requires Lectures On Temperance

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — There's an old Kentucky law that calls for 30 - minute temperance lectures at least twice each semester in universities, colleges and most grades of secondary schools.

Failure to comply could cost certain administrators their jobs.

But nobody on the college level apparently gave it much thought. That is - until the University of Kentucky student newspaper came forth with an editorial requestioning the lectures.

". . . By statute, the problem is in your hands, Mr. Dickey, whatcha gonna do? . . . " asked the tongue-in-cheek editorial in the Kentucky Kernel.

University President Frank G. Dickey showed them.

"We have no choice except to comply with the law," he said Friday.

The lectures are in store for all students on the main campus in Lexington and at five extension centers.

And guess who the president put in charge of the lectures? Dr. Niel Plummer, head of the journalism school; instructor Harry O. Ritter and the Kernel staff.

KENNEDY 'FOUNDLING'

Literacy Test Bill Fight Seems Sure

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Southern foe of the administration's voter literacy test bill called it a "Bobby Kennedy foundling" Saturday as the Senate headed toward its second civil rights battle of the year.

The measure, scheduled to be brought up Tuesday, threatens to keep the Senate tied up in controversy for two weeks or more and gradually throttle the work of its committees.

Its effect would be to exempt anyone with a 6th-grade education from passing a state literacy test in order to qualify as a voter in presidential and congressional elections.

It is aimed at racial discrimination in the administration of literacy tests. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has described this as the method most widely employed in parts of the South to keep Negroes from voting.

Southern senators have roundly denounced it as an attempt to usurp authority given to the states to determine the qualifications of voters.

In an opening salvo for the Dixie group, Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., blasted Kennedy's stand and declared the attorney general wants to violate the Constitution.

"Congress is being asked to adopt this Bobby Kennedy foundling and give it respectability," Hill said in a statement.

But the legislation was described as absolutely necessary by Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., in a television interview. He cited findings of the Civil Rights Commission that literacy tests are used to deprive Negroes of the right to vote.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, also urged passage of the bill in a similar interview with Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J.

He said there was "serious discrimination in the voting process against hundreds of thousands of people, although he did not pin this wholly to literacy tests.

With the literacy test bill still in a Senate judiciary subcommittee, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana, plans to try to substitute it for a minor bill already on the Senate calendar.

CHINA, YUGOSLAVIA

Top-Level Talks Are Held By Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — Top-level Soviet government figures ended simultaneous visits to the Communist capital of Yugoslavia and China. The two capitols have taken opposing ideological positions in the Communist world.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko returned to Moscow from five days of talks in Belgrade with top Yugoslav officials, including President Tito.

Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev left Peiping after signing a Soviet-Chinese trade protocol for 1962.

Tass reported Patolichev took time out during the six days' trade talks to meet Chinese Premier Chou En-lai. The official news agency's reports emphasized the friendly atmosphere of the visits, but gave little information on the substance of the high-level contacts.

The dispatches indicated that both Soviet officials had discussed a wide range of subjects not strictly connected with their visits.

Some Western observers speculated that Gromyko and Patolichev may have probed the sharply divided ideological positions of the two camps that have caused a serious split in the Communist world.

The Soviet delegation to Peiping and their hosts exchanged repeated avowals of friendship and unity.

The Chinese professed satisfaction with the trade pact.

But Western observers here noted that the Tass report of the trade protocol made no mention of Soviet credits sorely needed by the Chinese since the near collapse of their economy.

The pact provided for a straight exchange of Soviet heavy industrial goods for Chinese raw materials and light industrial goods.

Figures for the total trade turnover were not given by Tass, and the usual percentage figure for the increase over the last year also was missing.

Western experts noted that the final communique from the trade talks said they "also discussed questions of the further development of Soviet-Chinese economic cooperation."

This was interpreted by some here as indication that Moscow and Peiping still have not settled basic political arguments that have reduced Soviet aid to China to a trickle ni the last year.

Gromyko told reporters in Belgrade that his talks with Tito and other Yugoslav leaders has been "good, useful and sincere" and would lead to "further development of the relations between the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia."

Communist sources here have denied any possibility of an ideological reapproachment between Moscow and Belgrade. They have insisted that Gromyko's visit was intended only to cement governmental relations.

These sources said the Soviet Union repeatedly has rejected the idea of making a common cause with Yugoslav "revisionists" against Chinese and Albanian "dogmatists and sectarians." This stand is unchanged, they said.

However, Tass reported that Gromyko's discussions with the Yugoslav leaders showed their position on major international problems "identical or close."

Both sides also reaffirmed belief in Soviet policies of peaceful coexistence and East-West negotiations as the surest way to ease tensions and guarantee peace.

This is one of the most sensitive points in Moscow's dispute with Peiping, which has criticized the idea of peaceful coexistence and Soviet eagerness to negotiate with the West instead of following a tougher line.

White House Approves Bill On Addicts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has given full endorsement to a bill to permit courts to commit narcotics addicts to treatment hospitals rather than to prison, it was disclosed Saturday.

An aide to Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., said chances now appeared "very good" that the bill, lying formant for more than a year in the Senate judiciary committee, would be enacted by Congress this year.

It was introduced jointly last April by Keating and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N. Y. It was said to have bipartisan support.

It would provide that so-called "sick addicts" could be turned over to the custody of the U. S. Surgeon General and sent to hospitals for a maximum of three years treatment. The patient could then be released under a sort of parole setup whereby he would be required to report back at specific periods for "after-care" treatment.

Keating's assistant, Milton Eisenberg, said the legislation is patterned after a bill approved this year by the New York legislature. He said Keating wrote President Kennedy recently asking that he see what he could do to pry the "civil commitment" bill from committee.

The White House followed up within a few days, Eisenberg said, with a letter to Senate judiciary chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., endorsing the bill "without qualification."

Eisenberg said the commitment provision is one of three major sections of the bill.

Another section calls for construction of more treatment facilities for narcotics victims under a federal grant-aid program. The third part asks for a resolution requesting a White House conference on the problem of narcotic addiction.

Eisenberg said the bill would have no effect on present punitive provisions against "narcotics racketeers" or "pushers." They were also addicts.

Eisenberg said the bill would represent the first major change in narcotics laws in more than 15 years. He noted that in 1946 a comprehensive revision was undertaken providing among other things for a possible death penalty for persons convicted of selling narcotics to minors.

Child Is Tied To Bed After Raiding Icebox

HONOLULU (AP) — Felix Burnett Pedro, 5, went to bed hungry Thursday night.

His stepfather later caught him raiding the refrigerator and tied him to his bed.

Friday night—after a 20-hour period during which the boy was freed only long enough for two meals—the parents returned home from dining out with friends. They found the lifeless body of Felix dangling from a bedpost.

Police said the boy had been tied with a 15-foot length of rope so he could neither lie down nor bend and that the body bore rope burns from his ankles to his neck.

The stepfather, Fernando E. Gomez, 27, and the boy's mother, Marlene B. Gomez, 29, are in police custody on suspicion of manslaughter.

Police Detective William Tong said Gomez admitted punishing Felix by binding him to his double-bunk bed. Police learned of the case after Gomez took the child to a Navy dispensary for medical attention. The boy already was dead.

CHINA, YUGOSLAVIA

Top-Level Talks Are Held By Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — Top-level Soviet government figures ended simultaneous visits to the Communist capital of Yugoslavia and China. The two capitols have taken opposing ideological positions in the Communist world.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko returned to Moscow from five days of talks in Belgrade with top Yugoslav officials, including President Tito.

Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev left Peiping after signing a Soviet-Chinese trade protocol for 1962.

Tass reported Patolichev took time out during the six days' trade talks to meet Chinese Premier Chou En-lai. The official news agency's reports emphasized the friendly atmosphere of the visits, but gave little information on the substance of the high-level contacts.

The dispatches indicated that both Soviet officials had discussed a wide range of subjects not strictly connected with their visits.

Some Western observers speculated that Gromyko and Patolichev may have probed the sharply divided ideological positions of the two camps that have caused a serious split in the Communist world.

The Soviet delegation to Peiping and their hosts exchanged repeated avowals of friendship and unity.

The Chinese professed satisfaction with the trade pact.

But Western observers here noted that the Tass report of the trade protocol made no mention of Soviet credits sorely needed by the Chinese since the near collapse of their economy.

The pact provided for a straight exchange of Soviet heavy industrial goods for Chinese raw materials and light industrial goods.

Figures for the total trade turnover were not given by Tass, and the usual percentage figure for the increase over the last year also was missing.

Western experts noted that the final communique from the trade talks said they "also discussed questions of the further development of Soviet-Chinese economic cooperation."

This was interpreted by some here as indication that Moscow and Peiping still have not settled basic political arguments that have reduced Soviet aid to China to a trickle ni the last year.

Gromyko told reporters in Belgrade that his talks with Tito and other Yugoslav leaders has been "good, useful and sincere" and would lead to "further development of the relations between the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia."

Communist sources here have denied any possibility of an ideological reapproachment between Moscow and Belgrade. They have insisted that Gromyko's visit was intended only to cement governmental relations.

These sources said the Soviet Union repeatedly has rejected the idea of making a common cause with Yugoslav "revisionists" against Chinese and Albanian "dogmatists and sectarians." This stand is unchanged, they said.

However, Tass reported that Gromyko's discussions with the Yugoslav leaders showed their position on major international problems "identical or close."

Both sides also reaffirmed belief in Soviet policies of peaceful coexistence and East-West negotiations as the surest way to ease tensions and guarantee peace.

This is one of the most sensitive points in Moscow's dispute with Peiping, which has criticized the idea of peaceful coexistence and Soviet eagerness to negotiate with the West instead of following a tougher line.

Miner Found After Cave-In

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (UPI) Rescue teams Saturday removed one miner who was trapped almost a mile underground for three days, but found his companion dead.

A doctor, crawling through narrow, rock-cluttered shafts in the Macassa Gold Mine, found that the second miner, Ryszaro Witchzak, 38, had perished.

Earlier Saturday, rescuers had removed from the 4,200 foot level Russell Baskin, 34, who was found alive Friday night. Baskin was taken to a hospital for treatment.

The two men were trapped about midnight Wednesday when a rock slide blocked off the mine shafts. Baskin was found with a huge boulder pinning him against the walls of the shaft. It took rescuers—working in relay teams—almost 12 hours to free him.

Baskin, reported suffering from shock and "pressure sores" caused by the rocks pressing against his body, is the father of five.

Witchzak had three children. When Baskin was first found Friday night, incorrect word spread through the mining community that it was Witchzak that had been found alive.

When his tearful wife was told that it was not her husband who had been discovered, she collapsed and was put under sedation at her home.

Oil Executive Says He Met With Candidate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oil company executive Charles S. Jones said Saturday he was the Republican who met with gubernatorial candidate Joseph Shell to ask Shell to support Richard M. Nixon should Nixon win the GOP nomination.

Jones, chairman of the board of Richfield Oil Co., said the aura of mystery that was reported to surround the meeting did not exist.

He said that last January Shell called upon him to ask if he (Jones) would support him in the general election should Shell win the Republican nomination from the former Vice President.

"I told him I would," Jones said in a prepared release. "I told Mr. Shell my basic interest had always been in the Republican Party and I would do everything I could to help the party after the primary, and that I would certainly support him if he won."

The oil company official said it had never occurred to him to ask Shell if he, in turn, would support Nixon if he won the primary.

Greek Rioters To Be Tried In Demonstrations

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Forty-four antigovernment demonstrators, 19 of them described as extreme leftists, will be brought to trial next week on charges of rowdy behavior.

They were among 241 persons taken into custody by police in bitter street clashes Friday night. Police charged into thousands of rioters with tear gas and armored vehicles after a government opposition political group, the Center Union, defied a government ban on a public meeting to protest last October's election returns.

Police released 197 of the demonstrators taken into custody, describing them as mostly young hoodlums.

In the nearly five hours of rioting, 78 policemen and 71 demonstrators were injured. Seven demonstrators and 17 policemen were hospitalized.

Athens police chief Evanghelos Karabetsos said there was no further trouble Saturday and that police and army units were taken off an emergency alert.

In Omonoia Square, focal point of the rioting, shop windows were broken, but proprietors opened for business. It was there that riot police had hurled 300 tear gas grenades to disperse a stone-throwing mob.

The government claimed the riots were largely the work of extreme leftists, who took advantage of the public meeting call by George Papandreou, central union leader.

The government said Papandreou committed "uncontrollable folly" in going ahead with the public meeting despite an official ban. The statement said Papandreou, an anti-Communist, knew the extreme left would exploit the meeting.

Dad Will Hold Easter Service For Jailed Son

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — The father of a self-styled teen-age evangelist said Saturday he will give his son's scheduled Easter sermon at a Danbury church Wednesday.

The youth, Ronald Simmat, 17, is being held on a murder charge in connection with the holdup slaying of a 64-year-old liquor store owner last Monday.

The father, Otto Simmat, 62, also a part-time preacher, said he will give the sermon in his son's place at the request of the program committee of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church in Danbury.

Simmat said he had talked with his son at the New Haven state jail Friday and had gone over his sermon notes.

"His sermon covers the miracles of the Old Testament," Simmat said, "touching on the crumbling of the walls of Jericho to permit the entrance of the children of Israel to their new land.

"His sermon is timely at Easter time because of the Resurrection of Christ and shows great proximity with the religion of today."

Arrested in the shooting with young Simmat was Randall C. Floberg, 15, also of Milford. Police said Floberg fired the shots that killed the proprietor, but quoted the boy as saying he was forced to by Simmat. Simmat denied this.

The older Simmat said his son was intensely interested in the Bible and occasionally helped him with speaking engagements.

Storm Delivers Snow And Cold In Rocky Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A late spring storm brought snow and near-freezing temperatures to the eastern Rockies Saturday but pleasant weather is in prospect for most of the nation on Easter Sunday.

Sunny skies and balmy temperatures are in store for the eastern third of the nation. Showers and brisk winds but mild temperatures were forecast for the nation's midlands from the lower Mississippi Valley into lower Michigan. Fair and cooler was on tap for the Great Plains. Fair skies and somewhat higher temperatures were predicted for the Rockies, the northern Great Plains and plateau regions.

A cold front sweeping across the western Great Plains stirred up strong northerly winds over the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wyoming.

The front charged into Kansas on 70-mile winds, toppling some trees and power lines in Topeka. Ahead of it, the mercury rose to 85 in Kansas City, breaking the 1910 record for the date.

Locally heavy snow fell for a short period at Casper, Wyo., and readings were in the 30s and 40s.

Widespread showers and thunderstorm activity broke out across the upper Mississippi Valley and upper Great Lakes regions.

But sunny and mild weather was the rule in the East. Skies also were generally clear over the West, except for light rain in western Washington.

Temperatures were in the 70s and 80s over Florida and from Texas into Arkansas, southern Missouri and llinois.

Suspect Is Being Held

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Police Chief Wingate White said Saturday his office is holding a 45-year-old itinerant Texan as a fugitive from justice in a Mexico City murder case.

In jail is James Andrew Morrisey, a former San Benito, Tex., hotel worker, who told local officers he was present at the slaying of a vacationing Atlanta tire dealer last month in Mexico City.

Chief White said he has not yet been formally notified that Mexican authorities are seeking Morrisey's extradition, but he plans to hold the Texan until he receives definite word.

White said international extradition requests are normally place through the State Department and the President's office.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is also making an investigation of Morrisey's story that he witnessed the dumping of John L. Riddick's body over a steep cliff after Riddick was shot in Mexico City.

Morrisey, who also uses the name of John T. Curtis, was originally arrested here for vagrancy. Police said he described the fatal shooting of Riddick and detailed how he and another man disposed of the body.

A wanted circular from Mexico City said police there were searching for Morrisey and another man identified as James E. Corrigan, alias Hubert Rugger, Humberto Icaza and Hubert Icaza.

Morrisey also admitted he posed as the dead man after the shooting, signing checks in Riddick's name and making airline reservations to obtain the dead man's luggage.

He told officers that he and a friend from San Benito, met Riddick in a Mexico City hotel bar and took him driving on a sightseeing tour the following day.

Morrisey claimed he was asleep in the car when he was awakened by shots and saw Riddick's body lying on the ground.

Miner Found After Cave-In

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (UPI) Rescue teams Saturday removed one miner who was trapped almost a mile underground for three days, but found his companion dead.

A doctor, crawling through narrow, rock-cluttered shafts in the Macassa Gold Mine, found that the second miner, Ryszaro Witchzak, 38, had perished.

Earlier Saturday, rescuers had removed from the 4,200 foot level Russell Baskin, 34, who was found alive Friday night. Baskin was taken to a hospital for treatment.

The two men were trapped about midnight Wednesday when a rock slide blocked off the mine shafts. Baskin was found with a huge boulder pinning him against the walls of the shaft. It took rescuers—working in relay teams—almost 12 hours to free him.

Baskin, reported suffering from shock and "pressure sores" caused by the rocks pressing against his body, is the father of five.

Witchzak had three children. When Baskin was first found Friday night, incorrect word spread through the mining community that it was Witchzak that had been found alive.

When his tearful wife was told that it was not her husband who had been discovered, she collapsed and was put under sedation at her home.

Oil Executive Says He Met With Candidate

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oil company executive Charles S. Jones said Saturday he was the Republican who met with gubernatorial candidate Joseph Shell to ask Shell to support Richard M. Nixon should Nixon win the GOP nomination.

Jones, chairman of the board of Richfield Oil Co., said the aura of mystery that was reported to surround the meeting did not exist.

He said that last January Shell called upon him to ask if he (Jones) would support him in the general election should Shell win the Republican nomination from the former Vice President.

"I told him I would," Jones said in a prepared release. "I told Mr. Shell my basic interest had always been in the Republican Party and I would do everything I could to help the party after the primary, and that I would certainly support him if he won."

The oil company official said it had never occurred to him to ask Shell if he, in turn, would support Nixon if he won the primary.

Greek Rioters To Be Tried In Demonstrations

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Forty-four antigovernment demonstrators, 19 of them described as extreme leftists, will be brought to trial next week on charges of rowdy behavior.

They were among 241 persons taken into custody by police in bitter street clashes Friday night. Police charged into thousands of rioters with tear gas and armored vehicles after a government opposition political group, the Center Union, defied a government ban on a public meeting to protest last October's election returns.

Police released 197 of the demonstrators taken into custody, describing them as mostly young hoodlums.

In the nearly five hours of rioting, 78 policemen and 71 demonstrators were injured. Seven demonstrators and 17 policemen were hospitalized.

Athens police chief Evanghelos Karabetsos said there was no further trouble Saturday and that police and army units were taken off an emergency alert.

In Omonoia Square, focal point of the rioting, shop windows were broken, but proprietors opened for business. It was there that riot police had hurled 300 tear gas grenades to disperse a stone-throwing mob.

The government claimed the riots were largely the work of extreme leftists, who took advantage of the public meeting call by George Papandreou, central union leader.

The government said Papandreou committed "uncontrollable folly" in going ahead with the public meeting despite an official ban. The statement said Papandreou, an anti-Communist, knew the extreme left would exploit the meeting.

AT SWANK HOTEL

'Liz And Dickie Are Vacationing

PORTO S'NTO STEFANO, Italy (UPI) — 'lizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton left movie-making and marital problems behind Saturday to spend an Easter weekend at a luxury seaside hotel here.

Miss Taylor and her 36-year-old leading man, who plays Marc Anthony to her Cleopatra in a new film, drove the 100 miles north from Rome to Porto Santo Stefano Saturday morning.

The couple went to the hotel situated on an isolated promontory five miles from here. The hotel said Miss Taylor and Burton were staying in bungalows at the resort.

Miss Taylor's four children remained at their mother's villa in Rome with the nurses and other servants.

It was not known how long Burton and the 30-year-old actress planned to remain here but they are not scheduled to go to work until Tuesday.

Burton and Miss Taylor braved high winds and cloudy skies to go to the hotel beach together. The couple, the only ones on the rocky beach, stood holding hands and gazing out at the sea. They spent several hours there before returning to the hotel.

Hotel personnel said Miss Taylor and Burton also spent last weekend at the "Cala Piccola." It was known that they had left Rome but until now it was not known where they went.

In recent years, Porto Santo Stefano and the rest of the small Argentario peninsula, connected to the mainland by a narrow strip of land, has become an exclusive resort for Italians and foreigners.

5 Americans Jailed After Cuban Jaunt

MIAMI (UPI)—Five Americans charged with hijacking an airplane and stealing a shrimp boat to get to Cuba, only to be sent back, were held in jail here Saturday in lieu of stiff bonds.

A sixth, the pilot who charged he was kidnaped at gunpoint and forced to fly to Havana, went free.

The six returned here Friday on a regular commercial airline flight from Havana, apparently with no tip from Cuban officials that they were coming.

The FBI, notified by U.S. Immigration officials, arrested Leonard Malcolm Oeth, 28, and David Thomas Healy, 22, on charges of kidnaping Miami pilot Woodruff Mead after engaging his plane for a sight-seeing flight around Miami on April 13, then forcing him to fly to Cuba.

Charged with stealing the 58-foot shrimp trawler Teresa and Julia were Clarence Lee Jones, 25, William Thomas, 22, and Richard A. Cobb, 30. They were accused of taking the ship from Key West the day after the trio in the plane disappeared, but the FBI said there was no connection between the two incidents.

U. S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis set bond at $50,000 each for Oeth, of Miami and Healy, of Coral Gables. They will be given a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Bond for the other three was set at $25,000 each. They waived hearing and were held pending either grand jury action or filing of an information by the U. S. attorney.

Official Set With Murder Case Appeal

DANDRIDGE, Tenn. (UPI)—District Atty. Gen. Henry F. Swann said Saturday he will have an appeal ready when the State Supreme Court opens its May term in Knoxville April 30 in efforts to untangle a murder case that set legal precedents in Tennessee.

About all Swann may do under the law is appeal from Cricuit Judge Wayne Oliver's ruling of April 6 dismissing the case against Carl Myers, 39, and James Allen Horton, 19, after efforts to empanel a jury failed. The men still are held under bond of $25,000 each, but chances of their being brought to trial a third time in Hancock County are slim.

The men were among six charged in connection with a gunbattle at Sneedville exactly one year ago in which three law enforcement officers were killed and Sheriff Verlin Maxey seriously wounded. Four were acquitted last September, but a mistrial was called for Myers and Horton when the jury tried to "retract" its verdict.

Their second trial earlier this month ended before it begun when only two jurors could be found. Virtually the entire adult population of Hancock County, which showed 7,700 residents in the 1960 census, now has been questioned for jury duty and dismissed.

Judge Gives First Order In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A federal judge Saturday temporarily struck down alleged voter discrimination in George County, taking notice circuit clerk Elred W. Green failed to deny Department of Justice charges.

U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox issued the 10-day restraining order, the first in Mississippi favoring the Justice Department. He said Green "must desist from any discriminatory official acts in registering qualified Negroes to vote . . . ."

The order was not specifically requested by Justice Department attorneys, who charged Green denied six George County Negroes the right to vote although they were qualified.

However, the order did not specify that Green must immediately register the six Negroes as asked in the Justice Department's injunction suit.

Judge Cox set a hearing for April 30 on a temporary injunction request, seeking immediate registration of the Negroes—four of them with college degrees. The other two are high school graduates.

"The complaint and supporting affidavits and inexcapable inferences from the affidavits and circumstances stated," Judge Cox wrote, "lead to the conclusion that the plaintiff is entitled to a restraining order. . . ."

Judge Cox said the prohibitory ruling would be spelled out in an official order to Green.

U.S. Atty. Robert Owens had charged that the Negroes were denied their rights because Green applied more stringent standards to Negro applicants than white persons.

Justice Department attorneys charged Green required Negro voting applicants to appear before the county election commission for final determination of their qualifications and then were forced to wait several months for a decision.

Taking notice of Green's refusal to deny charges or represent himself at a hearing, Judge Cox said on Friday he "apparently was misguided in his registering procedures."

Asst. State Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands, representing Green, attempted only to strike down the request for a temporary restraining order.

The Negroes named in the suit were Charles Grant, 56, Bachelor of Science degree; Mrs. Maybird Grant, 42, BS; Inez Wilson, 46, high school; James Talbert, 57, high school; Mrs. Ernestine Talbert, 32, BS; and Robert Alexander, college graduate with graduate work at Tuskegee Institute.

George County has 850 adult Negroes and 5,276 adult whites. The Justice Department waid a majority of the whites were registered while only 10 Negroes were registered.

AT SWANK HOTEL

'Liz And Dickie Are Vacationing

PORTO SANTO STEFANO, Italy (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton left movie-making and marital problems behind Saturday to spend an Easter weekend at a luxury seaside hotel here.

Miss Taylor and her 36-year-old leading man, who plays Marc Anthony to her Cleopatra in a new film, drove the 100 miles north from Rome to Porto Santo Stefano Saturday morning.

The couple went to the hotel situated on an isolated promontory five miles from here. The hotel said Miss Taylor and Burton were staying in bungalows at the resort.

Miss Taylor's four children remained at their mother's villa in Rome with the nurses and other servants.

It was not known how long Burton and the 30-year-old actress planned to remain here but they are not scheduled to go to work until Tuesday.

Burton and Miss Taylor braved high winds and cloudy skies to go to the hotel beach together. The couple, the only ones on the rocky beach, stood holding hands and gazing out at the sea. They spent several hours there before returning to the hotel.

Hotel personnel said Miss Taylor and Burton also spent last weekend at the "Cala Piccola." It was known that they had left Rome but until now it was not known where they went.

In recent years, Porto Santo Stefano and the rest of the small Argentario peninsula, connected to the mainland by a narrow strip of land, has become an exclusive resort for Italians and foreigners.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Heavy rains flooded parts of Tehran Saturday, inundating 400 houses and making several thousand homeless. Officials said seven persons, including four children, drowned. Unofficial reports said the death toll was 15, including eight children.

Monroe Drillers Complete 2 Rigs; 13 New Stakings

Monroe Oil and Gas District drillers managed two completions last week over the 14 parish area, with reports of finals coming to District Manager Duncan Cook from Catahoula and Concordia Parishes.

The rigs are in the Tew Lake and the Roseland Fields, respectively.

Other early spring activity saw stakings of 13 new locations over the area, with two of them spotted in Ouachita Parish, the Monroe Field. The Monroe Field in Union Parish reported new well sites spotted at four locations.

LaSalle Parish led the area in rigs actively drilling or testing, however, by recording eight, five of them in the Tullos - Urania Field.

Ouachita Parish reported only one such location, but it apparently had sparked a new interest in oil explorations in the Chenier Field. Unofficial reports from Humble Oil's Cadeville SUM; Werner No. 1 in section 9-17-2E indicated encounters with Cadeville Sand of a thickness approaching 15 feet. Core samplings reportedly showed high saturation and potentially good production from approximately nine to 10 feet in tne stratum.

Last week's report showed the well drilled down to 9880 feet and plans were to continue testing below the formation. A well less than a mile from Humble's sand discovery was plugged and abondoned.

Elsewhere over the district, five wells were listed as plugged and abandoned last week and the total on inactive sites was set at 95. Locations numbered 52.

There were three re - completions, one each in Concordia, LaSalle and Tensas Parishes. They were identified as: in the Lake St. John Field (Concordia), the California Company's Louisiana State No. 4; the Nebo - Hemphill Field (LaSalle), E. T. Nichols' Z. R. Williams Estate No. 1; and, in the Buckhorn Field (Tensas), Humble Oil's V. A. Anderson No. 2-D.

Other reports out of Cook's Conservation Commission offices in Monroe listed a hearing scheduled for April 26 in Shreveport pertaining to the Skelly Oil Company's Werner "G" No. 1, cancelled at the request of the applicant. Located in Ouachita Parish, the Cheniere Field, section 3-17N-2E, the well was abandoned March 23, as not commercially productive.

Cook also announced plans to attend a District Managers' meeting Monday in Baton Rouge where oil allowables will be set for the next two months (May and June). He will be accompanied by Monroe District petroleum engineer B. F. Anderson. Both are due to return Tuesday. All six districts in the state will be represented at the session, Cook said.

Big Business Is Developed Under Grant

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—A little over a month from now will pass the 25th birthday of an idea born under a $100 grant from a university and destined to produce what amounted to a $62 million business last year.

Three men collaborated on the work at a Stanford University laboratory in 1937 which led to development of the klystron, a microwave tube used in radar, later in television, and in types of atom smashers and in communications.

The three, now dead, were Russell S. Varian; his brother Sigurd, once a Pan American World Airways pilot; and William W. Hansen, professor in the department of physics at Stanford.

Originally, they gathered to work on a high voltage problem. But from their research, the concept of the klystron began to take shape about the first week of June, 1937, according to the Sperry Gyroscope Company, now a division of Sperry Rand Corporation. The klystron was tested two months later and was patented in October of that year.

Russell Varian said his brother Sigurd was at that time "very concerned about the striking power of aircraft in the hands of the dictators" as he reared a "sneak" blow in bad weather or at night, when there was no existing means of adequate detection.

"I began to make some tentative suggestions which amounted to an outline oft he characteristics of modern radar," Russell Varian said. "As a pshysicist, I knew that, in order to direct beams of radio waves with a very small spread, the waves would have to be much shorter than any at present in use."

In the course of three or four months, a tube which operated finally was developed.

One of the first persons to look at the klystron was H. Hugh Willis, then chief resident engineer of the Sperry Gyroscope Company. He wired immediately to his home office; let's sponsor it.

The project was transferred to the Sperry research laboratory in Garden City, N. Y., in the fall of 1940. The war spurred development. Varian wrote, "the first actual use of klystrons in radar equipment was made by the British."

The klystron, with its function as a microwave—ultra short-wave —generator, continues in widespread use in radar, for planes and ships; in television, where it is used in transmitting and receiving, and in long-range communications.

The Sperry electronic tube division of Sperry and others are now making high power klystrons for use in an atom smasher being built by Stanford University.

When the smahser goes into operation, the klystron will in a sense be going to work back home.

State Oil Group Sets Convention In New Orleans

The Eleventh annual convention of the Louisiana Oil Marketers Association will be held in New Orleans on May 3-5, it has been announced by Monroe members of the organization.

The convention committee chairman, Thomas J. Hyland of Monroe, stated that a "full program has been scheduled for the convention this year."

Other members of LOMA from this area are: Cecil M. Hill, John Sherrouse Jr., J. C. Burgess, R. M. Beasley, John Myers, D. V. Loflin Jr., R. Roy Riley and Gordon Surgine, all of Monroe; William P. Heard and James W. Moore, both of West Monroe.

LOMA is the organization of gasoline and oil products wholesalers for Louisiana. Its membership is composed of independent and branded name jobbers, commission agents, consignees, and bulk plant re-sellers.

Features of the program will include a panel discussion on "Marketing — Commission Agent and Jobber". The addresses will be given by William W. Bryan, vice president for marketing of Humble Oil and Refining Company and G. M. Sullivan, vice president for marketing of Continental Oil Company, both of Houston, Tex.

The president of the organization, Fred A. Palmer Jr. of Gonzales, will preside at the three - day convention.

Mississippi Completes 2 Oil, One Gas

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—An extension well near the new Lazy Creek field in Pike County is testing at 22 barrels of oil daily. Field drilling during the past week finaled two oilers and one gas well.

Smith - Best - Lee and Ladner's No. 1 Felder, sec. 9-4n-8e, located a half mile north of the Lazy Creek discovery well, is in a lower Tuscaloosa sand at 10,-722-32 feet. The lazy Creek field is within a mile of the producing limits of the Little Creek field.

Meanwhile, Mississippi oil producers closely watched the offshore test in Lake Borgne, La., by the Shell Oil Co. The test is below 16,250 feet in the State Lease 3748 No. 1.

The venture is less than 900 feet from the Mississippi line off Hancock County. Shell holds adjacent offshore leases in the Mississippi waters of 95,000 acres.

Mississippi has no offshore production. However, if the Shell well is commercial, offshore drilling in Mississippi could be expected to begin immediately.

In the Yellow Creek field of Wayne County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. has cemented three strings of tubing to a depth of 11,570 feet in its Norsworth No. 1, sec. 18-9n-6w, with no information being released.

Humble has been testing for the past several months its U.S.A. No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, in the Yellow Creek field from three deep sands with no information released. The current producing level in the semi-shallow field is about 5,100 feet.

Humble is also below 6,900 feet in its Holmesville area, Pike County wildcat. The Holmesville oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-9e, is a 13,500-foot venture.

The important test is located between the Little Creek field of Pike and Lincoln counties and the Kokomo gas field of Walthall County.

In Amite County, two important tests are underway.

Marshall R. Young Drilling Co. is below 10,000 feet in the Westbrook No. 1, sec. 4-4n-6e, four miles north of the Smithdale field. Gammill and Smith are moving in drilling rigs at their Moyse Estate No. 1, sec. 3-2n-6e, approximately three miles northwest of the McElveen field.

In Wayne County, approximately a mile north of the Chaparral field, Petroleum Management, Inc. is below 3,100 feet in the unit No. 12-5, sec. 12-10n-7w, a 10,500 foot test.

Also in Wayne County, Pan American is below 4,800 feet in its Mozingo No. 1, sec. 6-8n-7w, a 5,800 foot try.

Completed last week were:

The Berry No. 1, sec. 5-1n-13e, pumping 65 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 9,626-36 feet at Dexter in Marion County, by Trans-state Oil Co.

Central Oil Company's unit No. 26-4, sec. 26-2n-5e, pumping 224 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 12,171-86 feet in the Martinville field of Simpson County.

California Co.'s Waggoner No. 1, sec. 10-2n-12e, flowing 3.6 million cubic feet of gas per day from a sand at 12,842-82 feet in the Knoxo field of Marion County.

Steel Drops, Other Stocks Post Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels continued to decline last week but the stock market as a whole made a moderate recovery, posting its first weekly advance in five weeks.

So far as the steels were concerned, Wall Street drew no encouragement from President Kennedy's news conference statements that he bore no ill will toward the industry. Following the prior week's crisis, when the steel industry was compelled to cancel a $6-a-ton price increase, the investment community apparently anticipated something more concrete from the President, possibly some new evidence of help in what the steel mills regard as a "profit squeeze."

Lacking anything of this nature, the steels, after perking up a bit, slid downward again.

The rest of the market did quite well on balance, responding to selective investment demand. After a four-week decline, many stocks seemed within buying range and the large size of many transactions seemed to indicate that institutional investors were nibbling at the market again.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 2.80 to 254.50.

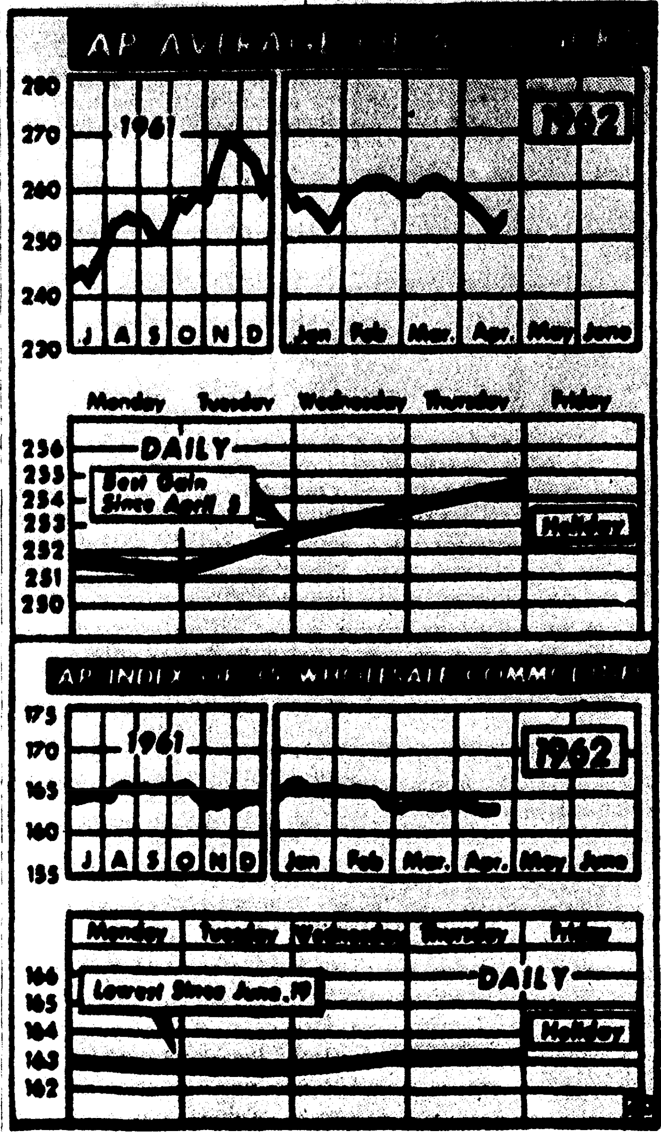
Volume for the four-day trading week totaled 12,459,120 shares compared with 15,924,308 for the days in the week before. Average daily trading was 3,114,780 shares, a shade below the prior week's.

Of 1,462 issues traded, 830 advanced and 467 declined.

Many bond prices during the week reached their highest level in about a year. U.S. government bonds gained as much as ⅜ of a point while all sections of the corporate list picked up ground.

Trading was light among governments but fairly active among corporates on the New York Stock Exchange. Corporate volume for the four-day week, shortened by the Good Friday holiday, fell to $24,040,000 par value from $30,-348,000 for the previous five-session week.

FINANCIAL $OIL-GAS$ NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks showed its first weekly gain in five weeks when it closed this holiday week at 254.5 from 251.7 a week ago. The Commodity Index, with food showing best performance, moved higher this week for the first time in three weeks, closing at 163.1 from 163.0. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Steel Company Keeps Tradition

EDITOR'S NOTE — The decision of one company, Inland Steel of Chicago, last week upset the announced determination of "big steel" to raise its prices. The company and the men who run Inland have long had a reputation for independent thinking and operation. The following dispatch reports why and how Inland Steel decided to hold the price line.)

By DAVID SMOTHERS
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI)—It's a tradition at Inland Steel Co. that nobody tells it what to do.

Inland, the nation's eighth largest steel producer, decided on Friday the 13th last week that even "big steel" couldn't tell it what to do.

A transpacific telephone call to a man 6,300 miles away determined Inland's decision to break away from the ranks of steelmakers and to refuse to raise its prices.

Within a few hours of the time Inland's decision was announced in the company's stainless steel Chicago skyscraper, "big steel" had gone back on its announcement that it would start charging $6 more per ton.

By deciding to go their own way, the men who run Inland had in effect, told "big steel" where to go. Like a row of dominoes, the price increase orders of bigger and richer companies toppled.

Inland's decision came as a shock to many of the biggest men in steel. It shouldn't have.

Ever since Inland was founded in 1893 with $65,000 capital—most of borrowed—the company has had a reputation for making up its own mind. It has raised prices when the rest of the industry did not want to. That was after World War II when Inland tried unsuccessfully to boost its rail rates. It had held out against labor when other steel companies wanted to settle. That was in 1956, when Inland was one of the last firms to come to terms with striking steelworkers. On one memorable occasion, the chairman of Inland's board, Clarence B. Randall, went on the radio to denounce President Truman for "an evil deed, without precedent in American history"—the federal seizure of the steel mills in 1952.

The two key men who made up Inland's mind last week are direct heirs of the company's independent tradition. Joseph L. Block chairman of the board, and Philip D. Block Jr., vice chairman, are like-thinking cousins, grandsons of company founder Joseph D. Block.

When Inland's time for decision came last week, the cousins were thousands of miles apart. Phil Block was in Chicago huddling with his top executives on the impact of U.S. Steel's price increase announcement. Joe Block was touring the Orient on a month's vacation with his wife Lucille.

Whatever the decision would be, 59-year-old Joe Block was the man to make it. A small, quiet man, he has a liking for old pipes, Civil War history, and civic leadership in his lifelong home town of Chicago. He also has a background of service as millhand, editor of his college newspaper, member of the war production board during World War II, and highly successful captain of Inland Steel.

Block also happens to be a member of President Kennedy's advisory committee on labor management relations and a close friend of another well-known Chicagoan, Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg.

The thinking of Inland's boss does not always dovetail with that of other top steel men. He isn't as wary as many of government's role in business. Not long ago he said in a speech "we hear some of our colleagues repeatedly assert that government, in a free society, has no place whatsoever in economic affairs. But such a viewpoint is contrary to historic fact and totally unrealistic . . . government must point the way, for only government is representative of all the people . . ."

Under Block's leadership Inland was sitting pretty when its larger competitors decided to go for more money.

The company, with its annual capacity of 6.5 million tons of steel, had earned $54.6 million in 1961, more than $7 million above its 1960 total. Sales were down slightly, but the firm had been running at near full capacity since last September.

Phil Block looked over the figures in Chicago and conferred with the company's president, John F. Smith Jr. Then he picked up the telephone in the late afternoon of April 12 and put in a person to person call to his cousin.

Joe Block picked up the telephone in his hotel room at Kyoto Japan. He talked with Smith and his cousin for close to an hour, listening to their report of the controversy raging back home over big steel.

The decision was scheduled for announcement at 11 a.m. the next morning in Chicago. But hours before the decision was common knowledge from Kyoto to Pittsburgh.

A Chicago foreign correspondent, Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News, learned Block's whereabouts and called him. Beech asked the obvious question: "Do you think Inland should raise its prices?" Block said "no." Beech's story had been printed from coast to coast before Phil Block stood up before reporters in Chicago and announced:

"In full recognition of the national interest and competitive factors the company feels that it is untimely to make any upward adjustments."

Inland, itself a powerful member of "big steel," had reached its decision after a highly practical examination of its competitive standing and of the possible effect of a steel price increase on the national economy.

UPI Chicago Financial Editor William Gruber talked with men close to Inland's management and reported these factors in the decision that rocked the steel industry:

—Inland had nothing to gain immediately from a possible shift of government contracts to steel mills holding the price line. This was because Inland already had all the contracts it could handle and would probably not have been able to take on much extra business.

—Inland was not basically opposed to a price increase. In fact, the company is definitely for one sometime in the future. But Block and his lieutenants felt the stability of the industry and the economy should not be disturbed so soon after the end of union negotiations. The price change should come when it would have less dramatic effect and stir up less controversy, Inland management reasoned.

—Contrary to speculation, there was no direct pressure on Inland from the White House, even though Inland's decision gave President Kennedy's administration one of its greatest victories.

—Inland knew it wasn't big enough to be a price-setter for industry. But it didn't think U.S. Steel was big enough, either.

As the smoke cleared from Joe Block's bombshell, an Inland man said with a touch of satisfaction: "U.S. Steel is big, but not that big."

STEEL PRODUCTION DROPS

Kennedy, Blough Meet Termed 'Cordial, Useful'

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The boiling battle between the government and the steel industry simmered nessmen remained gun-shy.

The armistice began Tuesday night when Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., called on President Kennedy. It was just a week since Blough had made another call to tell him of a $6-a-ton steel price increase.

The only word that came out of the second meeting was that it was "cordial and useful."

Then on Wednesday, Kennedy, who had used the government's biggest torpedoes to force the steel companies to back down on the price increase, displayed a conciliatory attitude.

"This administration harbors no ill will against any individual, corporation or segment of the American economy," he told his news conference.

The President indicated there would be no punitive action against the steel companies. Nevertheless, a federal grand jury in New York City went ahead with its investigation of steel pricing, and Sen. Estes Kefauver's Senate Antitrust subcommittee showered the 12 biggest steel firms with subpoenaes for their records.

Kennedy denied that the government was setting prices and said its interest was in preventing an inflationary spiral. And he said he felt his actions in rolling back the price increase would be of assistance in getting passage of tax credit legislation intended to help industry modernize.

H. Ladd Plumley, president-elect of the U.S. Chamber of Comvoce, said he believed that "business and the public were surprised and shocked at some of the governmental reactions" to the price increase and that the battle had "an increasingly disquieting effect" among businessmen and investors.

Republic Steel Corp., No. 3 producer, reported first-quarter earnings of $15,623,356, or 99 cents a share, on sales of $314,016,883, substantially higher than a year ago—during the depth of the recession—but sharply lower than in 1960 and 1959. President T. F. Patton said a comparison with the 1959 first quarter "shows the erosion of our position since the time of our last general price increase in 1958."

Steel production suffered one of its sharpest drops when output was 2,244,000 tons, off 5 per cent from the previous week. It was expected to continue dropping because inventory building ended when labor peace was achieved.

Heavy production in the automobile industry was a factor in maintaining steel at as good a level as it is. An estimated 148,000 passenger cars were turned out during the week, the best record of the year.

Car sales moved at a swift pace in the first 10 days of April, when dealers disposed of 190,494 American-made vehicles. This was an increase of 48 per cent over the same period of 1961.

Chrysler Corp., first of the automakers to report first - quarter earnings, showed a profit of $1.3 million on sales of $498 million, compared with a loss of $21.9 million on sales of $432 million in the comparable 1961 quarter.

Other developments:

A substantial improvement in the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit was registered in the first three months of this year. The government said the annual rate of the deficit dropped from $6 billion in the 1962 fourth quarter to $2.5 billion.

The annual rate of personal income increased to $435.3 billion in March, representing a gain of $2 billion over February and $28 billion over March 1961. The Comoerce Department attributed most of the gain to higher wages and salaries.

Private housing starts in March climbed to an annual rate of 1,409,000 units, a gain of 23 per cent over February which made up most of the loss during a slack winter.

Stockholders approved the proposed merger of American Air-lines and Eastern Air Lines. Trans World Airlines protested to the Civil Aeronautics Board, which planned to start a hearing on the combination May 10.

Briefly around the business scene: "The Bell System plans to spend $2.8 billion on construction this year, the most ever spent by a company in a single year. . . . Wholesale food prices dropped to the lowest level in two years. . . . Chairman James M. Symes of the Pennsylvania Railroad predicted the proposed merger with the New York Central would be completed by mid-1963.

New Concept Noticed For House Buying

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—The house hunter this spring may do his shopping in a unique "department store of homes."

He may even buy the store itself. It's a pre-cut, low-cost, easy-to-assemble a-frame structure, suitable for vacation home, guest house, business or professional office, community or club building.

The department store concept of house shopping as adopted by Ira H. Gordon, president of Swift Homes, Inc., Elizabeth, Pa., when he decided most buyers of pre-cut homes need more than floor plans to go by.

Versatility of design, Gordon said has been a big selling feature in the pre-cut home field.

Gordon entered the home building business in 1949 with $15,000—and an idea in merchandising.

He took his cue from the auto industry, offering new homes and designs every year and assisting with financing. "We often give financing where banks have refused," Gordon said, "because we know that with reliable persons the last payment to be delinquent usually is the payment on the home."

Swift designers offer the homeowner a wide selection of color materials and authentic designs to give each home individual distinction. Family-tested floor plans are provided for each model but the prospective homeonwer is free to plan the interior of his home to fit his own needs.

Theh ome is designed so the buyer can erect it himself if he chooses. In the early 1950s, Gordon said, almost 90 per cent of the pre-cut homes sold were completely built by their owners. In the past few years, however, he said, the trend has been toward swift building the home planned by the buyer.

This "department store of homes" is being featured by Swift franchised distributors in 20 states.

As a second home or small-family home, costing less than a new car, the 24 by 24-foot a-frame offers a choice of floor plan with three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bath, or cathedral vaulted living room, kitchen, bath and two bedrooms. Non-supporting partitions are moveable and the interior needs little finishing. The front consists of glass windows and sliding glass panels and the rear is a balconied double-deck. The combined wall-roof construction rejects water and snow and offers little resistance to wind, making it ideal at lakeside, ocean or wooded area.

Cotton Future Prices Mixed At Week's End

WEEKLY COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of cotton futures moved irregularly on the New York Cotton Exchange and closed mixed this week.

Active futures contracts ranged from 20 cents a bale higher to $1.60 a bale lower than a week earlier. The sharpest decline came in the distant October contracts.

A general slowness of business in the domestic market during the week continued to reflect a lack of significant developments. Much of the activity consisted of switching and straddling.

The Cotton Exchange Bureau estimated that cotton consumption so far this season was higher than a year ago. Last month, it said, 715,000 bales were used, bringing consummption for the first eight months of the season to 6,093,000 bales.

Through March, 1961, consumption was only 5,581,000 bales.

Exports by this country during the week ended April 17 were estimated by the service bureau at 84,000 bales, compared with 88,-000 a week earlier and 215,000 in the comparable week a year ago.

For the season an estimated 3,-712,000 bales have been exported. At the same period last season the total was 5,456,000 bales.

Record Revenue Shown In Olin's Quarter Report

Sales and earnings for 1961 have been restated to reflect the inclusion of sales and errnings of Squibb - Mathieson International Corporation, $1,169,000 and $756,-700 (or $0.06 per share), and to exclude $4,159,000 of sales of nuclear fuels operation.

In a preliminary report, the corporation noted that all six of the company's domestic operating divisions registered sales gains.

Monroe Drillers Complete 2 Rigs; 13 New Stakings

Monroe Oil and Gas District drillers managed two completions last week over the 14 parish area, with reports of finals coming to District Manager Duncan Cook from Catahoula and Concordia Parishes.

The rigs are in the Tew Lake and the Roseland Fields, respectively.

Other early spring activity saw stakings of 13 new locations over the area, with two of them spotted in Ouachita Parish, the Monroe Field. The Monroe Field in Union Parish reported new well sites spotted at four locations.

LaSalle Parish led the area in rigs actively drilling or testing, however, by recording eight, five of them in the Tullos - Urania Field.

Ouachita Parish reported only one such location, but it apparently had sparked a new interest in oil explorations in the Chenier Field. Unofficial reports from Humble Oil's Cadeville SUM; Werner No. 1 in section 9-17-2E indicated encounters with Cadeville Sand of a thickness approaching 15 feet. Core samplings reportedly showed high saturation and potentially good production from approximately nine to 10 feet in the stratum.

Last week's report showed the well drilled down to 9880 feet and plans were to continue testing below the formation. A well less than a mile from Humble's sand discovery was plugged and abondoned.

Elsewhere over the district, five wells were listed as plugged and abandoned last week and the total on inactive sites was set at 95. Locations numbered 52.

There were three re - completions, one each in Concordia, LaSalle and Tensas Parishes. They were identified as: in the Lake St. John Field (Concordia), the California Company's Louisiana State No. 4; the Nebo - Hemphill Field (LaSalle), E. T. Nichols' Z. R. Williams Estate No. 1; and, in the Buckhorn Field (Tensas), Humble Oil's V. A. Anderson No. 2-D.

Other reports out of Cook's Conservation Commission offices in Monroe listed a hearing scheduled for April 26 in Shreveport pertaining to the Skelly Oil Company's Werner "G" No. 1, cancelled at the request of the applicant. Located in Ouachita Parish, the Cheniere Field, section 3-17N-2E, the well was abandoned March 23, as not commercially productive.

Cook also announced plans to attend a District Managers' meeting Monday in Baton Rouge where oil allowables will be set for the next two months (May and June). Big Business Is Developed Under Grant

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—A little over a month from now will pass the 25th birthday of an idea born under a $100 grant from a university and destined to produce what amounted to a $62 million business last year.

Three men collaborated on the work at a Stanford University laboratory in 1937 which led to development of the klystron, a microwave tube used in radar, later in television, and in types of atom smashers and in communications.

The three, now dead, were Russell S. Varian; his brother Sigurd, once a Pan American World Airways pilot; and William W. Hansen, professor in the department of physics at Stanford.

Originally, they gathered to work on a high voltage problem. But from their research, the concept of the klystron began to take shape about the first week of June, 1937, according to the Sperry Gyroscope Company, now a division of Sperry Rand Corporation. The klystron was tested two months later and was patented in October of that year.

Russell Varian said his brother Sigurd was at that time "very concerned about the striking power of aircraft in the hands of the dictators" as he reared a "sneak" blow in bad weather or at night, when there was no existing means of adequate detection.

"I began to make some tentative suggestions which amounted to an outline oft he characteristics of modern radar," Russell Varian said. "As a pshysicist, I knew that, in order to direct beams of radio waves with a very small spread, the waves would have to be much shorter than any at present in use."

In the course of three or four months, a tube which operated finally was developed.

One of the first persons to look at the klystron was H. Hugh Willis, then chief resident engineer of the Sperry Gyroscope Company. He wired immediately to his home office; let's sponsor it.

The project was transferred to the Sperry research laboratory in Garden City, N. Y., in the fall of 1940. The war spurred development. Varian wrote, "the first actual use of klystrons in radar equipment was made by the British."

The klystron, with its function as a microwave—ultra short-wave—generator, continues in widespread use in radar, for planes and ships; in television, where it is used in transmitting and receiving, and in long-range communications.

The Sperry electronic tube division of Sperry and others are now making high power klystrons for use in an atom smasher being built by Stanford University.

When the smahser goes into operation, the klystron will in a sense be going to work back home.

Mississippi Completes 2 Oil, One Gas

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—An extension well near the new Lazy Creek field in Pike County is testing at 22 barrels of oil daily. Field drilling during the past week finaled two oilers and one gas well.

Smith - Best - Lee and Ladner's No. 1 Felder, sec. 9-4n-8e, located a half mile north of the Lazy Creek discovery well, is in a lower Tuscaloosa sand at 10,-722-32 feet. The lazy Creek field is within a mile of the producing limits of the Little Creek field.

Meanwhile, Mississippi oil producers closely watched the offshore test in Lake Borgne, La., by the Shell Oil Co. The test is below 16,250 feet in the State Lease 3748 No. 1.

The venture is less than 900 feet from the Mississippi line off Hancock County. Shell holds adjacent offshore leases in the Mississippi waters of 95,000 acres.

Mississippi has no offshore production. However, if the Shell well is commercial, offshore drilling in Mississippi could be expected to begin immediately.

In the Yellow Creek field of Wayne County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. has cemented three strings of tubing to a depth of 11,570 feet in its Norsworth No. 1, sec. 18-9n-6w, with no information being released.

Humble has been testing for the past several months its U.S.A. No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, in the Yellow Creek field from three deep sands with no information released. The current producing level in the semi-shallow field is about 5,100 feet.

Humble is also below 6,900 feet in its Holmesville area, Pike County wildcat. The Holmesville oil unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-9e, is a 13,500-foot venture.

The important test is located between the Little Creek field of Pike and Lincoln counties and the Kokomo gas field of Walthall County.

In Amite County, two important tests are underway.

Marshall R. Young Drilling Co. is below 10,000 feet in the Westbrook No. 1, sec. 4-4n-6e, four miles north of the Smithdale field. Gammill and Smith are moving in drilling rigs at their Moyse Estate No. 1, sec. 3-2n-6e, approximately three miles northwest of the McElveen field.

In Wayne County, approximately a mile north of the Chaparral field, Petroleum Management, Inc. is below 3,100 feet in the unit No. 12-5, sec. 12-10n-7w, a 10,500 foot test.

Also in Wayne County, Pan American is below 4,800 feet in its Mozingo No. 1, sec. 6-8n-7w, a 5,800 foot try.

Completed last week were:

The Berry No. 1, sec. 5-1n-13e, pumping 65 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 9,626-36 feet at Dexter in Marion County, by Trans-state Oil Co.

Central Oil Company's unit No. 26-4, sec. 26-2n-5e, pumping 224 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 12,171-86 feet in the Martinville field of Simpson County.

California Co.'s Waggoner No. 1, sec. 10-2n-12e, flowing 3.6 million cubic feet of gas per day from a sand at 12,842-82 feet in the Knoxo field of Marion County.

Steel Drops, Other Stocks Post Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels continued to decline last week but the stock market as a whole made a moderate recovery, posting its first weekly advance in five weeks.

So far as the steels were concerned, Wall Street drew no encouragement from President Kennedy's news conference statements that he bore no ill will toward the industry. Following the prior week's crisis, when the steel industry was compelled to cancel a $6-a-ton price increase, the investment community apparently anticipated something more concrete from the President, possibly some new evidence of help in what the steel mills regard as a "profit squeeze."

Lacking anything of this nature, the steels, after perking up a bit, slid downward again.

The rest of the market did quite well on balance, responding to selective investment demand. After a four-week decline, many stocks seemed within buying range and the large size of many transactions seemed to indicate that institutional investors were nibbling at the market again.

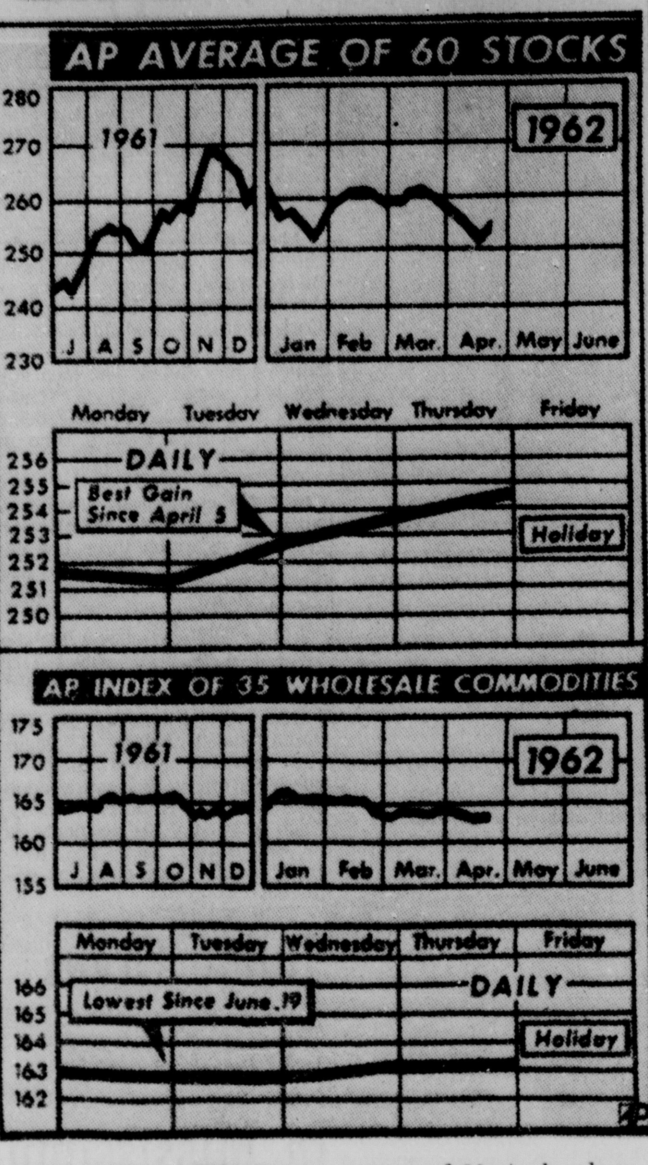
The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 2.80 to 254.50.

Volume for the four-day trading week totaled 12,459,120 shares compared with 15,924,308 for the days in the week before. Average daily trading was 3,114,780 shares, a shade below the prior week's. Of 1,462 issues traded, 830 advanced and 467 declined.

Many bond prices during the week reached their highest level in about a year. U.S. government bonds gained as much as ⅜ of a point while all sections of the corporate list picked up ground.

Trading was light among governments but fairly active among corporates on the New York Stock Exchange. Corporate volume for the four-day week, shortened by the Good Friday holiday, fell to $24,040,000 par value from $30,-348,000 for the previous five-session week.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks showed its first weekly gain in five weeks when it closed this holiday week at 254.5 from 251.7 a week ago. The Commodity Index, with food showing best performance, moved higher this week for the first time in three weeks, closing at 163.1 from 163.0. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Steel Company Keeps Tradition

EDITOR'S NOTE — The decision of one company, Inland Steel of Chicago, last week upset the announced determination of "big steel" to raise its prices. The company and the men who run Inland have long had a reputation for independent thinking and operation. The following dispatch reports why and how Inland Steel decided to hold the price line.)

By DAVID SMOTHERS
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI)—It's a tradition at Inland Steel Co. that nobody tells it what to do.

Inland, the nation's eighth largest steel producer, decided on Friday the 13th last week that even "big steel" couldn't tell it what to do.

A transpacific telephone call to a man 6,300 miles away determined Inland's decision to break away from the ranks of steelmakers and to refuse to raise its prices.

Within a few hours of the time Inland's decision was announced in the company's stainless steel Chicago skyscraper, "big steel" had gone back on its announcement that it would start charging $6 more per ton.

By deciding to go their own way, the men who run Inland had in effect, told "big steel" where to go. Like a row of dominoes, the price increase orders of bigger and richer companies toppled.

Inland's decision came as a shock to many of the biggest men in steel. It shouldn't have.

Ever since Inland was founded in 1893 with $65,000 capital—most of borrowed—the company has had a reputation for making up its own mind. It has raised prices when the rest of the industry did not want to. That was after World War II when Inland tried unsuccessfully to boost its rail rates. It had held out against labor when other steel companies wanted to settle. That was in 1956, when Inland was one of the last firms to come to terms with striking steelworkers. On one memorable occasion, the chairman of Inland's board, Clarence B. Randall, went on the radio to denounce President Truman for "an evil deed, without precedent in American history"—the federal seizure of the steel mills in 1952.

The two key men who made up Inland's mind last week are direct heirs of the company's independent tradition. Joseph L. Block chairman of the board, and Philip D. Block Jr., vice chairman, are like-thinking cousins, grandsons of company founder Joseph D. Block.

When Inland's time for decision came last week, the cousins were thousands of miles apart. Phil Block was in Chicago huddling with his top executives on the impact of U.S. Steel's price increase announcement. Joe Block was touring the Orient on a month's vacation with his wife Lucille.

Whatever the decision would be, 59-year-old Joe Block was the man to make it. A small, quiet man, he has a liking for old pipes, Civil War history, and civic leadership in his lifelong home town of Chicago. He also has a background of service as millhand, editor of his college newspaper, member of the war production board during World War II, and highly successful captain of Inland Steel.

Block also happens to be a member of President Kennedy's advisory committee on labor management relations and a close friend of another well-known Chicagoan, Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg.

The thinking of Inland's boss does not always dovetail with that of other top steel men. He isn't as wary as many of government's role in business. Not long ago he said in a speech "we hear some of our colleagues repeatedly assert that government, in a free society, has no place whatsoever in economic affairs. But such a viewpoint is contrary to historic fact and totally unrealistic . . . government must point the way, for only government is representative of all the people . . ."

Under Block's leadership Inland was sitting pretty when its larger competitors decided to go for more money.

The company, with its annual capacity of 6.5 million tons of steel, had earned $54.6 million in 1961, more than $7 million above its 1960 total. Sales were down slightly, but the firm had been running at near full capacity since last September.

Phil Block looked over the figures in Chicago and conferred with the company's president, John F. Smith Jr. Then he picked up the telephone in the late afternoon of April 12 and put in a person to person call to his cousin.

Joe Block picked up the telephone in his hotel room at Kyoto Japan. He talked with Smith and his cousin for close to an hour, listening to their report of the controversy raging back home over big steel.

The decision was scheduled for announcement at 11 a.m. the next morning in Chicago. But hours before the decision was common knowledge from Kyoto to Pittsburgh.

A Chicago foreign correspondent, Keyes Beech of the Chicago Daily News, learned Block's whereabouts and called him. Beech asked the obvious question: "Do you think Inland should raise its prices?" Block said "no." Beech's story had been printed from coast to coast before Phil Block stood up before reporters in Chicago and announced:

"In full recognition of the national interest and competitive factors the company feels that it is untimely to make any upward adjustments."

Inland, itself a powerful member of "big steel," had reached its decision after a highly practical examination of its competitive standing and of the possible effect of a steel price increase on the national economy.

UPI Chicago Financial Editor William Gruber talked with men close to Inland's management and reported these factors in the decision that rocked the steel industry:

—Inland had nothing to gain immediately from a possible shift of government contracts to steel mills holding the price line. This was because Inland already had all the contracts it could handle and would probably not have been able to take on much extra business.

—Inland was not basically opposed to a price increase. In fact, the company is definitely for one sometime in the future. But Block and his lieutenants felt the stability of the industry and the economy should not be disturbed so soon after the end of union negotiations. The price change should come when it would have less dramatic effect and stir up less controversy, Inland management reasoned.

—Contrary to speculation, there was no direct pressure on Inland from the White House, even though Inland's decision gave President Kennedy's administration one of its greatest victories.

—Inland knew it wasn't big enough to be a price-setter for industry. But it didn't think U.S. Steel was big enough, either.

As the smoke cleared from Joe Block's bombshell, an Inland man said with a touch of satisfaction: "U.S. Steel is big, but not that big."

STEEL PRODUCTION DROPS

Kennedy, Blough Meet Termed 'Cordial, Useful'

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The boiling battle between the government and the steel industry simmered nessmen remained gun-shy.

The armistice began Tuesday night when Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., called on President Kennedy. It was just a week since Blough had made another call to tell him of a $6-a-ton steel price increase.

The only word that came out of the second meeting was that it was "cordial and useful."

Then on Wednesday, Kennedy, who had used the government's biggest torpedoes to force the steel companies to back down on the price increase, displayed a conciliatory attitude.

"This administration harbors no ill will against any individual, corporation or segment of the American economy," he told his news conference.

The President indicated there would be no punitive action against the steel companies. Nevertheless, a federal grand jury in New York City went ahead with its investigation of steel pricing, and Sen. Estes Kefauver's Senate Antitrust subcommittee showered the 12 biggest steel firms with subpoenaes for their records.

Kennedy denied that the government was setting prices and said its interest was in preventing an inflationary spiral. And he said he felt his actions in rolling back the price increase would be of assistance in getting passage of tax credit legislation intended to help industry modernize.

H. Ladd Plumley, president-elect of the U.S. Chamber of Comvoce, said he believed that "business and the public were surprised and shocked at some of the governmental reactions" to the price increase and that the battle had "an increasingly disquieting effect" among businessmen and investors.

Republic Steel Corp., No. 3 producer, reported first-quarter earnings of $15,623,356, or 99 cents a share, on sales of $314,016,883, substantially higher than a year ago—during the depth of the recession—but sharply lower than in 1960 and 1959. President T. F. Patton said a comparison with the 1959 first quarter "shows the erosion of our position since the time of our last general price increase in 1958."

Steel production suffered one of its sharpest drops when output was 2,244,000 tons, off 5 per cent from the previous week. It was expected to continue dropping because inventory building ended when labor peace was achieved.

Heavy production in the automobile industry was a factor in maintaining steel at as good a level as it is. An estimated 148,000 passenger cars were turned out during the week, the best record of the year.

Car sales moved at a swift pace in the first 10 days of April, when dealers disposed of 190,494 American-made vehicles. This was an increase of 48 per cent over the same period of 1961.

Chrysler Corp., first of the automakers to report first - quarter earnings, showed a profit of $1.3 million on sales of $498 million, compared with a loss of $21.9 million on sales of $432 million in the comparable 1961 quarter.

Other developments:

A substantial improvement in the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit was registered in the first three months of this year. The government said the annual rate of the deficit dropped from $6 billion in the 1962 fourth quarter to $2.5 billion.

The annual rate of personal income increased to $435.3 billion in March, representing a gain of $2 billion over February and $28 billion over March 1961. The Comoerce Department attributed most of the gain to higher wages and salaries.

Private housing starts in March climbed to an annual rate of 1,409,000 units, a gain of 23 per cent over February which made up most of the loss during a slack winter.

Stockholders approved the proposed merger of American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines. Trans World Airlines protested to the Civil Aeronautics Board, which planned to start a hearing on the combination May 10.

Briefly around the business scene: "The Bell System plans to spend $2.8 billion on construction this year, the most ever spent by a company in a single year. . . . Wholesale food prices dropped to the lowest level in two years. . . . Chairman James M. Symes of the Pennsylvania Railroad predicted the proposed merger with the New York Central would be completed by mid-1963.

New Concept Noticed For House Buying

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—The house hunter this spring may do his shopping in a unique "department store of homes."

He may even buy the store itself. It's a pre-cut, low-cost, easy-to-assemble a-frame structure, suitable for vacation home, guest house, business or professional office, community or club building.

The department store concept of house shopping as adopted by Ira H. Gordon, president of Swift Homes, Inc., Elizabeth, Pa., when he decided most buyers of pre-cut homes need more than floor plans to go by.

Versatility of design, Gordon said has been a big selling feature in the pre-cut home field.

Gordon entered the home building business in 1949 with $15,000—and an idea in merchandising.

He took his cue from the auto industry, offering new homes and designs every year and assisting with financing. "We often give financing where banks have refused," Gordon said, "because we know that with reliable persons the last payment to be delinquent usually is the payment on the home."

Swift designers offer the homeowner a wide selection of color materials and authentic designs to give each home individual distinction. Family-tested floor plans are provided for each model but the prospective homeonwer is free to plan the interior of his home to fit his own needs.

Theh ome is designed so the buyer can erect it himself if he chooses. In the early 1950s, Gordon said, almost 90 per cent of the pre-cut homes sold were completely built by their owners. In the past few years, however, he said, the trend has been toward swift building the home planned by the buyer.

This "department store of homes" is being featured by Swift franchised distributors in 20 states.

As a second home or small-family home, costing less than a new car, the 24 by 24-foot a-frame offers a choice of floor plan with three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bath, or cathedral vaulted living room, kitchen, bath and two bedrooms. Non-supporting partitions are moveable and the interior needs little finishing. The front consists of glass windows and sliding glass panels and the rear is a balconied double-deck. The combined wall-roof construction rejects water and snow and offers little resistance to wind, making it ideal at lakeside, ocean or wooded area.

Through March, 1961, consumption was only 5,581,000 bales.

Exports by this country during the week ended April 17 were estimated by the service bureau at 84,000 bales, compared with 88,-000 a week earlier and 215,000 in the comparable week a year ago.

For the season an estimated 3,-712,000 bales have been exported. At the same period last season the total was 5,456,000 bales.

IN COURT CASE

Wilson Answers Dawkins' Remarks

U. S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins is "grossly mistaken" in reference to his statement concerning investigation of allegations against N. Bryant James, according to T. Fitzhugh Wilson, former federal attorney.

Wilson said that in a statement yesterday in answer to Judge Dawkins remarks made in court Friday after a federal jury cleared James of an embezzlement charge that resulted from indictments made during Wilson's term of office as U. S. Attorney for the Western Division of Louisiana.

Prosecution against Bryant having gone on for three years, ended in the 12 - man federal jury's decision Friday. After the jury returned their verdict, Judge Dawkins was reported to have made a public statement in which he concurred with the jury's verdict "Wholeheartedly."

He said, "We must note for the record that in our opinion, Mr. T. Fitzhugh Wilson committed a grave injustice in having this man indicted without a complete investigation of all the facts in the case. Otherwise, I do not believe the Grand Jury, if they had all the facts as you have had before you, would have ever indicted this man."

Wilson's statement read as follows:

"With reference to the recent trial of N. Bryant James in Federal Court, it has come to my attention that U. S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr. made the comment that, in his opinion, I as the former U. S. Attorney for the Western District of Louisiana (I had that position from July, 1953 until March 31, 1962, when I retired from the Federal service after more than 25 years continuous service with the department of Justice both as a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and as a U. S. attorney) had committed a grave injustice in having had Mr. James indicted without a complete investigation of all the facts in the case.

"Judge Dawkins, of course, is entitled to his own opinion about any matter he may see fit, but he is grossly mistaken when he says the allegations against Mr. James were not fully investigated prior to their presentation to a federal grand jury. The truth of the matter is that the allegations were thoroughly investigated over a period of many months by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and on the basis of thereof it definitely appeared that a violation of law had been committed which should be presented to a Federal Grand Jury for its consideration. In view, thereof, I would have violated my solemn oath of office and been derelict in my duty had I not scheduled the matter for formal presentation to a Federal Grand Jruy.

"The desicion of the Grand Jury to return a true bill of indictment was, of course, entirely its own and was in no way influenced by me.

"Also, in order that the record may be kept straight it should be noted that the first two indictments were not 'thrown out of court' but were voluntarily dismissed by me because they were improperly worded. With respect to the third indictment it was returned by the same Grand Jury which had returned the record indictment after a full presentation of the facts in the case had been made to it and that is why the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit overruled Judge Dawkins' Jr. dismissal of the third indictment.

"It likewise should be noted that prior to the presentation of the case to a Grand Jury in connection with the return by it of the second and third indictments the matter of its re-presentation was thoroughly reviewed by me with responsible officials in the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C., and they instructed that the matter should definitely be re-presented and forwarded to me a proposed form of indictment for that purpose.

"In view of the foregoing facts it is obvious Judge Dawkins Jr. was grossly mistaken when he stated the allegations against James had not been thoroughly investigated prior to the presentation of the matter to a Grand Jury."

PRETTY GOOD BUNCH

Empress Favors American Women

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—If the Empress of Iran has any influence, the world image of American women is due to rise a few feet. She thinks they're a pretty good bunch.

The discussion came up Saturday at an interview with Empress Farah before she and her husband Mohammed Reza left for Seattle on the next leg of their tour.

What had the empress heard of U.S. women—that usual old thing about dominating their husbands?

The empress opened wide her big brown eyes and nodded solemnly.

"Yes, I had heard everybody especially the women were spoiled and . . ." she fluttered her slim hands in search of a word ". . . domineering. But I didn't feel it here in the United States."

But has she observed enough American women, just being themselves and unaware of royal scrutiny, to judge?

"I'd know," she said, for a moment looking much wiser than her 23 years. "If a husband disappears from a place, if his wife shows off, I'd know. And it is not true about American women."

Besides, she added, "There are some women like that in every country of the world."

The empress, in a beige suit, matching pumps, an emerald ring and emerald and diamond brooch, wore her dark hair piled high on her head. She listened intently to questions and made serious, carefully phrased replies in a soft, high voice.

She was prettiest the one time she smiled. That was when she talked about her 18-month-old son, Crown Prince Reza, for whom she's been shopping for toys and clothes. He stayed in Iran.

"I miss him very much," she said. "I talked to my mother long distance and she tried to get him to say 'Mama' on the telephone. I heard him say something — it wasn't 'Mama' just someting—and his voice sounded very clear."

Before she gets back to him the royal couple will have visited the Seattle World's Fair, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Netherlands.

She said she'd like more children. "I always wanted to have two boys and a girl."

As for what she wants little Reza to be, besides a shah like his father: "Every mother hopes for her son to be a good man, very intelligent, very interesting, cultured and, you know . . ." she waited for the phrase to come, "with a nice heart."

She was reminded the shah had said in Washington that the king business had given him nothing personally but a headache. Did that apply to her too?

The empress shook her head. "We don't have the same business. It is more easy to do what I have to do.

"When I feel he is worried, I worry too. But he is not one who wants to show when he is worried.

"I feel I am happy to be married to the shah because I think of my life as a married woman, not an empress."

The chic empress insisted she is not interested in fashion, but art. She doesn't paint herself, but, "I like a student of my country to be encouraged in sculpture and drawing. I go to their exhibitions every year."

About her U.S. visit she said: Everything is so interesting and different. I liked Washington very much, it is very beautiful. New York also.

Long Siege Of Law Books Successful

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

"The difficult, we do immediately. The impossible takes a little while."

An American general's comment to that effect in World War II describes what James A. Pharis Jr. of Monroe has done.

Following in Abraham Lincoln's footsteps, Pharis studied at night for several years, passed the state bar examination, and in March was admitted to practice law before all the counts in Louisiana.

BUSY SCHEDULE

He accomplished this while holding down a full-time job at General Adjustment Bureau, supporting his wife and two children, and taking active part as deacon in his church.

Forty-nine persons, including out-of-state lawyers seeking practice here, have taken the Louisiana bar examination in the last year. Six have passed.

Judge Jesse S. Heard of Fourth District Court, Monroe, sums up the difficulties Pharis encountered in his one-man study:

"In law school, the professor digests the law and gives it to the students," said Judge Heard. "A student who studies as Pharis did has to read the law, understand it and remember it. This makes it doubly hard for him, or anyone else who tries to do it.

"It takes diligence, application and understanding to become a member of the bar under these circumstances. This is particularly true if a man has a family, because he has to devote a sufficient amount of time to provide for his family.

'REMARKABLE'

"It is very remarkable for a man to do that.

"Mr. Pharis was introduced to the District Court while I was on the bench. I think he is a very fine person," the Judge concluded.

Pharis registered with Monroe attorney E. K. Theus, who gave the Bar Association Committee a report on his study progress every six months. He studied the material used in Louisiana State University's law school.

Theus comments, "I was mighty pleased with his outcome on the study. I am sure he will be a credit to the profession."

Two years ago, the state law permitting such study was revised, and now each law student must spend the required three years in law school.

"I came under the 'grandfather clause' allowing me to finish the program I was in," said Pharis.

What does he think about eliminating that program?

"Most single people who really want to go to school can. Those who have waited until family obligations prohibit it or restrict their budget let themselves in for a lot of grief.

DIFFICULTIES

"Private study has a lot of advantages, but it sure has a lot of disadvantages — you don't have the benefit of class work, talking with other people studying the same thing. Private study is strung out over so long a period — it's hard to keep things fresh in your mind.

"I don't know why I happened to remember things which they asked on the exam, which I studied seven years ago.

There've been a lot of changes in the law since Pharis, now 36, began his study. He had to research items studied five and six years ago.

What was it like, studying at night and on holidays from 1955 to 1962?

"It may have been hard at first," says Pharis, "but it has been very enjoyable — and time consuming.

"It was hard in this respect. I felt I should be studying when the opportunity arose to do something with my family. I enjoyed studying, but I hated to deprive my family of time.

"They were very considerate of my studying. Except for Wednesday night prayer meetings and on Sundays I'd study. Once in a while we would go out at night, particularly if the children were involved in some function.

ATTITUDE

Pharis' son, Jim, was born in January, 1955, "so all his life I've been studying. It was funny in a way — he took this attitude: 'We'll do something before Daddy studies, or afterwards, or if Daddy's got the time'."

A deeply religious man, Pharis says, "I could not have done it had it not been God's plan for my life. I am devoted to God's wishes and directions."

Pharis was a biologist with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service when the Korean War broke out in 1950. The government cut off funds from all activities not considered essential, and 36 biologists lost their jobs, leaving a skeleton force of two in the Atlanta office.

"If this hadn't happened, I doubt seriously that I would have gone into law," says Pharis, who received a science degree from the University of Southwestern Louisiana and did graduate work in Zoology at L. S. U.

"My work was outside, I was working with animals, and I enjoyed that."

Next stop was Alexandria, where he went to work for the General Adjustment Bureau, and married Miss Jo Anne Mohon.

CLAIMS

GAB transferred him to its Monroe offices in 1954. His work —claims involving legal liability, bonds, insurance claims for burglaries, collisions — put him in direct contact with lawyers.

"You can't do this work without gaining some knowledge of the practical aspects of the law. In 1954, I decided to start studying it," Pharis recalls.

He discussed it with his brother, F. Jean Pharis, who has been Rapides parish district attorney for the last four years, and also with another Alexandria attorney, who told him of the state law permitting study outside law school.

"I contacted Mr. Theus here in Monroe, about the possibilities of registering with him." Theus agreed.

The Louisiana Bar Association's Committee on Admissions sent Pharis a list of subjects which could be on a bar examination. He had a definite plan of study, covered text materials used by the LSU law school.

ENCOURAGED

"Mr. Theus encouraged me a great deal, inspired me to go ahead, and was very gracious with his time. We discussed particular law problems."

Pharis also read current legal periodicals, reported cases, talked about problems he encountered "with various attorneys with whom I came in contact."

"You can begin with an idea, go to the books, run down cases on one particular idea and find what the courts have held to be the law on this item.

"Once you get familiar with ideas in a particular subject of law, you can find the answers. If there is no answer, it is an opportunity to try the case and find out what the law ought to be."

During his second year, Pharis got up at 4 a.m. each day to study — "that wasn't too good, because I tended to stay up later at night than I should have."

The other years, he studied at night, holidays and Saturdays.

SUNDAY REST

"From the first I never did study on Sundays. I believe what the Bible says, that Sunday should be a day of rest from working. It's important to impress this belief on my children. I don't know how they would learn Sunday is to rest and worship if I didn't do it.

"The children think something is important if the parents think it is important."

Mrs. Pharis, who has brought her husband endless cups of coffee during his 84 months of study, is "very happy" that the long siege is ended.

"I can't count the nights that I started studying, and didn't get to speak to her again until the next morning when we got up." says Pharis. "She has always been enthusiastic, and given me a lot of encouragement."

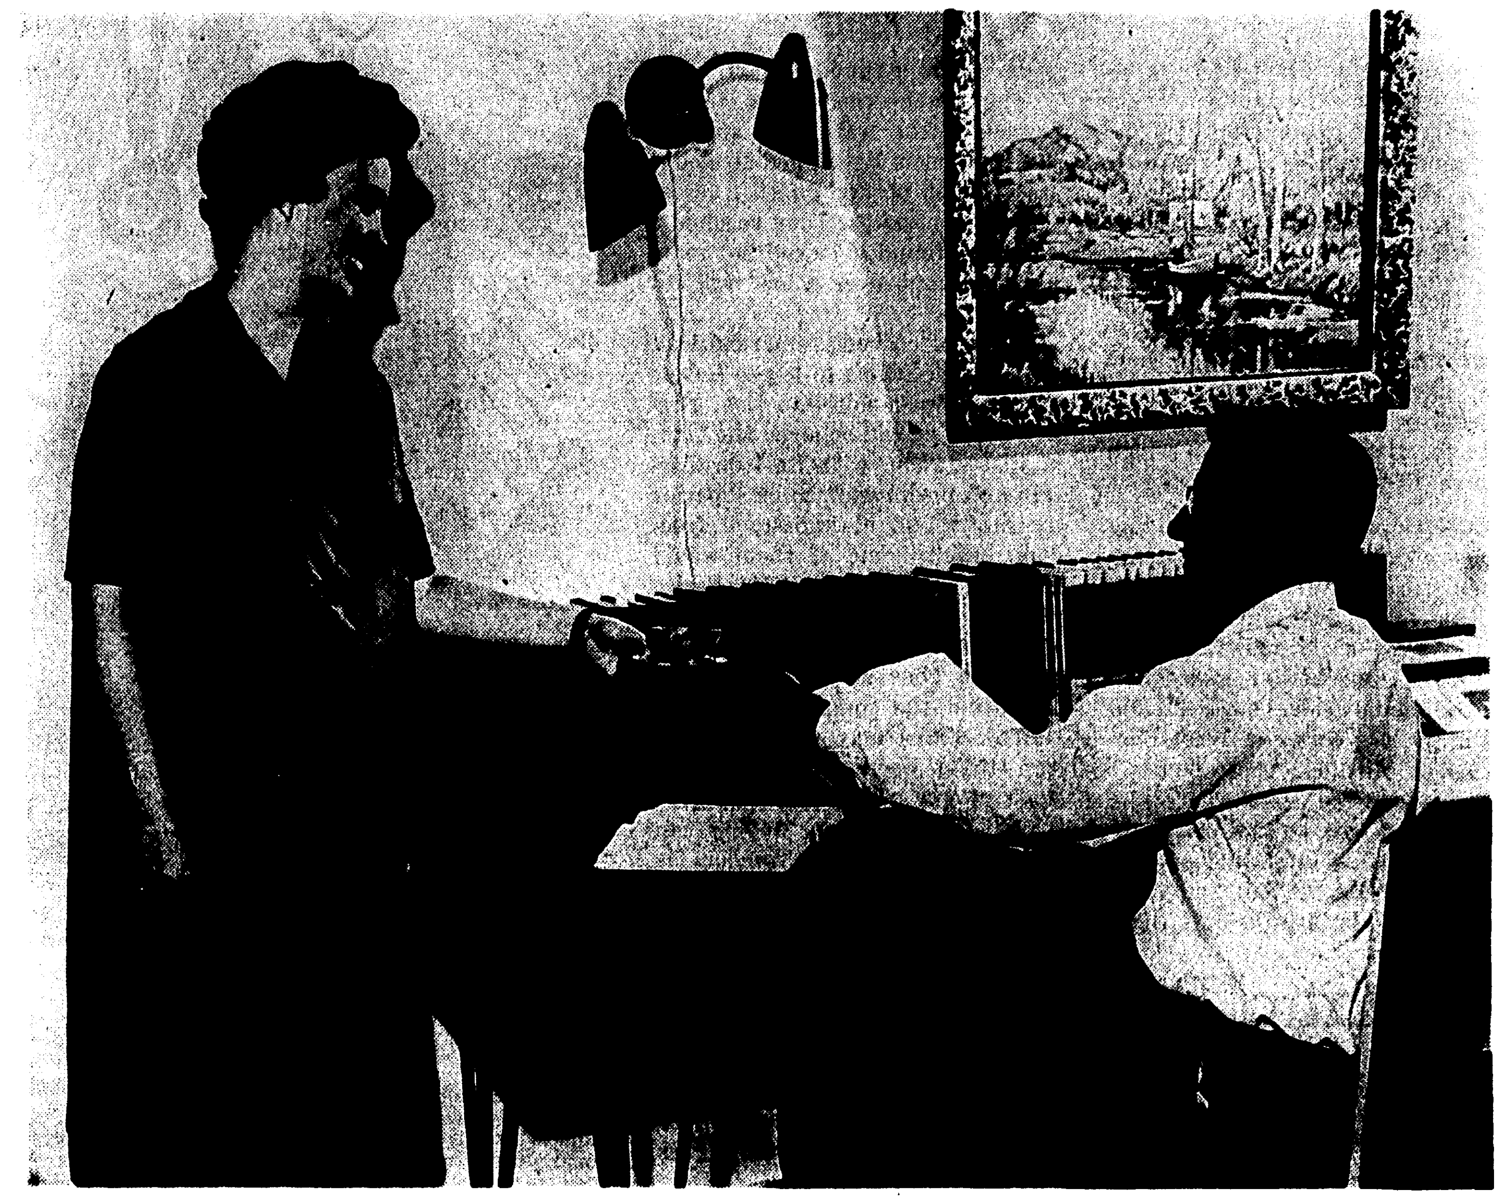
Both agreed that "if this study is the thing to do, it will turn out all right. If not, we're not going to quit living."

Pharis took the three-day bar exam twice, the first time "with a pretty bad case of the shakes. I felt I knew a lot more law than I wrote — but knowing also what the possibilities were if I didn't pass."

SECOND TRY

One year later, he tried again. "The last time I wasn't really confident that I had passed. I planned to study again — after I took some time off for fishing." One week later, the Louisiana Bar Association's Committee on Admissions notified him he had passed.

"I feel relief that I don't have to concentrate on studying to pass the exam — but I also feel there's a lot of work ahead of me in trying to establish a practice."



LAW STUDY meant endless nights of text books, coffee, furnished by Mrs. Pharis. (Staff photos by John Fogleman)

Pharis plans to move to Alexandria after his third child is born in July, and set up law practice with his brother, who also maintains a civil practice.

The future?

"I'm very interested in mathematics" — says Pharis, who would like to study math some time. He also is "very interested in the natural sciences."

"I suppose I have fond hopes some day in being able to engage in study of something else . . . but not like law. It was too time-consuming to expect my family to put up with something like it again."

He'd also like to do some reading besides law texts, "some fishing, hunting, and woodworking as hobbies."

The Pharis family — Mr. and Mrs., and their children, Anne Kathleen, nine, and James Richard, seven, still are using some of the furniture Pharis made the first year of his marriage.

Nuclear Tests Take To Air

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the next few days the United States will trigger its first above-ground nuclear explosion since the fall of 1958.

It may be a hydrogen detonation hundreds of miles over Johnston Island, a concrete - covered islet about 800 statute miles west of souhtwest of Honolulu.

Or it may be an air burst over Christmas Island, a British-owned sand and coral atoll 1,300 miles south of Honolulu and 140 miles north of the Equator.

TO OPEN SERIES

Whichever it is, this shot will open a test series expected to continue for at least two months and to include perhaps two dozen explosions. Some of the shots will be "fairly big ones," according to a congressional source, but none will be comparable to the 58-megaton weapon tested by the Russians last Oct. 30.

U.S. officials consider the Soviet "super bomb," equal in power to 58 million tons of TNT to be an anti-population rather than a military weapon. And they do not plan to copy it.

The biggest device to be exploded in the new U.S. Pacific series, it is understood, will be on the order of 10 megatons. All the shots will be exploded high enough to keep radioactive fallout at a minimum in the test areas.

Official sources have said the first explosion in the new series will come late in April or early in May. Whenever it is fired, it may serve as a remote trigger for a new test program by the Soviet Union.

The Russians have served notice that if this country resumes atmospheric testing, they will, too. This makes an odd sound in Western ears. It was the Soviet series of last fall and winter—the greatest from a power standpoint and perhaps the most fruitful ever held—that decided President Kennedy to order resumption of U.S. atmospheric tests.

Last Sept. 1, abruptly and with only brief notice, the Russians ended a 34-month suspension of testing by the great powers. It quickly became obvious that they had been secretly preparing for their new program for nearly three years.

This country on Sept. 15 began testing again in Nevada but kept all detonations under ground to avoid poisoning the atmosphere with radioactivity as the Russians were doing.

Much can be learned from underground testing, but only comparatively low power devices can be used. According to experts, above ground tests are necessary to obtain certain kinds of information, particularly that relating to effects of nuclear explosions in space.

One of the more than 40 Soviet shots included an explosion more than 100 miles up—a tipoff that the Russians were getting new information about high altitude blasts which could be useful in both missile offense and defense.

Had the Russians wanted to preserve whatever advantage they gained in their 1961 program, they could have done so by agreeing to a policed test ban treaty.

But it has long been apparent that what the Russians learned in their September-February tests had merely whetted their appetite for further experimentation.

So the East-West nuclear arms race is entering a new phase. Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., of the House - Senate Atomic Energy Committee told United Press International he believes the new U.S. test program will be followed by others.

PROVISION

Holifield added the provision, "if there is no policed test ban treaty, and I have never believed the Russians will agree to one." The Californian said he assumed the spring tests would turn up information calling for amplification in later tests.

The primary announced purposes, defensive and offensive, of the new atmospheric tests are:

—To get additional information on the effects of nuclear explosions in space. This is needed to develop anti-missile missiles to protect America. It also is needed to determine an enemy's ability to conceal the start of a massive attack by creating an "electronic smokescreen" in space which would black out radar and radio.

—To improve the yield-to-weight ratio of nuclear weapons. This means packaging more violence in smaller and lighter warheads. If you can do this, you can step up the power of the Minuteman, Polaris, advanced Atlas, and Titan II warheads.

PRIORITY

Highest priority, it is understood has been assigned to space shots in which powerful warheads will be carried aloft by rockets and exploded at altitudes of some hundreds of miles.

Also on the schedule, supplementing the Johnston and Christmas Island tests, are duels over the Pacific between experimental Nike - Zeus anti-missile missiles launched from Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands and Atlas attack missiles launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, on the California coast.

Officials say it is impossible to make more than a rough estimate of what the new Pacific series will cost. They do not boggle at a figure of $100 million.

Despite this outlay, some military experts fear the program will not be adequate. They want more proof-testing of actual weapons than apparently is scheduled this spring.

This viewpoint was echoed recently by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Said Russell: "We don't know, actually, if an intercontinental ballistic missile will work with an atomic warhead. We've never tried one."

But missile warheads have been tested, though not in flight, and scientists pooh-pooh the notion there is any doubt they will work as designed. Many missile nose cones have been shot into space and recovered, and engineers feel pretty sure they know what conditions they encountered up and down.

TEST HOPES

There is persistent talk that the weapons makers had at least 30 different designs they wanted tested this spring. Whether they will get their way is doubtful. According to the AEC, there will be "limitations on number, type, size, placement, and scheduling" of detonations to assure that fallout will be kept at a practical minimum.

President Kennedy and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara have asserted that the Pacific tests will pump into the atmosphere only a fraction of the radioactive debris dumped there by the Russians last fall.

McNamara also said that "the scope of the present program will be smaller than the last nuclear test series conducted in the Pacific in 1958."

That program was Hardtack I, the largest ever conducted in the Pacific. There were 31 explosions in a period of 3½ months. To achieve that average, what with weather and technical delays, the test managers had to fire two shots a day when they could. They did this on five separate occasions.

Considering that the United States had two years to plan the 1958 project and the Russians three years to prepare for their 1961-62 series, it is hard to see how this country can cram much more than two dozen shots into this spring's briefer and more hastily arranged program.

Organization of the test task force was announced only last Dec. 29.

All previous atmospheric tests by this country in the Pacific were conducted at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground in the Marshall Islands, which the U.S. administers under a United Nations trusteeship.

PERMISSION

Because of protests in the U.N. over such use of the Marshalls and because the islands had been turned over to the Defense Department as part of the Pacific missile range, the United States sought and got British permission to use Christmas Island this year.

Johnston Island is a U.S. possession. In World War II it was converted into an "unsinkable aircraft carrier." It is about 1¼ miles long and about a quarter of a mile wide. It is practically covered with an airstrip and associated buildings.

The British have tested nine H-bombs at Christmas Island, four in 1957 and five in 1958. It is the largest of the world's isolated atolls. It is about 30 miles long and 5 to 15 miles wide. Much of that area, however, is covered with lagoons.

Some 400 natives from the Gilbert and Ellice Islands, described by the AEC as "friendly and pleasant people," work the copra plantation on Christmas. Joint task force eight does not plan to evacuate them. They live far enough upwind from test sites to be in no danger, an AEC spokesman said. The task force could, however, quickly remove them if necessary, he said.

Also on the island are 300 to 400 British military personnel.

As part of elaborate health and safety precautions, the United States established a weather network in a Pacific area extending 4,600 miles east and west and 3,000 miles north and south. Wind directions and speeds will be measured, with the help of rockets, to altitudes up to 40 miles.

FALLOUT FORECAST

A special unit will forecast fallout patterns with the help of electronic computers in order to "rule out any problem of local fallout" such as marred the H-bomb tests at Bikini in 1954.

Sixteen monitoring stations have been set up on Pacific islands to check radioactivity in air and sea. According to the AEC, the explosions will be staged in such a way that only one to two per cent of their total fallout will descend in the test areas.

"The remaining 98 or 99 per cent is expected to be dispersed high above the earth's equatorial regions," the AEC said.

"These diluted bands of low level radioactivity," it added, "will lose part of their radioactivity through natural decay processes before they gradually descend to earth over a period of years."

TV For Backward Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE — One of the most backwards school systems in the nation — South Carolina's — has become one of the most venturesome. Its new television system brings the best teachers in the state into classrooms for only $14 a head a year — and that includes a screenside seat for the big basketball game.

By ROBERT MCHUGH

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—In an abandoned supermarket, a bold experiment in education has soared from a $60,000 gamble to the only statewide closed circuit school television system in the world.

It has captured the imagination of the Ford Foundation, which is considering pouring millions of dollars into it.

U.S. Commissioner of Education Sterling M. McMurrin has said the State Department ought to see what South Carolina is doing with educational television from 'ts makeshift quarters where bargain-basement schooling has replaced marked-down cans of orange juice.

The system, McMurrin said, has great possibilities in any program to educate backward peoples of the world.

In September 1958, the educational television experiment was begun with a $60,000 appropriation for two courses in one high school in Columbia.

The system now includes 68 schools in 21 counties. The goal is to cover all 46 counties by next September.

South Carolina was ripe for a bold venture in education. Its antique school system staggered along for years without even a 12th grade in the high schools. In 1946, the 12th grade was added.

The illiteracy rate of 7.9 per cent exceeded every state in the union except Lousiana. South Carolina ranked 43rd nationally in average daily school attendance.

The number of registrants failing the 1959 Selective Service mental test—61.97 per cent—was higher than that of any other state.

Yet South Carolina relatively had the highest number of school-age children of any state in the country.

School officials decided that a shortcut to quality education was needed. Education television had been tried by broadcasting from airplanes in the west. And in Hagerstown, Md., a small closed-circuit system had been operating for several years.

The South Carolina Educational-Television Commission found that television could be established statewide for $8,000 a school, or only $14 per pupil per year.

John Cauthen, a member of the governing commission, says costs will decrease with newer and better equipment.

In addition, Cauthen says, E-TV, South Carolina's word for educational television, will eventually solve the teacher shortage and enable payment of higher salaries by reducing the number of those on the payroll.

At present, algebra, geometry, physical science, South Carolina history, and French are taught on television.

An art department provides elaborate visual aids far beyond the reach of any individual school.

As the system is expanded into each county, the E-TV commission pays for bringing in the cable and installing equipment in two schools. Other schools within the county may hook into the cable. The cost varies, depending upon how close they are to the cable.

The system thus far includes, in addition to public schools, three independent colleges, one a Negro, church-supported institution, and one Roman Catholic parochial high school.

With six channels available, the maximum potential here is 72 half-hour lessons during a school day.

Education Director George E. Bair brings the classroom teachers and the television teacher together for course preparations. Lessons are planned two weeks in advance, and the television teachers handle tests and assignments.

Long Siege Of Law Books Successful

"The difficult, we do immediately. The impossible takes a little while."

An American general's comment to that effect in World War II describes what James A. Pharis Jr. of Monroe has done.

Nuclear Tests Take To Air

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In the next few days the United States will trigger its first above-ground nuclear explosion since the fall of 1958.

It may be a hydrogen detonation hundreds of miles over Johnston Island, a concrete - covered islet about 800 statute miles west of souhtwest of Honolulu.

Or it may be an air burst over Christmas Island, a British-owned sand and coral atoll 1,300 miles south of Honolulu and 140 miles north of the Equator.

TO OPEN SERIES

Whichever it is, this shot will open a test series expected to continue for at least two months and to include perhaps two dozen explosions. Some of the shots will be "fairly big ones," according to a congressional source, but none will be comparable to the 58-megaton weapon tested by the Russians last Oct. 30.

U.S. officials consider the Soviet "super bomb," equal in power to 58 million tons of TNT to be an anti-population rather than a military weapon. And they do not plan to copy it.

The biggest device to be exploded in the new U.S. Pacific series, it is understood, will be on the order of 10 megatons. All the shots will be exploded high enough to keep radioactive fallout at a minimum in the test areas.

Official sources have said the first explosion in the new series will come late in April or early in May. Whenever it is fired, it may serve as a remote trigger for a new test program by the Soviet Union.

The Russians have served notice that if this country resumes atmospheric testing, they will, too. This makes an odd sound in Western ears. It was the Soviet series of last fall and winter—the greatest from a power standpoint and perhaps the most fruitful ever held—that decided President Kennedy to order resumption of U.S. atmospheric tests.

Last Sept. 1, abruptly and with only brief notice, the Russians ended a 34-month suspension of testing by the great powers. It quickly became obvious that they had been secretly preparing for their new program for nearly three years.

This country on Sept. 15 began testing again in Nevada but kept all detonations under ground to avoid poisoning the atmosphere with radioactivity as the Russians were doing.

Much can be learned from underground testing, but only comparatively low power devices can be used. According to experts, above ground tests are necessary to obtain certain kinds of information, particularly that relating to effects of nuclear explosions in space.

One of the more than 40 Soviet shots included an explosion more than 100 miles up—a tipoff that the Russians were getting new information about high altitude blasts which could be useful in both missile offense and defense.

Had the Russians wanted to preserve whatever advantage they gained in their 1961 program, they could have done so by agreeing to a policed test ban treaty.

But it has long been apparent that what the Russians learned in their September-February tests had merely whetted their appetite for further experimentation.

So the East-West nuclear arms race is entering a new phase. Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., of the House - Senate Atomic Energy Committee told United Press International he believes the new U.S. test program will be followed by others.

PROVISION

Holifield added the provision, "if there is no policed test ban treaty, and I have never believed the Russians will agree to one." The Californian said he assumed the spring tests would turn up information calling for amplification in later tests.

The primary announced purposes, defensive and offensive, of the new atmospheric tests are:

—To get additional information on the effects of nuclear explosions in space. This is needed to develop anti-missile missiles to protect America. It also is needed to determine an enemy's ability to conceal the start of a massive attack by creating an "electronic smokescreen" in space which would black out radar and radio.

—To improve the yield-to-weight ratio of nuclear weapons. This means packaging more violence in smaller and lighter warheads. If you can do this, you can step up the power of the Minuteman, Polaris, advanced Atlas, and Titan II warheads.

PRIORITY

Highest priority, it is understood has been assigned to space shots in which powerful warheads will be carried aloft by rockets and exploded at altitudes of some hundreds of miles.

Also on the schedule, supplementing the Johnston and Christmas Island tests, are duels over the Pacific between experimental Nike-Zeus anti-missile missiles launched from Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands and Atlas attack missiles launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, on the California coast.

Officials say it is impossible to make more than a rough estimate of what the new Pacific series will cost. They do not boggle at a figure of $100 million.

Despite this outlay, some military experts fear the program will not be adequate. They want more proof-testing of actual weapons than apparently is scheduled this spring.

This viewpoint was echoed recently by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Said Russell: "We don't know, actually, if an intercontinental ballistic missile will work with an atomic warhead. We've never tried one."

But missile warheads have been tested, though not in flight, and scientists pooh-pooh the notion there is any doubt they will work as designed. Many missile nose cones have been shot into space and recovered, and engineers feel pretty sure they know what conditions they encountered up and down.

TEST HOPES

There is persistent talk that the weapons makers had at least 30 different designs they wanted tested this spring. Whether they will get their way is doubtful. According to the AEC, there will be "limitations on number, type, size, placement, and scheduling" of detonations to assure that fallout will be kept at a practical minimum.

President Kennedy and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara have asserted that the Pacific tests will pump into the atmosphere only a fraction of the radioactive debris dumped there by the Russians last fall.

McNamara also said that "the scope of the present program will be smaller than the last nuclear test series conducted in the Pacific in 1958."

That program was Hardtack I, the largest ever conducted in the Pacific. There were 31 explosions in a period of 3½ months. To achieve that average, what with weather and technical delays, the test managers had to fire two shots a day when they could. They did this on five separate occasions.

Considering that the United States had two years to plan the 1958 project and the Russians three years to prepare for their 1961-62 series, it is hard to see how this country can cram much more than two dozen shots into this spring's briefer and more hastily arranged program.

Organization of the test task force was announced only last Dec. 29.

All previous atmospheric tests by this country in the Pacific were conducted at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground in the Marshall Islands, which the U.S. administers under a United Nations trusteeship.

PERMISSION

Because of protests in the U.N. over such use of the Marshalls and because the islands had been turned over to the Defense Department as part of the Pacific missile range, the United States sought and got British permission to use Christmas Island this year.

Johnston Island is a U.S. possession. In World War II it was converted into an "unsinkable aircraft carrier." It is about 1¼ miles long and about a quarter of a mile wide. It is practically covered with an airstrip and associated buildings.

The British have tested nine H-bombs at Christmas Island, four in 1957 and five in 1958. It is the largest of the world's isolated atolls. It is about 30 miles long and 5 to 15 miles wide. Much of that area, however, is covered with lagoons.

Some 400 natives from the Gilbert and Ellice Islands, described by the AEC as "friendly and pleasant people," work the copra plantation on Christmas. Joint task force eight does not plan to evacuate them. They live far enough upwind from test sites to be in no danger, an AEC spokesman said. The task force could, however, quickly remove them if necessary, he said.

Also on the island are 300 to 400 British military personnel.

As part of elaborate health and safety precautions, the United States established a weather network in a Pacific area extending 4,600 miles east and west and 3,000 miles north and south. Wind directions and speeds will be measured, with the help of rockets, to altitudes up to 40 miles.

FALLOUT FORECAST

A special unit will forecast fallout patterns with the help of electronic computers in order to "rule out any problem of local fallout" such as marred the H-bomb tests at Bikini in 1954.

Sixteen monitoring stations have been set up on Pacific islands to check radioactivity in air and sea. According to the AEC, the explosions will be staged in such a way that only one to two per cent of their total fallout will descend in the test areas.

"The remaining 98 or 99 per cent is expected to be dispersed high above the earth's equatorial regions," the AEC said.

"These diluted bands of low level radioactivity," it added, "will lose part of their radioactivity through natural decay processes before they gradually descend to earth over a period of years."

TV For Backward Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE — One of the most backwards school systems in the nation — South Carolina's — has become one of the most venturesome. Its new television system brings the best teachers in the state into classrooms for only $14 a head a year — and that includes a screenside seat for the big basketball game.

By ROBERT MCHUGH

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—In an abandoned supermarket, a bold experiment in education has soared from a $60,000 gamble to the only statewide closed circuit school television system in the world.

It has captured the imagination of the Ford Foundation, which is considering pouring millions of dollars into it.

U.S. Commissioner of Education Sterling M. McMurrin has said the State Department ought to see what South Carolina is doing with educational television from 'ts makeshift quarters where bargain-basement schooling has replaced marked-down cans of orange juice.

The system, McMurrin said, has great possibilities in any program to educate backward peoples of the world.

In September 1958, the educational television experiment was begun with a $60,000 appropriation for two courses in one high school in Columbia.

The system now includes 68 schools in 21 counties. The goal is to cover all 46 counties by next September.

South Carolina was ripe for a bold venture in education. Its antique school system staggered along for years without even a 12th grade in the high schools. In 1946, the 12th grade was added.

The illiteracy rate of 7.9 per cent exceeded every state in the union except Lousiana. South Carolina ranked 43rd nationally in average daily school attendance.

The number of registrants failing the 1959 Selective Service mental test—61.97 per cent—was higher than that of any other state.

Yet South Carolina relatively had the highest number of school-age children of any state in the country.

School officials decided that a shortcut to quality education was needed. Education television had been tried by broadcasting from airplanes in the west. And in Hagerstown, Md., a small closed-circuit system had been operating for several years.

The South Carolina Educational-Television Commission found that television could be established statewide for $8,000 a school, or only $14 per pupil per year.

John Cauthen, a member of the governing commission, says costs will decrease with newer and better equipment.

In addition, Cauthen says, E-TV, South Carolina's word for educational television, will eventually solve the teacher shortage and enable payment of higher salaries by reducing the number of those on the payroll.

At present, algebra, geometry, physical science, South Carolina history, and French are taught on television.

An art department provides elaborate visual aids far beyond the reach of any individual school.

As the system is expanded into each county, the E-TV commission pays for bringing in the cable and installing equipment in two schools. Other schools within the county may hook into the cable. The cost varies, depending upon how close they are to the cable.

The system thus far includes, in addition to public schools, three independent colleges, one a Negro, church-supported institution, and one Roman Catholic parochial high school.

With six channels available, the maximum potential here is 72 half-hour lessons during a school day.

Education Director George E. Bair brings the classroom teachers and the television teacher together for course preparations. Lessons are planned two weeks in advance, and the television teachers handle tests and assignments.

East Berlin 'Prison'

People try as desperately to escape from East Berlin as men try to get out of prison. If living under communism is that hard to take, those in this country who are "soft" on communism should think again.

Anyone who is willing to risk a hail of machine-gun bullets in an effort to find the sort of freedom that exists in the United States surely is showing a big preference for the kind of life in which human liberty is found.

Two young East Berlin building workers rammed a heavy dump truck through the East Berlin wall a few days ago and then sprinted to safety under tommy-gun fire from border guards on the communist side. One is 22 and the other 27 years old. West Berlin police withheld their names.

They found a spot where the wall, barbed wire and all, was only about seven feet high and not too heavily reinforced. An empty lot on the East Berlin side gave them room to get a running start.

The truck knocked a 15-foot breach in the wall, then stopped. The two men zig-zagged to dodge the fire of border guards, across empty bomb sites. They reached a door and found it locked but managed to climb over a low wall for protection.

It has often been remarked that no one ever seems to try to escape from the west side into East Berlin. If the people believed the communist system, with its Iron Curtain and Berlin wall, to be superior to the system of individual freedom, surely some of them would try to go over to the East Berlin side.

Robert Kennedy, attorney general, has gone so far as to intimate that the communists in the United States may not be a serious threat because they do not constitute a strong political party, but neither he nor anyone can deny that individual freedom is lost when the communists take over.

Sinatra Reported Angry

Frank Sinatra, of singing and acting fame, reportedly blew his top because President Kennedy did not pay a personal visit to him in California. This is the second time Sinatra has felt that he was not duly honored by the Kennedy family. The first time was when Joseph Kennedy, the president's father, did not entertain Sinatra and other members of the "clan."

Everyone knows that Sinatra was given so much publicity and attention at the Democratic national convention in 1960 that it became ridiculous. It looked as if Sinatra might be one of the candidates for the nomination, so often was he featured in television pictures on that occasion. In fact, some of those seeking the nomination received less attention than went to Sinatra.

Sinatra, who has played in a good many "hood" pictures, in which he appears to be particularly well cast, has never got over the gang spirit which usually goes along with adolescence.

Always, the boss of his "clan," which he calls it, instead of gang, he also has to be the boss in motion pictures which he produces and plays with members of the "clan." In a recent picture he played with Peter Lawford, brother-in-law of President Kennedy; Dean Martin, who used to play with Jerry Lewis, until Lewis out-shone him and Sammie Davis, Jr., Negro, who is married to a Swedish white woman. All of these are members of the Sinatra "clan" and he lorded it over them in the picture as he does in real life.

Maybe Sinatra thought President Kennedy should visit him because he allows Lawford, the president's brother-in-law, to be a member of his "clan."

Exercise Rewarding

Some women readers who have been writing to such medical columnists as Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn and Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, who write for the Monroe Morning World and the Monroe News-Star, respectively, because they are dissatisfied with their own physical measurements, should read an Associated Press item out of Scarborough, England. It tells of an exercise that is reportedly very beneficial.

The item reads as follows:

"Two girls working in a snack bar complained to their boss that pulling the handles on the coffee machine added inches to their chest measurements. One woman said she used to have a 39-inch measurement and now measures 42. Another said she is now 42½ and used to be 39. So Boss Peter Jaconelli transferred them to other tasks and assigned 20-year-old Gillian Green to the coffee machine. Gillian, declining to disclose her present measurements, said enthusiastically:

" 'If the job does for me what it did for them I'll be delighted.' "

Dr. Steincrohn, who is not a real enthusiast for exercise and thinks a rocking chair is about "the best-est of the mostest," might not object to anything no more strenuous than pulling the handles on a coffee machine.

Both Dr. Steincrohn and Dr. Van Dellen have indicated they may think a man should be satisfied with things the way nature provided them, even if his wife isn't. So far as we have seen, neither of the medics has suggested rounding the figure with expertly placed foam rubber injections but some plastic surgeons are said to be able to do a good job with it.

Anyhow, anyone who wants to can pull a coffee machine handle, even if he has to buy his own coffee machine.

Sharing With Russia

Since 1959 American taxpayers have willingly poured $3.5 billion into our space program and congress is now being asked to appropriate $3.7 billion for 1963.

Senator Homer Capehart, R., Ind., recently warned that President Kennedy's proposal for collaboration with Russia in space "could well be another in the long list of foreign policy mistakes made by the United States leadership in the last 30 years."

Capehart, wondering whether we had learned nothing from our dealings with the Russians at Yalta and Teheren, continued: "Are we going to add our latest technology in the scientific knowledge of missiles, rockets and other space development to the information we gave the Russians when we handed them the whole package of German technical and engineering accomplishments at the end of World War II?"

Capehart stated that the taxpayer "is glad to foot the bill in the interest of the United States, but I doubt his enthusiasm for sharing the results with the very government threatening to destroy us."

The bald eagle, adopted as an emblem of the United States in 1782, is waning. Fewer than 500 pairs survive south of Canada. For years they were hunted for bounty. Now federal law protects them.

Petulant Attitude

Bastrop, La.

To the Editor:

The petulant attitude of President Kennedy over the price increase in steel is disgusting. Apparently, our President has forgotten, or has chosen to ignore, that private property and private enterprise revolve around profit. Even with our federal government moving rapidly toward socialism through medical and educational channels, as well as pre-emption in various areas of law and legislation, it is difficult to understand how a wealthy, educated President can attempt to arrogate to himself the function of running private businesses and deciding what is best for each and every individual.

President Kennedy is doubtless miffed because his personal intervention in the steel - labor settlement, wherein only fringe - benefit costs were increased, did not withhold a price increase. The terrifying aspect of his subsequent action in instigating anti-trust investigation and other possible governmental sanctions is despotic utilization of power to impose his economic concept of federally controlled prices, wages and property upon the thousands of persons who work for, manage and own the steel mills.

By his actions, the President has marked himself as either believing in federal control of prices, wages and the means of production or has deemed such action as necessary to further his political future.

Unless the American people wake up and insist that their congressmen support private enterprise and individual initiative without government interference or control, individual freedom will be subjected to the particular political power that may be in office and the sacrifice of countless lives in world wars and in police actions, supposedly for our freedom must be considered as a futile and foolish effort.

MERWIN M. BRANDON JR.

Wheelis Answered

In a letter to the editor, April 8, 1962, Mr. O. F. Wheelis launched an attack on the Monroe Morning World. Secondarily he attacked General Walker, accusing him of the following: (1) Indoctrinating his troops on voting. General Walker has repeatedly denied this and it has never been proven. (2) Calling Eleanor Roosevelt, Truman and Acheson "pink." He denies calling Truman and Acheson "pink", but does not deny applying this term to Eleanor. I don't blame him.

Mr. Wheelis indicated that the Monroe Morning World had defended General Walker's case while denouncing that of Pfc. Owen. Perhaps the Morning World defended General Walker because he was found guilty by Secretary McNamara before he was allowed the right of investigation or trial. The normal procedure is for the military authorities to conduct an investigation or trial of an officer or enlisted man before the verdict is rendered, such as the case of Pfc. Owen.

Mr. Wheelis said that the Monroe Morning World agreed with the Shreveport paper that, "the President made a mess of the callup of these reserves, and that it was politics that caused him to call them, when at the time the Russians were building walls in Berlin . . .". Now let us look at the statement as the Monroe Morning World editorial actually reported it: "There are some who believe that President Kennedy's call-up of the reserves was a political, rather than a military, maneuver and they agree with Owen that the reserves should be released. This, however, is a question that is hard to determine. At the time the call-up was issued, Russia was putting the pressure on this country in several ways, including its menacing attitude toward Berlin."

Thus, we see that Mr. Wheelis has distorted the truth. Distortion of the truth is something that a person should avoid when writing for the public. If a person has to show his bias, he should at least stick to the facts.

Mr. Wheelis compares the case of Owen with Walker. Pfc. Owen was leading some of his fellow soldiers in protests that lower the general morale and discipline. General Walker was leading his troops in such a manner as to raise their morale and discipline to the highest levels. According to the October 2nd issue of the U. S. News and World Report: "Under General Walker's leadership, the 24th division was judged variously by his superiors as the best, or one of the two best, divisions in Europe, and, perhaps, in the Army."

Mr. Wheelis stated that the only punishment that the general got was loss of his retirement pay. General Walker did not lose his retirement pay as punishment, but he lost it because he resigned voluntarily from the army. His real punishment was the smear against his character and his campaign to inform the men in his division. He was punished by civilians who used the distortion of the truth to destroy his usefulness.

Mr. Wheelis stated that the Monroe Morning World is strictly for the big dog and doesn't give a hoot for the little fellow. I seem to remember many editorials in defense of the farmers, small businessmen, and other little fellows.

Mr. Wheelis accused the Monroe Morning World and others, perhaps such as this writer, of spreading hate and discord. He further stated that such opinions may divide the people, and bring about riots and disorder. The people are already divided, and I hope that the Monroe Morning World will succeed in winning some of the people away from the socialistic drift.

It would appear that Mr. Wheelis has falsely accused the Monroe Morning World. In the future he should try to stick to the facts and the truth, for the truth shall set you free.

Homestead Exemptions

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

And to the homeowners who enjoy the benefits of homestead exemptions.

On May 8th there will be a school bond election to decide a five - mill tax increase.

There has been a minimum of pro and con publicity in regard to this matter.

It seems that the school board, as well as the news media, are dragging their feet by withholding the merits or demerits as to whether the proposal is justified or whether it would be an imposition.

The homeowners who, in the past, have voted for increase of taxes solely because it did not affect them should change their ways.

However, as one who certainly believes in substantial support of our public schools, I will vote for it upon being convinced it is necessary, but will not apply poor principles of imposition on industry and commerce just to be a "me too" character.

In view of recent bond election, the schools being closed election day in order that the teachers serve as election officials, it would be well for the taxpayers (homesteaders included) to examine closely before voting for or against. Hoping the homesteader element will keep in mind that industry and commerce are the lifelines to our economy, our jobs and our well being in general, will accordingly exercise wisdom when voting for this proposed or any other in the future.

From A Homesteader,

Disputes Letter

R. D. GIBSON.
Delhi, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to take issue with the Sunday, April 8th, letter to the Editor by Mr. Wheelis, where he compared the cases of Pfc. Owen and Gen. Edwin Walker.

As for the case of Owen, it seems to me that a man, blessed by being born in a free country, should be more than willing to be inconvenienced if that country should be endangered. Many, many men have laid down their lives for our country. His time seems small when compared with the sacrifices others have made.

Gen. Walker's case was entirely different. He was willing to give up everything for his country. He gave up his career. He faced possible court martial because he was unwilling to compromise his principles. He has been made to suffer much because of this.

You stated that the Editor hates President Kennedy. This is absurd. No one hates President Kennedy. We have a right to disagree with him. This is what freedom is all about. If everyone did follow blindly after him (as you suggest) then you would have reason to be concerned.

You seem to think Kennedy has been a regular strong-arm man in Berlin. If so, why did he allow the communists to build the wall? Do you think he handled the Cuban invasion firmly? Do you think it was in the national interest to finance the invasion of the Katanga Province, our avowed friend? Do you think it wise to give aid to Communist countries?

You suggest there is no infiltration in our government. Perhaps you are right. Perhaps they are just plain stupid. Either way we are the losers.

You stated that you have never in your life voted for a Republican (as if this were something of which to be proud). This means, of course, that you must have voted twice for Adlai. The fact that a responsible political party has twice nominated such a man for the highest office in our land, if it weren't so tragic, would be laughable.

Since you are such an avowed Democrat, and laud Kennedy for his firmness on the foreign scene, perhaps you will be interested in reading the "Liberal Papers," a book compiled by some of the leaders in the Democratic party. The following are some of the thoughts contained in this book:

1. West Berlin is of no value "except as a moral liability of the Western Powers." Presumably the moral liability can be abandoned. East Germany would be recognized.

2. NATO should be disestablished, leaving nothing but an Atlantic alliance of Britain, Canada and the United States, Thus all of continental Europe should be left to the caprice of the Soviet Union.

3. At home we should abandon the "half - baked arrangement called civil defense."

4. We should abandon the idea of nuclear testing.

5. We should let the Soviets plug in on our radar warning system. Thus the Soviet Union would be allowed to warn itself against possible surprise attack by the United States.

6. We should liberalize our trade policy with Russia.

7. The idea that we can avoid war by preparing for it is "irrational."

8. There should be recognition by the U. S. and admission to the U. N. of both Germanys, both Koreas, Communist China, both Viet Nams, incorporate Quemoy and Matsu into the China mainland.

Naturally there are many good conservative Democrats, especially in the South. But who wields the power? Look at the 1960 Democratic platform. The answer is obvious.

Some people seem so willing to come to the defense of the government in the face of criticism. Too willing, as if they were afraid to believe the truth, as if by closing their eyes it will go away. They are quick to pick up leftist inspired name-calling, the favorite of which is "reactionary," "extremist" and "rightest."

If, because I believe in constitutional government, a system of free enterprise and States Rights; if because I believe our freedoms are worth fighting and dying for; if because I believe man was created in the image of God and is not an animal whose only concern is his stomach, I am a rightist, then I'll bear the name proudly.

Public Awakens

Girard, La.

To the Editor:

It is an evident fact that the public is awakening to the seriousness of conditions facing us in our relationships with the world events. It has been the custom of us all to leave our public affairs to the public officials with no thought to the way things are run.

The politicians began operations in the public places, and take over inch by inch, and foot by foot, until they ascended the scales of measurement, until they have reached the hypothesis, beyond conjecture. The people are left out of the whole matter, as is obviously manifested in the approach to the issues of this administration, especially the Kennedy brothers, in their desperate efforts to drive through congress more laws to regulate into a more and more centralized government, that is already tantamount to dictatorship. Robert Kennedy's appearance before the Senate committee on civil rights legislation, his remarks revealed the groveling political based attempt. That should shock the morals of every responsible voter and citizen of America. Any suggestion by anyone, to Americans, to remedy, by remodeling, the laws of a once greater nation, based upon these sacred laws, for the sake of furthering their ambitions, is not for America. Any law that lowers the status of a society, to please a class or race, is a display of frontiersmanship, backward, instead of forward, bringing about turmoil strife, misery and suffering finally total destruction to the whole thing. May the people realize their obligations and not let this attempt materialize. Let your congressmen know where you stand. Watch the Kennedy boys destroy themselves. Not let them destroy America. We need to attend to our business. Let other nations learn to get along with each other then, consider their approach upon its face value. Not our dollar value, and individual opportunities.

CHAS. ROGERS.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator From Arizona

Has the United States already embarked on a policy of unilateral disarmament without even knowing it?

This is a frightening possibility, which I saw fit to raise on the Senate floor during the recent debate on the United Nations bond proposal.

To understand this possibility, it is important to realize that disarmament could take the form of not keeping abreast of the enemy in the development of strategic weapons. A policy of unilateral disarmament by the United States could well begin with moves to limit the further development of our nuclear capacity and to overlook the opportunity to speed development of weapon delivery vehicles.

Such steps can be taken by executive order or through administrative policy decisions. There is no requirement that they be adopted in treaty form at Geneva and presented to the United States Senate for approval.

In other words, to start the slow disintegration of American military power in the hope that the Russians will hasten to follow suit for the purpose of reducing world tension, it isn't necessary to start dumping our nuclear arsenal into the ocean or to schedule abandonment of our overseas bases. It is necessary only to throw repeated roadblocks in the way of research and development of essential weapons and methods for delivering them.

Now in this light, I believe that our delay in resuming American nuclear tests in the atmosphere has constituted a move in the direction of unilateral disarmament. This delay has done irreparable harm and has cast doubt on whether the United States retains its lead over the rest of the world in the vital field of nuclear armaments.

In my opinion, we never should have agreed to a test ban in the first place without an ironclad inspection system that would have guaranteed against Communist cheating. And when the Russians proved their bad faith by suddenly resuming tests, we should have gone ahead immediately with every kind of nuclear test needed to provide adequate development of our nuclear system.

By the same token, I suggest that there is reason to look askance at the administration's refusal to authorize full-scale development of the RS - 70 manned bomber program. This entails a weapons delivery system which many experienced military leaders believe is essential to our future defense.

During the recent debate in Congress on the RS-70 (formerly the B-70) program, the defense department raised objections which had largely to do with cost factors and technical features of the plane.

But there is reason to wonder whether the administration's preoccupation with the Geneva conference and stage one of President Kennedy's general disarmament program didn't add to the official reluctance to order an immediate go-ahead on the RS-70 program. It is important to understand, in this connection, that stage one of the president's program calls for the reduction of "strategic delivery vehicles" and that this is the category into which the RS-70 would fit. It is also important to remember that Secretary of State Dean Rusk has expressed hope for completion of stage one of the general disarmament program within three years.

The whole subject of disarmament, unilateral and otherwise, is one upon which the American people need a great deal of information. There is a time to work for genuine disarmament, and there is a time to avoid being drawn into unrealistic discussions which can lead to commitments we would regret.

How do you Stand, sir?

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, April 22, the 112th day of the year with 253 to follow in 1962. This is Easter Sunday.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1864, Congress authorized the director of the mint to use the motto "In God We Trust" on all coins of the United States.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy fired the first shot of the Spanish-American War when the USS Nashville opened fire on a Spanish freighter off Key West, Fla.

In 1915, for the first time in World War I, the German army started to use poison gas in direct violation of the rules of the The Hague convention.

In 1954, the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee, under Sen. Karl Mundt, started hearings on the controversial quarrel between the Army Department and Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

A thought for the day: French novelist Marcel Proust said: "The time which we have at our disposal every day is elastic; the passions that we feel expand it, those that we inspire contract it; and habit fills up what remains."

East Berlin 'Prison'

People try as desperately to escape from East Berlin as men try to get out of prison. If living under communism is that hard to take, those in this country who are "soft" on communism should think again.

Anyone who is willing to risk a hail of machine-gun bullets in an effort to find the sort of freedom that exists in the United States surely is showing a big preference for the kind of life in which human liberty is found.

Two young East Berlin building workers rammed a heavy dump truck through the East Berlin wall a few days ago and then sprinted to safety under tommy-gun fire from border guards on the communist side. One is 22 and the other 27 years old. West Berlin police withheld their names.

They found a spot where the wall, barbed wire and all, was only about seven feet high and not too heavily reinforced. An empty lot on the East Berlin side gave them room to get a running start.

The truck knocked a 15-foot breach in the wall, then stopped. The two men zig-zagged to dodge the fire of border guards, across empty bomb sites. They reached a door and found it locked but managed to climb over a low wall for protection.

It has often been remarked that no one ever seems to try to escape from the west side into East Berlin. If the people believed the communist system, with its Iron Curtain and Berlin wall, to be superior to the system of individual freedom, surely some of them would try to go over to the East Berlin side.

Robert Kennedy, attorney general, has gone so far as to intimate that the communists in the United States may not be a serious threat because they do not constitute a strong political party, but neither he nor anyone can deny that individual freedom is lost when the communists take over.

Sinatra Reported Angry

Frank Sinatra, of singing and acting fame, reportedly blew his top because President Kennedy did not pay a personal visit to him in California. This is the second time Sinatra has felt that he was not duly honored by the Kennedy family. The first time was when Joseph Kennedy, the president's father, did not entertain Sinatra and other members of the "clan."

Everyone knows that Sinatra was given so much publicity and attention at the Democratic national convention in 1960 that it became ridiculous. It looked as if Sinatra might be one of the candidates for the nomination, so often was he featured in television pictures on that occasion. In fact, some of those seeking the nomination received less attention than went to Sinatra.

Sinatra, who has played in a good many "hood" pictures, in which he appears to be particularly well cast, has never got over the gang spirit which usually goes along with adolescence.

Always, the boss of his "clan," which he calls it, instead of gang, he also has to be the boss in motion pictures which he produces and plays with members of the "clan." In a recent picture he played with Peter Lawford, brother-in-law of President Kennedy; Dean Martin, who used to play with Jerry Lewis, until Lewis out-shone him and Sammie Davis, Jr., Negro, who is married to a Swedish white woman. All of these are members of the Sinatra "clan" and he lorded it over them in the picture as he does in real life.

Maybe Sinatra thought President Kennedy should visit him because he allows Lawford, the president's brother-in-law, to be a member of his "clan."

Exercise Rewarding

Some women readers who have been writing to such medical columnists as Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn and Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, who write for the Monroe Morning World and the Monroe News-Star, respectively, because they are dissatisfied with their own physical measurements, should read an Associated Press item out of Scarborough, England. It tells of an exercise that is reportedly very beneficial.

The item reads as follows:

"Two girls working in a snack bar complained to their boss that pulling the handles on the coffee machine added inches to their chest measurements. One woman said she used to have a 39-inch measurement and now measures 42. Another said she is now 42½ and used to be 39. So Boss Peter Jaconelli transferred them to other tasks and assigned 20-year-old Gillian Green to the coffee machine. Gillian, declining to disclose her present measurements, said enthusiastically:

"'If the job does for me what it did for them I'll be delighted.'"

Dr. Steincrohn, who is not a real enthusiast for exercise and thinks a rocking chair is about "the best-est of the mostest," might not object to anything no more strenuous than pulling the handles on a coffee machine.

Both Dr. Steincrohn and Dr. Van Dellen have indicated they may think a man should be satisfied with things the way nature provided them, even if his wife isn't. So far as we have seen, neither of the medics has suggested rounding the figure with expertly placed foam rubber injections but some plastic surgeons are said to be able to do a good job with it.

Anyhow, anyone who wants to can pull a coffee machine handle, even if he has to buy his own coffee machine.

Sharing With Russia

Since 1959 American taxpayers have willingly poured $3.5 billion into our space program and congress is now being asked to appropriate $3.7 billion for 1963.

Senator Homer Capehart, R., Ind., recently warned that President Kennedy's proposal for collaboration with Russia in space "could well be another in the long list of foreign policy mistakes made by the United States leadership in the last 30 years."

Capehart, wondering whether we had learned nothing from our dealings with the Russians at Yalta and Teheren, continued: "Are we going to add our latest technology in the scientific knowledge of missiles, rockets and other space development to the information we gave the Russians when we handed them the whole package of German technical and engineering accomplishments at the end of World War II?"

Capehart stated that the taxpayer "is glad to foot the bill in the interest of the United States, but I doubt his enthusiasm for sharing the results with the very government threatening to destroy us."

The bald eagle, adopted as an emblem of the United States in 1782, is waning. Fewer than 500 pairs survive south of Canada. For years they were hunted for bounty. Now federal law protects them.

Views Of Our Readers

Petulant Attitude

Bastrop, La.

To the Editor:

The petulant attitude of President Kennedy over the price increase in steel is disgusting. Apparently, our President has forgotten, or has chosen to ignore, that private property and private enterprise revolve around profit. Even with our federal government moving rapidly toward socialism through medical and educational channels, as well as pre-emption in various areas of law and legislation, it is difficult to understand how a wealthy, educated President can attempt to arrogate to himself the function of running private businesses and deciding what is best for each and every individual.

President Kennedy is doubtless miffed because his personal intervention in the steel - labor settlement, wherein only fringe - benefit costs were increased, did not withhold a price increase. The terrifying aspect of his subsequent action in instigating anti-trust investigation and other possible governmental sanctions is despotic utilization of power to impose his economic concept of federally controlled prices, wages and property upon the thousands of persons who work for, manage and own the steel mills.

By his actions, the President has marked himself as either believing in federal control of prices, wages and the means of production or has deemed such action as necessary to further his political future.

Unless the American people wake up and insist that their congressmen support private enterprise and individual initiative without government interference or control, individual freedom will be subjected to the particular political power that may be in office and the sacrifice of countless lives in world wars and in police actions, supposedly for our freedom must be considered as a futile and foolish effort.

MERWIN M. BRANDON JR.

Wheelis Answered

In a letter to the editor, April 8, 1962, Mr. O. F. Wheelis launched an attack on the Monroe Morning World. Secondarily he attacked General Walker, accusing him of the following: (1) Indoctrinating his troops on voting. General Walker has repeatedly denied this and it has never been proven. (2) Calling Eleanor Roosevelt, Truman and Acheson "pink." He denies calling Truman and Acheson "pink", but does not deny applying this term to Eleanor. I don't blame him.

Mr. Wheelis indicated that the Monroe Morning World had defended General Walker's case while denouncing that of Pfc. Owen. Perhaps the Morning World defended General Walker because he was found guilty by Secretary McNamara before he was allowed the right of investigation or trial. The normal procedure is for the military authorities to conduct an investigation or trial of an officer or enlisted man before the verdict is rendered, such as the case of Pfc. Owen.

Mr. Wheelis said that the Monroe Morning World agreed with the Shreveport paper that, "the President made a mess of the callup of these reserves, and that it was politics that caused him to call them, when at the time the Russians were building walls in Berlin . . .". Now let us look at the statement as the Monroe Morning World editorial actually reported it: "There are some who believe that President Kennedy's call-up of the reserves was a political, rather than a military, maneuver and they agree with Owen that the reserves should be released. This, however, is a question that is hard to determine. At the time the call-up was issued, Russia was putting the pressure on this country in several ways, including its menacing attitude toward Berlin."

Thus, we see that Mr. Wheelis has distorted the truth. Distortion of the truth is something that a person should avoid when writing for the public. If a person has to show his bias, he should at least stick to the facts.

Mr. Wheelis compares the case of Owen with Walker. Pfc. Owen was leading some of his fellow soldiers in protests that lower the general morale and discipline. General Walker was leading his troops in such a manner as to raise their morale and discipline to the highest levels. According to the October 2nd issue of the U. S. News and World Report: "Under General Walker's leadership, the 24th division was judged variously by his superiors as the best, or one of the two best, divisions in Europe, and, perhaps, in the Army."

Mr. Wheelis stated that the only punishment that the general got was loss of his retirement pay. General Walker did not lose his retirement pay as punishment, but he lost it because he resigned voluntarily from the army. His real punishment was the smear against his character and his campaign to inform the men in his division. He was punished by civilians who used the distortion of the truth to destroy his usefulness.

Mr. Wheelis stated that the Monroe Morning World is strictly for the big dog and doesn't give a hoot for the little fellow. I seem to remember many editorials in defense of the farmers, small businessmen, and other little fellows.

Mr. Wheelis accused the Monroe Morning World and others, perhaps such as this writer, of spreading hate and discord. He further stated that such opinions may divide the people, and bring about riots and disorder. The people are already divided, and I hope that the Monroe Morning World will succeed in winning some of the people away from the socialistic drift.

It would appear that Mr. Wheelis has falsely accused the Monroe Morning World. In the future he should try to stick to the facts and the truth, for the truth shall set you free.

Homestead Exemptions

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

And to the homeowners who enjoy the benefits of homestead exemptions.

On May 8th there will be a school bond election to decide a five - mill tax increase.

There has been a minimum of pro and con publicity in regard to this matter.

It seems that the school board, as well as the news media, are dragging their feet by withholding the merits or demerits as to whether the proposal is justified or whether it would be an imposition.

The homeowners who, in the past, have voted for increase of taxes solely because it did not affect them should change their ways.

However, as one who certainly believes in substantial support of our public schools, I will vote for it upon being convinced it is necessary, but will not apply poor principles of imposition on industry and commerce just to be a "me too" character.

In view of recent bond election, the schools being closed election day in order that the teachers serve as election officials, it would be well for the taxpayers (homesteaders included) to examine closely before voting for or against. Hoping the homesteader element will keep in mind that industry and commerce are the lifelines to our economy, our jobs and our well being in general, will accordingly exercise wisdom when voting for this proposed or any other in the future.

From A Homesteader,

Disputes Letter

R. D. GIBSON.
Delhi, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to take issue with the Sunday, April 8th, letter to the Editor by Mr. Wheelis, where he compared the cases of Pfc. Owen and Gen. Edwin Walker.

As for the case of Owen, it seems to me that a man, blessed by being born in a free country, should be more than willing to be inconvenienced if that country should be endangered. Many, many men have laid down their lives for our country. His time seems small when compared with the sacrifices others have made.

Gen. Walker's case was entirely different. He was willing to give up everything for his country. He gave up his career. He faced possible court martial because he was unwilling to compromise his principles. He has been made to suffer much because of this.

You stated that the Editor hates President Kennedy. This is absurd. No one hates President Kennedy. We have a right to disagree with him. This is what freedom is all about. If everyone did follow blindly after him (as you suggest) then you would have reason to be concerned.

You seem to think Kennedy has been a regular strong-arm man in Berlin. If so, why did he allow the communists to build the wall? Do you think he handled the Cuban invasion firmly? Do you think it was in the national interest to finance the invasion of the Katanga Province, our avowed friend? Do you think it wise to give aid to Communist countries?

You suggest there is no infiltration in our government. Perhaps you are right. Perhaps they are just plain stupid. Either way we are the losers.

You stated that you have never in your life voted for a Republican (as if this were something of which to be proud). This means, of course, that you must have voted twice for Adlai. The fact that a responsible political party has twice nominated such a man for the highest office in our land, if it weren't so tragic, would be laughable.

Since you are such an avowed Democrat, and laud Kennedy for his firmness on the foreign scene, perhaps you will be interested in reading the "Liberal Papers," a book compiled by some of the leaders in the Democratic party. The following are some of the thoughts contained in this book:

1. West Berlin is of no value "except as a moral liability of the Western Powers." Presumably the moral liability can be abandoned. East Germany would be recognized.

2. NATO should be disestablished, leaving nothing but an Atlantic alliance of Britain, Canada and the United States, Thus all of continental Europe should be left to the caprice of the Soviet Union.

3. At home we should abandon the "half - baked arrangement called civil defense."

4. We should abandon the idea of nuclear testing.

5. We should let the Soviets plug in on our radar warning system. Thus the Soviet Union would be allowed to warn itself against possible surprise attack by the United States.

6. We should liberalize our trade policy with Russia.

7. The idea that we can avoid war by preparing for it is "irrational."

8. There should be recognition by the U. S. and admission to the U. N. of both Germanys, both Koreas, Communist China, both Viet Nams, incorporate Quemoy and Matsu into the China mainland.

Naturally there are many good conservative Democrats, especially in the South. But who wields the power? Look at the 1960 Democratic platform. The answer is obvious.

Some people seem so willing to come to the defense of the government in the face of criticism. Too willing, as if they were afraid to believe the truth, as if by closing their eyes it will go away. They are quick to pick up leftist inspired name-calling, the favorite of which is "reactionary," "extremist" and "rightest."

If, because I believe in constitutional government, a system of free enterprise and States Rights; if because I believe our freedoms are worth fighting and dying for; if because I believe man was created in the image of God and is not an animal whose only concern is his stomach, I am a rightist, then I'll bear the name proudly.

(MRS.) GLYN CALDWELL.

Public Awakens

Girard, La.

To the Editor:

It is an evident fact that the public is awakening to the seriousness of conditions facing us in our relationships with the world events. It has been the custom of us all to leave our public affairs to the public officials with no thought to the way things are run.

The politicians began operations in the public places, and take over inch by inch, and foot by foot, until they ascended the scales of measurement, until they have reached the hypothesis, beyond conjecture. The people are left out of the whole matter, as is obviously manifested in the approach to the issues of this administration, especially the Kennedy brothers, in their desperate efforts to drive through congress more laws to regulate into a more and more centralized government, that is already tantamount to dictatorship. Robert Kennedy's appearance before the Senate committee on civil rights legislation, his remarks revealed the groveling political based attempt. That should shock the morals of every responsible voter and citizen of America. Any suggestion by anyone, to Americans, to remedy, by remodeling, the laws of a once greater nation, based upon these sacred laws, for the sake of furthering their ambitions, is not for America. Any law that lowers the status of a society, to please a class or race, is a display of frontiersmanship, backward, instead of forward, bringing about turmoil strife, misery and suffering finally total destruction to the whole thing. May the people realize their obligations and not let this attempt materialize. Let your congressmen know where you stand. Watch the Kennedy boys destroy themselves. Not let them destroy America. We need to attend to our business. Let other nations learn to get along with each other then, consider their approach upon its face value. Not our dollar value, and individual opportunities.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator From Arizona

Has the United States already embarked on a policy of unilateral disarmament without even knowing it?

This is a frightening possibility, which I saw fit to raise on the Senate floor during the recent debate on the United Nations bond proposal.

To understand this possibility, it is important to realize that disarmament could take the form of not keeping abreast of the enemy in the development of strategic weapons. A policy of unilateral disarmament by the United States could well begin with moves to limit the further development of our nuclear capacity and to overlook the opportunity to speed development of weapon delivery vehicles.

Such steps can be taken by executive order or through administrative policy decisions. There is no requirement that they be adopted in treaty form at Geneva and presented to the United States Senate for approval.

In other words, to start the slow disintegration of American military power in the hope that the Russians will hasten to follow suit for the purpose of reducing world tension, it isn't necessary to start dumping our nuclear arsenal into the ocean or to schedule abandonment of our overseas bases. It is necessary only to throw repeated roadblocks in the way of research and development of essential weapons and methods for delivering them.

Now in this light, I believe that our delay in resuming American nuclear tests in the atmosphere has constituted a move in the direction of unilateral disarmament. This delay has done irreparable harm and has cast doubt on whether the United States retains its lead over the rest of the world in the vital field of nuclear armaments.

In my opinion, we never should have agreed to a test ban in the first place without an ironclad inspection system that would have guaranteed against Communist cheating. And when the Russians proved their bad faith by suddenly resuming tests, we should have gone ahead immediately with every kind of nuclear test needed to provide adequate development of our nuclear system.

By the same token, I suggest that there is reason to look askance at the administration's refusal to authorize full-scale development of the RS - 70 manned bomber program. This entails a weapons delivery system which many experienced military leaders believe is essential to our future defense.

During the recent debate in Congress on the RS-70 (formerly the B-70) program, the defense department raised objections which had largely to do with cost factors and technical features of the plane.

But there is reason to wonder whether the administration's preoccupation with the Geneva conference and stage one of President Kennedy's general disarmament program didn't add to the official reluctance to order an immediate go-ahead on the RS-70 program. It is important to understand, in this connection, that stage one of the president's program calls for the reduction of "strategic delivery vehicles" and that this is the category into which the RS-70 would fit. It is also important to remember that Secretary of State Dean Rusk has expressed hope for completion of stage one of the general disarmament program within three years.

The whole subject of disarmament, unilateral and otherwise, is one upon which the American people need a great deal of information. There is a time to work for genuine disarmament, and there is a time to avoid being drawn into unrealistic discussions which can lead to commitments we would regret.

How do you Stand, sir?

Today is Sunday, April 22, the 112th day of the year with 253 to follow in 1962. This is Easter Sunday.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1864, Congress authorized the director of the mint to use the motto "In God We Trust" on all coins of the United States.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy fired the first shot of the Spanish-American War when the USS Nashville opened fire on a Spanish freighter off Key West, Fla.

Here And There

As yo" recall, Adlai Stevenson was outraged when Senator Jackson of Washington cast doubts on the UN. According to reliable information the ambassador had more reason for anger than he realized. According to the report, the President knew in advance what Jackson was going to say, and agrees (1) that some officials seem to think the UN is a diplomatic cure - all which Kennedy doesn't think it is, and (2) that the administration must prepare for a time when the UN may flop as an effective tool of U. S. foreign policy — even turn anti-U.S.

What the Internal Revenue Service has in mind when it looks over this year's returns is suggested in the case of Fordyce, Arkansas, on which a pack of agents descended to make a wholesale canvas. Of 948 taxpayers checked, 303 were found to be delinquent, and they owed the government an additional $48,000. Chamber of Commerce officials griped so loudly to the newspapers that IRS now says it's abandoning wholesale invasions of towns by various tax divisions, a practice the service has been using for years according to Insiders Newsletter.

Another modern neurosis has just been discovered by some Paris doctors — cancerophobia. Fear of cancer, they found, is more prevalent in towns than in the country, reaches mild epidemic proportions immediately following a campaign to raise money for cancer research and is, in most cases, unnecessary. The French study of 476 patients revealed that over 75 per cent had psychoneurotic problems caused by their anxiety, but only 2.9 per cent actually had cancer. The remainder needed medical attention but were overly concerned emotionally — 50.6 per cent had a benign, noncancerous growth; only six per cent showed precancerous symptoms.

According to reports, the next vanishing childhood disease will be measles — and medical insiders predict it will go next year. Extensive clinical testing in all parts of the world with children of all ages, using various types of measles vaccine, has been underway for three years. The wide research has come up with what is believed to be the right vaccine. Nine U. S. drug firms have vaccines in the works.

European marriage bureaus have come up with the latest aid for shy bachelors — if there are any such things. It is a latter - day John Alden in the form of taped marriage proposals. Suitors too shy to pop the question in person can now record it — with expert coaching provided — and turn it over to a bureaucratic middleman; the agent then plays the tape to the suitor's true love (in a romantic, flower-decked setting, accompanied by suitable hearts - and - flowers music). The bachelor pays $15 for the service if the girl turns him down, and $25 if she accepts . . .

If you're sick but successful, perhaps the last thing in the world you want is a cure. The current issue of "Psychosomatic Medicine" tells the story of a businessman who had an international reputation for rehabilitating floundering businesses. Throughout his career, he was in constant pain from an undiagnosed tumor under a toenail, and from a duodenal ulcer. Because of the pain, he became intolerant, ruthless, aggressive, hard - driving. Even his sexual disinterest in his wife was blamed on his painful foot. At the height of his career the tumor under the toenail was found and removed and surgery was used on his ulcer. For the first time in his life he lost all interest in his work, began drinking heavily, had a serious auto accident and became totally dependent on his wife. Finally, he gave up working altogether. The results — In his mid-50's, he lives on a small farm — free of pain and ambition . . .

Facts Worth Knowing

Safety checks of 3½ million U. S. cars and trucks last year found one in six was a highway hazard. The most common defect: Faulty rear lights.

Rural capitalists: More than 80 per cent of American farmers now own at least part of the land they till — an incentive that helps explain why they outproduce Soviet cooperative farms.

What home gadget needs the most repairs? A survey found it was the television set. Least trouble - prone, in order, were the kitchen refrigerator, stove, sewing machine and electric iron.

The teaspoon was introduced around 1650, when Europeans and Americans began drinking tea. The spoons originally had perforated bowls.

One reason why Ireland must be heaven. Baby - sitters charge an average of only 35 cents an hour. Some hotels even provide this service free.

Something to sneeze at: Americans suffer about 115 - million head colds a year.

Our quotable notables: "When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hang on." — Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Inspiration: Many people sing in the bathroom, but Franz Schubert reportedly composed one of his greatest works — his "Unfinished Symphony" — while in the bathtub.

Quips from our contemporaries: Catholic Digest reports this sign in a Manhattan record shop:

"Used phonograph for sale, for sale, for sale, for sale."

Even educators can't agree on whether Johnny reads well enough. A poll showed 54 per cent thought present methods of teaching reading are effective, 44 per cent thought they aren't.

History lesson: At least two U. S. presidents died in debt. They were Thomas Jefferson, who owed $40,000, and William Henry Harrison, amount unknown. U. S. Grant left no estate of value except his memoirs — but they netted his family $500,000.

Many large and small business firms today believe their economic safety lies in diversification, but Andrew Carnegie, the rugged little steel tycoon, gave this advice: "Put all your eggs in one basket. Watch that basket."

Golfers might like this description of their favorite sport: "Golf is a game in which a ball 1½ inches in diameter is placed on another ball 8,000 miles in diameter. The object of the game is to hit the small ball and not the big one."

Do you worry about feeling inferior? Forget it. Psychology tests indicate that smart people often feel inferior, those who are really mentally inferior rarely realize it.

Nature notes: The firefly gives off one of the coolest known forms of light. The ears of fish and snakes have no outside openings — they "hear" through vibrations of the ground or water.

Around The Town

We are always glad to hear from our readers. And naturally we're appreciate it much more so when something that we do pleases them. We're particularly happy about the following letter from Mrs. Ione A. Hill, a teacher at the Clara Hall School.

We have always maintained and will continue to do so that the vast majority of our teachers are just as fine of people as you'd want to know and that they are trying to do what is right. Of course, in this profession as in any other the sour apples and the misfits are the ones singled out as representing the majority. This is wrong and is unfair. Maybe this could be changed with a little stricter policing by the good teachers.

We are printing Mrs. Hill's letter because of the unique program that's been developed at Clara High School. We think it's wonderful and believe a lot of other schools could learn a good lesson in such a plan. Here is the letter:

Dear Mr. Gates:

Your EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK of March 4, 1962 was - as usual - entertaining and informative. I was especially attracted to your report of the results of a survey showing how little high school students know about the economic system under which they live. Since the study of economics is my favorite and continous pursuit and, since you have evidenced your interest in it, I thought you might like to know what one elementary school is doing in teaching economics:

Clara Hall School, grades one through five, is teaching units on economics. The areas covered are extensive and could not be listed in their entirety. They range from the first grade exploration of "Money Comes In, Money Goes Out," through how people earn money and whether they are paid by self-employment, corporations, government; how our city works for us, how schools are financed, care of school property, how a bank operates, understanding of the terms "private enterprise," "socialism," "communism," profit and loss; saving and spending money wisely; evolution of the American economy from colonial times, our rising standard of living, the dynamic nature of our economy, production and marketing of goods and services.

Our upper grades, particularly, have been helped in their awareness of the American economic system by the American Adventure series, sponsored by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the Central Savings Bank.

Giving encouragement to our teaching of economics is the Principle of Clara Hall, Miss Eloise Cann, who is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Joint Economic Council which conducts annual summer seminars on economics.

Sincerely yours,

Make Believe Sounds Real In This One

OF CHEAT AND CHARMER. By Elliott Nugent. Simon and Schuster. $4.95.

Here is a novel about Hollywood and Broadway's stage, written by a man who has been in the thick of combat on both fronts.

The whole narrative revolves around Myron Myros. He has clawed his way to a top position in films (producer-director) in a hurry. It has cost him physically; his ailment is not ulcers, but a bad heart. This struggle also has made his uncertain in his allegiances to other people.

In his film ventures he has teamed up with two partners, one of whom is his father-in-law; Chief Lester, a long-time box office attraction. Myros has a nasty fight with him.

Myros' wife is a young actress who has made a success on European stages and wants to do something on the American stage. Myros doesn't want to help her, then he does. And he s e e m s unable to settle in his own mind whether he is in love with his wife or his mistress.

Nugent was an actor and playwright on Broadway, and then a director of plays and movies. This is his first novel, and because he knows writing and knows intimately the world of make believes he is writing about, he makes it sound real.

5 Boyhoods Has 2 Sets Of 'Values'

FIVE BOYHOODS. Edited by Martin Levin. Doubleday. $3.95.

There are five autobiographical pieces in this volume, and it has two values for the reader.

One is the interesting succession of contrasts it presents. From eldest to youngest, each writer has described his boyhood in a decade in the first half of this century. And as the decades marched by, there were changes in the American background through which these individuals lived.

The other value is in the writing itself. Each of these men is an accomplished and skilled writer, summoning into our ken the memories of a magic time, from viewpoints widely different.

Playwright Howard Lindsay tells what happened to him in the first decade of this century, and author Harry Golden relates his boyhood on New York's East Side in the second decade. Then cartoonist Walt Kelly (creator of Pogo) brings back the 1920s and critic William K. Zinsser recalls his early days of the 1930s. Novelist John Updike, now a 30 year old, invokes the memories of his boyhood in the 1940s.

Lindsay harks back to an age that now is dim. Golden chronicles the days of the immigrants in a New York that nearly has been forgotten. Kelly is a fine spinner of humorous phrases in telling about his days in Bridgeport and Philadelphia. Zinsser, who came from a well-heeled family that did not feel the depression, evokes an era of smug isolation. Updike remembers in graphic terms the small suburb of Reading, Pa., in which he grew up.

As editor Levin notes in his introduction, boyhood since World War II hasn't been the same. For one thing, the allowances given to modern children have turned them into the Economic Boy, worthy of the researches and pitches of the hucksters.

There is good reading in this volume, and an intriguing insight into life as it once was.

DESPITE OUTLOOK

South Africa Not Resting Too Easy

By RICHARD R. KASISCHKE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The world's richest gold mines are producing at a record rate. Foreign exchange reserves are at an 11-year high.

Yet South Africa is uneasy. One reason is many countries' hostility to the government's policy of strict racial segregation. Another is the march of black nationalism, now beating at the gates of neighboring Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Henrik Verwoerd is riding high, however. Whatever his Afro-Asian enemies in the United Nations may think of him, he has gained strength in the two years since an assassin struck him down. His all-white government rules with a peak majority in Parliament. His National party continues to gain, right down to local government levels.

Verwoerd and his aides say a new arms budget, increased by 70 per cent over last year, is intended to beat back any Afro-Asian-Communist invasion attempt and deal with any Communist subversion from within.

In addition to being bold, Verwoerd has been lucky.

In March 1960, the shooting down of several hundred demonstrating Africans at Sharpeville and other racial violence frightened Verwoerd's government into declaring a national state of emergency. For five months it arrested thousands of suspected subversives. In April 1960 Verwoerd was shot in the face by a white opponent of his segregation policies.

The race riots caused a flight of foreign capital that brought a drastic drop in foreign exchange reserves. The government had to order restrictions on export of capital and import of luxury goods and also ask for a loan from the International Monetary Fund and other foreign sources. These measures worked and the IMF loan was repaid before it was fully drawn.

Attempted strikes called by African leaders failed. Most of these leaders were jailed or driven into exile. Two major African organizations were outlawed under decrees.

Then Verwoerd launched out boldly on the international scene. He took South Africa out of the Commonwealth. He won a national referendum that made South Africa a republic divorced from the British crown. Last October, an election nearly wiped out the local Progress party, which advocates a multiracial government. (The nation's black majority has no vote).

These Verwoerd successes have dismayed most of his political opponents. It seems that a lot of the English-descended whites vote for him, even while they outwardly denounce his policies as damaging to South Africa's international reputation. Many of these people denouce Verwoerd while, apparently, they vote for him in order to retain low-paid nonwhite labor.

Vigorous criticism of Verwoerd's policies continues in English-language newspaper's, but it is not so sharp as it was two years ago.

To mop up unemployment, the government has announced a big Orange River development scheme that is called bigger than America's TVA. Verwoerd also has announced the planning of the first African independent state within South Africa, the Transkei. Many Africans led by the Nobel Peace Prize winner, Albert Luthuli, are suspicious of this scheme.

The Africans — who number 11 million against this country's 3-million whites—don't quite know what to do. They lack leaders and weapons.

Before the government presented its increased defense budget, Minister of Defense J. J. Fouche said certain Afro-Asian nations were "openly threatening and secretly planning" with Communist aid to invade this country. Verwoerd toned down this invasion scare after protests in the opposition press, but then let his ministers go on again on the former theme.

An editorial in the English-language Johannesburg Star said: "What our potential enemies feel very acutely—and make no secret of—is that the white South African's bossy attitude toward the nowhites here is symptomatic of an arrogance towards nonwhites in other parts of the world, and they very naturally resent it.

"In this particular situation guns are irrelevant. The wound can be healed only by humility—by the removal of arrogance and of the legislation that expresses and champions it."

On the other side of the argument, Verwoerd's own newspaper Johannesburg Transvaler said a "sickness in the Western nations" means "it is an honor to stand alone."

Whites are leaving the country about as fast as white immigrants can be recruited abroad. But many blacks flow into South Africa from independent nations, to get a share of the higher living standards here.

Near-Famine Hits Against Indonesia

By PETER ARNETT

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's President Sukarno has spent so much time and money on his militant West New Guinea campaign that near-famine has crept across his nation almost unobserved.

For months, Sukarno has been telling his people that the military campaign against the Netherlands must have top priority, no matter the hardship at home.

Indonesia's 96-million people are in no position to argue because Sukarno rules by decree with the armed forces' full backing.

Indonesia, however, is hungry and the full implications are just being brought home to Sukarno.

Reports earlier this year of terrible food shortages were denied by local authorities. Then in April, Sukarno's health minister, Dr. Satrio, visited the Indramaju district in West Java.

He discovered 60 persons had died of starvation. About 9,000 had been treated at the one hospital for malnutrition. Many of the sick, with distended bellies and spindly arms, were found in empty rice warehouses.

Authorities in Indramaju had failed to report the famine to the central government, apparently for fear of being blamed for poor administration. Officials in other areas perhaps have done similar coverup jobs.

The Indonesian peasant, passive after hundreds of years of feudal rule, Dutch colonialism and now Sukarno, complains little.

Authorities have established soup kitchens and antistarvation commands in some areas.

Even the soldier, traditionally well paid, well fed and well clothed, is taking pay and ration cuts so that the public can be helped.

Potentially the richest nation in Southeast Asia, Indonesia is staggering under an economic crisis that has diminished foreign exchange reserves to virtually nothing.

Indonesia needs foreign exchange to buy rice, the staple food. When available rice is so high that the average person can buy only a fraction of his needs.

Indonesia has rich food-producing areas. Poor transportation, racketeering, diversion of food to the West New Guinea front and natural calamities kept food from moving from the have-areas to the have-nots.

Rebellion and mismanagement of estates and nationalized industry have hurt the internal economy. Sukarno's "guided economy," which is pure socialism, has not started to work. Inflation continues because of war jitters.

Some of Dukarno's foreign critics argue that Sukarno is beating the drum over West New Guinea to take people's minds off internal problems. Observers in Jakarta tend to agree, however, that Sukarno's feeling about West New Guinea created many of Indonesia's present problems.

Hess, Other Under Guard

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, once Adolf Hitler's deputy, will be 68 next Thursday. It will be his 21st birthday in the hands of Hitler's enemies. He flew to Scotland in May 1941, and was taken captive.

Hess is one of the three people in Berlin still living under the joint rule of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France. The others are Albert Speer, Hitler's munitions minister and Baldur von Schirach, his youth leader.

All have been confined since 1946 in Spandau Prison, a gloomy red brick structure on Berlin's outskirts.

Hess is serving a life term. The other two were sentenced to 20 crimes tribunal.

Each of the four powers keeps a small permanent staff at Spandau. Every month, troops belonging to one of the four assume the bulk of the guard duty. This is the American month.

The three prisoners spend their time reading and gardening. They are allowed one 30-minute visit a month, but Hess does not receive visitors. At least this was the situation six years ago. Allied authorities now refuse any information on the prisoners.

New Highway Now In Use

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — The tourist driving between Mexico City and Puebla had his choice this week: An old route featuring history, beauty and hairpin turns, or a new speedway.

For almost four centuries, the highway to Mexico City has followed virtually the route worked out by the Spanish conquerors. It twists over mountains, some 12,000 feet high, with steep grades and 380 curves over an 84-mile route.

The new highway, with 70 curves, is 65 miles long. You can drive 60-75 miles an hour on a divided highway, whizzing by more than 100 underpasses and overpasses.

'GOOD ANGLO-AMERICAN'

Macmillan Rides On Peace Journey

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—A bit battered at home, Harold Macmillan rides forth next week in his role as the good Anglo-American.

He is the realist who recognizes the limits of Britain's power. Anxious to pull the Western Alliance together. Eager to check Communist expansionism. And to be the complete, totally trusted ally

These, at least, are parts of the image he is expected to invite as he goes to Washington for talks with President Kennedy and to New York to address the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

It is part of his job to advance the cause of U.S.-British friendship, and he is deft at it.

Many Britons in this April of 1962 have a narrower picture of their patrician-looking prime minister. To them Macmillan is a man with a load of troubles and a scarcity of friends.

His conservative party, in office well over a decade, is going through one of its periodic slu s in popularity. In several recent special elections to fill vacant seats in the House of Commons, Macmillan's Tories have failed to gain their expected quota of votes.

A few voices inside the party have openly expressed dislike of his leadership. One Conservative legislator, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, even called for Macmillan's resignation. The prime minister's own son, Maurice, who also sits in Commons, has berated some of the government's economic policies.

Businessmen are irked, too—especially by new budget proposals which include measures to tax speculators in property and shares. Lord Ritchie, chairman of the London Stock Exchange, has seen fit to attack the Tories in a speech.

On the other hand, a national election held today would likely return Macmillan to power. Conservatives may demonstrate their complaints in mid-term polling for individual seats but would inevitably rally to the flag in a national election rather than risk a Laborite victory.

Macmillan is not bound to call an election until 1964 but he is believed to have fixed the fall of next year as a tentative date.

But Macmillan, soaked in his classical novels, steeped in history, with the calm of 68 years behind him, stays inscrutable, cheerful, amused.

"It hasn't been a bad year," he mused not long ago.

The ironist in him delved delightedly among the headlines of the day and seemed to compensate for a lot of political woes.

"No matter how complex the problem, no matter how delicate the situation," he told parliamentary correspondents last month, "it can all be comprehended in two words—'Mac acts.'

"The variations are infinite: Mac in row. Mac orders probe. Mac flies in. Mac flies out.

"And according to the political climate it's 'Macwonder' or 'Macblunder.'

"I notice that one paper keeps perpetually in type the headline: 'Mac at Bay.' I suggest they should also set up in type: 'Mac Bounces Back.'"

Here And There

As you recall, Adlai Stevenson was outraged when Senator Jackson of Washington cast doubts on the UN. According to reliable information the ambassador had more reason for anger than he realized. According to the report, the President knew in advance what Jackson was going to say, and agrees (1) that some officials seem to think the UN is a diplomatic cure - all which Kennedy doesn't think it is, and (2) that the administration must prepare for a time when the UN may flop as an effective tool of U. S. foreign policy — even turn anti-U.S.

What the Internal Revenue Service has in mind when it looks over this year's returns is suggested in the case of Fordyce, Arkansas, on which a pack of agents descended to make a wholesale canvas. Of 948 taxpayers checked, 303 were found to be delinquent, and they owed the government an additional $48,000. Chamber of Commerce officials griped so loudly to the newspapers that IRS now says it's abandoning wholesale invasions of towns by various tax divisions, a practice the service has been using for years according to Insiders Newsletter.

Another modern neurosis has just been discovered by some Paris doctors — cancerophobia. Fear of cancer, they found, is more prevalent in towns than in the country, reaches mild epidemic proportions immediately following a campaign to raise money for cancer research and is, in most cases, unnecessary. The French study of 476 patients revealed that over 75 per cent had psychoneurotic problems caused by their anxiety, but only 2.9 per cent actually had cancer. The remainder needed medical attention but were overly concerned emotionally — 50.6 per cent had a benign, noncancerous growth; only six per cent showed precancerous symptoms.

According to reports, the next vanishing childhood disease will be measles — and medical insiders predict it will go next year. Extensive clinical testing in all parts of the world with children of all ages, using various types of measles vaccine, has been underway for three years. The wide research has come up with what is believed to be the right vaccine. Nine U. S. drug firms have vaccines in the works.

European marriage bureaus have come up with the latest aid for shy bachelors — if there are any such things. It is a latter - day John Alden in the form of taped marriage proposals. Suitors too shy to pop the question in person can now record it — with expert coaching provided — and turn it over to a bureaucratic middleman; the agent then plays the tape to the suitor's true love (in a romantic, flower-decked setting, accompanied by suitable hearts - and - flowers music). The bachelor pays $15 for the service if the girl turns him down, and $25 if she accepts . . .

If you're sick but successful, perhaps the last thing in the world you want is a cure. The current issue of "Psychosomatic Medicine" tells the story of a businessman who had an international reputation for rehabilitating floundering businesses. Throughout his career, he was in constant pain from an undiagnosed tumor under a toenail, and from a duodenal ulcer. Because of the pain, he became intolerant, ruthless, aggressive, hard - driving. Even his sexual disinterest in his wife was blamed on his painful foot. At the height of his career the tumor under the toenail was found and removed and surgery was used on his ulcer. For the first time in his life he lost all interest in his work, began drinking heavily, had a serious auto accident and became totally dependent on his wife. Finally, he gave up working altogether. The results — In his mid-50's, he lives on a small farm — free of pain and ambition . . .

Facts Worth Knowing

Safety checks of 3½ million U. S. cars and trucks last year found one in six was a highway hazard. The most common defect: Faulty rear lights.

Rural capitalists: More than 80 per cent of American farmers now own at least part of the land they till — an incentive that helps explain why they outproduce Soviet cooperative farms.

What home gadget needs the most repairs? A survey found it was the television set. Least trouble - prone, in order, were the kitchen refrigerator, stove, sewing machine and electric iron.

The teaspoon was introduced around 1650, when Europeans and Americans began drinking tea. The spoons originally had perforated bowls.

One reason why Ireland must be heaven. Baby - sitters charge an average of only 35 cents an hour. Some hotels even provide this service free.

Something to sneeze at: Americans suffer about 115 - million head colds a year.

Our quotable notables: "When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hang on." — Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Inspiration: Many people sing in the bathroom, but Franz Schubert reportedly composed one of his greatest works — his "Unfinished Symphony" — while in the bathtub.

Quips from our contemporaries: Catholic Digest reports this sign in a Manhattan record shop:

"Used phonograph for sale, for sale, for sale, for sale."

Even educators can't agree on whether Johnny reads well enough. A poll showed 54 per cent thought present methods of teaching reading are effective, 44 per cent thought they aren't.

History lesson: At least two U. S. presidents died in debt. They were Thomas Jefferson, who owed $40,000, and William Henry Harrison, amount unknown. U. S. Grant left no estate of value except his memoirs — but they netted his family $500,000.

Many large and small business firms today believe their economic safety lies in diversification, but Andrew Carnegie, the rugged little steel tycoon, gave this advice: "Put all your eggs in one basket. Watch that basket."

Golfers might like this description of their favorite sport: "Golf is a game in which a ball 1½ inches in diameter is placed on another ball 8,000 miles in diameter. The object of the game is to hit the small ball and not the big one."

Do you worry about feeling inferior? Forget it. Psychology tests indicate that smart people often feel inferior, those who are really mentally inferior rarely realize it.

Nature notes: The firefly gives off one of the coolest known forms of light. The ears of fish and snakes have no outside openings — they "hear" through vibrations of the ground or water.

Around The Town

We are always glad to hear from our readers. And naturally we're appreciate it much more so when something that we do pleases them. We're particularly happy about the following letter from Mrs. Ione A. Hill, a teacher at the Clara Hall School.

We have always maintained and will continue to do so that the vast majority of our teachers are just as fine of people as you'd want to know and that they are trying to do what is right. Of course, in this profession as in any other the sour apples and the misfits are the ones singled out as representing the majority. This is wrong and is unfair. Maybe this could be changed with a little stricter policing by the good teachers.

We are printing Mrs. Hill's letter because of the unique program that's been developed at Clara High School. We think it's wonderful and believe a lot of other schools could learn a good lesson in such a plan. Here is the letter:

Dear Mr. Gates:

Your EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK of March 4, 1962 was - as usual - entertaining and informative. I was especially attracted to your report of the results of a survey showing how little high school students know about the economic system under which they live. Since the study of economics is my favorite and continous pursuit and, since you have evidenced your interest in it, I thought you might like to know what one elementary school is doing in teaching economics:

Clara Hall School, grades one through five, is teaching units on economics. The areas covered are extensive and could not be listed in their entirety. They range from the first grade exploration of "Money Comes In, Money Goes Out," through how people earn money and whether they are paid by self-employment, corporations, government; how our city works for us, how schools are financed, care of school property, how a bank operates, understanding of the terms "private enterprise," "socialism," "communism," profit and loss; saving and spending money wisely; evolution of the American economy from colonial times, our rising standard of living, the dynamic nature of our economy, production and marketing of goods and services.

Our upper grades, particularly, have been helped in their awareness of the American economic system by the American Adventure series, sponsored by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce and the Central Savings Bank.

Giving encouragement to our teaching of economics is the Principle of Clara Hall, Miss Eloise Cann, who is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Joint Economic Council which conducts annual summer seminars on economics.

Sincerely yours,
(MRS.) IONE A. HILL

New Highway Now In Use

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — The tourist driving between Mexico City and Puebla had his choice this week: An old route featuring history, beauty and hairpin turns, or a new speedway.

For almost four centuries, the highway to Mexico City has followed virtually the route worked out by the Spanish conquerors. It twists over mountains, some 12,000 feet high, with steep grades and 380 curves over an 84-mile route.

The new highway, with 70 curves, is 65 miles long. You can drive 60-75 miles an hour on a divided highway, whizzing by more than 100 underpasses and overpasses.

Near-Famine Hits Against Indonesia

By PETER ARNETT

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's President Sukarno has spent so much time and money on his militant West New Guinea campaign that near-famine has crept across his nation almost unobserved.

For months, Sukarno has been telling his people that the military campaign against the Netherlands must have top priority, no matter the hardship at home.

Indonesia's 96-million people are in no position to argue because Sukarno rules by decree with the armed forces' full backing.

Indonesia, however, is hungry and the full implications are just being brought home to Sukarno.

Reports earlier this year of terrible food shortages were denied by local authorities. Then in April, Sukarno's health minister, Dr. Satrio, visited the Indramaju district in West Java.

He discovered 60 persons had died of starvation. About 9,000 had been treated at the one hospital for malnutrition. Many of the sick, with distended bellies and spindly arms, were found in empty rice warehouses.

Authorities in Indramaju had failed to report the famine to the central government, apparently for fear of being blamed for poor administration. Officials in other areas perhaps have done similar coverup jobs.

The Indonesian peasant, passive after hundreds of years of feudal rule, Dutch colonialism and now Sukarno, complains little.

Authorities have established soup kitchens and antistarvation commands in some areas.

Even the soldier, traditionally well paid, well fed and well clothed, is taking pay and ration cuts so that the public can be helped.

Potentially the richest nation in Southeast Asia, Indonesia is staggering under an economic crisis that has diminished foreign exchange reserves to virtually nothing.

Indonesia needs foreign exchange to buy rice, the staple food. When available rice is so high that the average person can buy only a fraction of his needs.

Indonesia has rich food-producing areas. Poor transportation, racketeering, diversion of food to the West New Guinea front and natural calamities kept food from moving from the have-areas to the have-nots.

Rebellion and mismanagement of estates and nationalized industry have hurt the internal economy. Sukarno's "guided economy," which is pure socialism, has not started to work. Inflation continues because of war jitters.

Some of Dukarno's foreign critics argue that Sukarno is beating the drum over West New Guinea to take people's minds off internal problems. Observers in Jakarta tend to agree, however, that Sukarno's feeling about West New Guinea created many of Indonesia's present problems.

Hess, Other Under Guard

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, once Adolf Hitler's deputy, will be 68 next Thursday. It will be his 21st birthday in the hands of Hitler's enemies. He flew to Scotland in May 1941, and was taken captive.

Hess is one of the three people in Berlin still living under the joint rule of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France. The others are Albert Speer, Hitler's munitions minister and Baldur von Schirach, his youth leader.

All have been confined since 1946 in Spandau Prison, a gloomy red brick structure on Berlin's outskirts.

Hess is serving a life term. The other two were sentenced to 20 crimes tribunal.

Each of the four powers keeps a small permanent staff at Spandau. Every month, troops belonging to one of the four assume the bulk of the guard duty. This is the American month.

The three prisoners spend their time reading and gardening. They are allowed one 30-minute visit a month, but Hess does not receive visitors. At least this was the situation six years ago. Allied authorities now refuse any information on the prisoners.

'GOOD ANGLO-AMERICAN'

Macmillan Rides On Peace Journey

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—A bit battered at home, Harold Macmillan rides forth next week in his role as the good Anglo-American.

He is the realist who recognizes the limits of Britain's power. Anxious to pull the Western Alliance together. Eager to check Communist expansionism. And to be the complete, totally trusted ally.

These, at least, are parts of the image he is expected to invite as he goes to Washington for talks with President Kennedy and to New York to address the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

It is part of his job to advance the cause of U.S.-British friendship, and he is deft at it.

Many Britons in this April of 1962 have a narrower picture of their patrician-looking prime minister. To them Macmillan is a man with a load of troubles and a scarcity of friends.

His conservative party, in office well over a decade, is going through one of its periodic slumps in popularity. In several recent special elections to fill vacant seats in the House of Commons, Macmillan's Tories have failed to gain their expected quota of votes.

A few voices inside the party have openly expressed dislike of his leadership. One Conservative legislator, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, even called for Macmillan's resignation. The prime minister's own son, Maurice, who also sits in Commons, has berated some of the government's economic policies.

Businessmen are irked, too—especially by new budget proposals which include measures to tax speculators in property and shares. Lord Ritchie, chairman of the London Stock Exchange, has seen fit to attack the Tories in a speech.

On the other hand, a national election held today would likely return Macmillan to power. Conservatives may demonstrate their complaints in mid-term polling for individual seats but would inevitably rally to the flag in a national election rather than risk a Laborite victory.

Macmillan is not bound to call an election until 1964 but he is believed to have fixed the fall of next year as a tentative date.

But Macmillan, soaked in his classical novels, steeped in history, with the calm of 68 years behind him, stays inscrutable, cheerful, amused.

"It hasn't been a bad year," he mused not long ago.

The ironist in him delved delightedly among the headlines of the day and seemed to compensate for a lot of political woes.

"No matter how complex the problem, no matter how delicate the situation," he told parliamentary correspondents last month, "it can all be comprehended in two words—'Mac acts.'

"The variations are infinite: Mac in row. Mac orders probe. Mac flies in. Mac flies out.

"And according to the political climate it's 'Macwonder' or 'Macblunder.'

"I notice that one paper keeps perpetually in type the headline: 'Mac at Bay.' I suggest they should also set up in type: 'Mac Bounces Back.' "

Baylor Blanks Tribe 6-0 To Win Tourney

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Baylor's Pete Charton, who was named the most outstanding player of the third Annual Northeast Invitational baseball tournament, pitched a two-hit game Friday while shutting out Northeast, 6-0, to give the Bears first place in the tourney.

Arkansas downed Northwestern State College 8-4 in a nine-inning contest for consolation honors.

Charton pitched four innings of no-hit ball before Northeast's John Pace stroked a single to right field. Bob Groves followed Pace with another single for Northeast's only hits of the game.

Baylor tallied single runs in the third and fourth innings, then pushed four Bears across the plate in the sixth on back to back homers.

In the consolation tilt, the Razorbacks and the Demons were dead locked 4-4 until the bottom of the ninth when Arkansas shortstop Jerry Carlton homered over the left center fence with the bases loaded.

Northwestern finished the tourney with a 0-5 record, Arkansas was 3-2, Northeast 3-2 and Baylor 4-1.

Bear John McEldowney homered in the sixth inning against Northeast with two aboard, Art Funtes, and all tournament team selection outfielder, Audie Cox.

Baylor catcher, David Young, socked the next pitch out of the park in almost the same spot—to give the Bears their 6-0 edge.

Northeast never posed a serious threat in the game.

Charton struck out five Indians and gave up no walks in going the full distance for the Bears.

Baylor landed five players on the all-tourney team including Charton and Cox. Another Bear pitcher, Henry Perkins, who also pitched a two hitter and was 1-0 for the tournament was selected to the group.

Rounding out Baylor's All-Tournament players are: first baseman Fred Neely, and another outfielder, Tommy Ledbetter.

Both Northeast and Arkansas placed two on the team. Indians Eddie McGowan, at second base and Phil Petras at shortstop and Razorbacks Paul Soden, in the outfield and Marl Carter at third base were named.

Northwestern placed one man, catcher O'Brien Smith, on the All-Tournament squad.

Trophies were awarded the all tourney players, champion Baylor and runner-up, Northeast by Dean James Nicholson of Northeast. The awards were donated by Ed Hemphill.

The Indians are scheduled to play Arkansas at the Ouachita High diamond, the location of the Easter tourney, Monday at 1:30 p.m. with the remainder of the protested Northeast - Louisiana Tech match set for Wednesday. Play will start with Northeast at bat in the bottom of the sixth, the point of the protest. The Tribe will have a man on second and two out.

Northeast bested the Baylor team earlier in the tournament, downing the Bears 9-5 Friday and both teams went into the championship match with 3-1 records.

Friday afternoon action at the Ouachita diamond was highlighted by several double plays and excellent defensive playing by both Baylor and Northeast. Several Baylor fans turned out to watch their team take the tournament on the sunny afternoon.

Bob Rachal pitched five innings for the Indians in the championship game but was replaced by Jerry Godwin after McEldowney's three run homer.

CARDS WIN AGAIN

Simmons 3-Hitter Blanks Cubs, 8-0

By JIM VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran lefty Curt Simmons—picked up by St. Louis for almost nothing two years ago—pitched the unbeaten Cardinals to their seventh victory Saturday with a masterful three-hit, 8-0 shutout over the Chicago Cubs.

It was the second straight route-going victory for the 32-year-old former Philadelphia Phillie Whiz Kid, both over the hapless Cubs, now 1-8 this season.

The Redbirds' 7-0 getaway matches the club record set in 1899. But the Cards are three short of the modern National League mark.

Bill White—extending his hitting streak to seven games—slammed a solo home run off Cub starter Glen Hobbie in the first inning. Simmons himself, a 3-for-3 hitter in his first victory over the Cubs, delivered in the sixth made it 5-0 and highlighted a six-run sixth.

The Cardinals signed Simmons as a free agent in 1960. His contract cost the Cards only the nominal $1 fee, plus the cost of a phone call, in which Curt assured Solly Hemus—then Redbird manager — his arm was still sound.

Hobbie was in a 1-0 duel with Simmons until the fifth when rookie centerfielder Lou Brock's fumble after singles by Don Landrum and White gave the Cards an uneared run.

Boston Unloads On Lary; Edge Detroit By 4-3

BOSTON (AP)—Boston enjoyed a rare four run outburst against Detroit's Frank Lary and held on for a 4-3 victory Saturday in celebration of Fenway Park's 50th anniversary.

The Red Sox landed on tough Tiger Lary for all their runs and five of their eight hits in the third inning.

Right-hander Don Schwall shook off his sophomore "slump", surviving a two-run homer by Al Kaline in the fourth and a solo belt by Norm Cash in the eighth.

Rookie Dick Radatz, the 6-foot-6, 240-pounder, used his lightning fast ball to slam the door on the Tigers in ninth inning relief for the Sox.

Schwall, 1961 American League rookie of the year, was not at peak form for his first triumph of the season against two setbacks. But he was typically cool under fire, stranding four Detroit runners in scoring position.

Chuck Schilling's second hit of the season, and a Schwall sacrifice bunt touched off the Red Sox uprising with solo runs coming on Ed Bressoud's single.

Shoots A Two Under Par 68 To Lead Field

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, a young rookie who has collected money in every tournament since turning pro, used a 2-under-par 68 Saturday to grab the 54-hole lead in the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

The 68-70-68—206 for the 7,100-yard, par 70 Memorial Park course left the 1961 National Amateur Champion two strokes ahead of Bobby Nichols, the 36-hole leader from Midland, Tex., and Doug Sanders, Ojai, Calif.

Nichols, the St. Petersburg Open champion, missed a 2-foot putt on the final green to place a 71 beside earlier rounds of 68 and 69. Sanders, after two par rounds, matched Nicklaus' 68.

Tied at 209 were George Knudson, the first day leader from Toronto, Canada, and Jay Hebert, the defending champion from Lafayette, La. Herbert thus became the first defending champion since 1954 to survive the Classic's 54-hole cut.

A score of 220—10 over par—was needed for Sunday's final 18 holes and the 22 pros eliminated included Bill Collins, the 1960 Classic champion, and Ken Venturi who lost a 19-hole playoff to Hebert a year ago.

Only four strokes separated the top 11 players as the third round got under way and seven of them held or shared the lead at one time or another through the first eight holes.

Billy Casper Jr., winner of the Greensboro Open last Sunday, surged into the lead on the ninth hole but his game collapsed with four straight bogies on the back nine and Nicklaus caught him on 13 and took the lead on 14.

The 22-year-old Nicklaus had birdie putts of 2, 8 and 6 feet. His lone bogie came on the 451-yard, par 4 eighth when his second shot crossed a sand trap, struck a rake, and bounced back into the trap.

"I drove well on the back side," he said. "I'm playing better than at any time since becoming a pro but I'm thinking a lot better. You have to think on this course."

Casper's string of bogies forced him to take a 71 and a sixth place tie at 210 with Dan Sikes, Jacksonville, Fla.

The day's best rounds were 4-under 66s fired by Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, Calif., and Billy Dunk, Gasford, Australia. Dunk moved to a seventh place tie at 211. Barber moved to 214.

Podres Finishes First Game In 11 As Bums Win

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Los Angeles southpaw Johnny Podres hurled his first complete game in 11 starts since last August as the Dodgers defeated the Milwaukee Braves 4-1 Saturday with a nine-hit attack led by Tommy Davis and Frank Howard.

Podres stopped the Braves on seven hits in posting his first victory in two decisions this season. With near perfect control, he struck out two and walked only one in handing stumbling Milwaukee its eighth loss in 10 games.

Tommy Davis collected a pair of doubles, scoring after each on hits by Howard.

Held hitless for the first 4 2-3 innings by Milwaukee's southpaw Bob Hendley, the Dodgers picked up a run with two out in the fifth. Willie Davis walked, moved up as Podres also strolled on four straight pitches, and scored on Maury Wills' line single to left. That tied the count at 1-1.

With one out in the sixth, Tommy Davis doubled into the right field corner and scored as Howard lined a hit to left.

DEFEAT METS, 8-4

Bucs Grab Ninth Straight Victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The undefeated Pittsburgh Pirates nailed down their ninth victory Saturday in a 8-4 triumph over the winless New York Mets.

It left Pittsburgh only one victory away from tying the modern National League record of 10 straight wins at the outset of the season. It was New York's eighth loss.

In a hectic seventh inning New York catcher Hobie Landrith was carried from the field on a stretcher after getting hit on the head with a bat and Pittsburgh pitcher Bob Friend suffered a hand injury when hit by a line drive.

Landrith, hit by the swinging bat of Bob Skinner, was taken to a hospital with a head cut. Friend's injury was not believed serious.

Friend, who gave up two runs on eight hits, notched his third victory with no defeats.

Pittsburgh grabbed a run in the second inning and New York came back with two in the fourth. The Pirates got two more in the fourth and led the rest of the way.

Dick Stuart socked his first home run of the year for Pittsburgh, a blast over the left field scoreboard, after Skinner had singled in the sixth.

New York, entering the ninth inning trailing 8-2, fought back for two runs on a walk, two singles and an error before the uprising was put down.

The Pirates' run in the second came on a walk to Roberto Clemente who went to third on a single by Smoky Burgess and scored on an infield double play ball by Don Hoak.

Richie Ashburn knocked in the Mets' two runs in the fourth on a double over Clemente's head in right field after Felix Mantilla and Landrith singled.

Skinner doubled in the fourth, Clemente tripled and Burgess hit a sacrifice fly for two runs.

The Pirates pushed over three insurance runs in the seventh on three hits and an error.

Champ Dethroned In Lopsided Bout

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Old age and Carlos Ortiz finally caught up with lightweight champion Joe Brown Saturday night as the young New Yorker wrested the world crown from the 35-year-old veteran of 115 ring engagements.

The new champion and the ancient Brown, who is from Houston, Tex., each weighed 134¾.

A crowd of more than 7,000 in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and a national television audience looked on with astonishment as the 25-year-old bull from the Bronx completely outclassed the Old Bones of fighting.

Brown had ruled the 135-pound division for 5½ years, and Ortiz had claimed that the champion had been ducking him for the past three.

The champion went into the ring the favorite at odds of 8-5, but Ortiz from the opening bell showed that this was a mistake.

At the end of the 15th, old Joe was dripping blood from a slit in the corner of his left eye. As he stood hopelessly beaten, the brash New Yorker was jumping with glee in his corner. Ortiz knew he had the title sewed up.

Most ringsiders gave Brown only one round, the fourth, and even that might have been called even.

Ortiz did just what he had promised before the fight. He stayed on top of Brown all the way, seldom letting the hard-hitting champion get set to throw a lethal punch with either hand.

Ortiz, scoring consistently with a popping left jab as his main weapon, slit open Brown's eye in the first round. It bled throughout the evening, and while it may not have hurt the old fellow, it didn't do him any good.

Ortiz came up with a slight cut in the corner of his right eye in the sixth, but it was a minor wound.

There were no knockdowns, but in the 12th Brown landed on the seat of his pants as he either slipped or was caught off balance by a short right to the head.

Referee Frankie Van of Los Angeles scored it 74-60, Judge Dave Zenoff of Las Vegas had it 74-66, and Judge Bud Traynor of Reno called it 74-58, all for Ortiz.

The Associated Press had it 74-61.

The two fought wildly after the bell ending the sixth and Van had to pull the infuriated Ortiz off of the champion.

Ortiz Claims Brown Bout Easiest Ever

By WARREN LERUDE

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—New lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz said Saturday night his victorious title bout with champ Joe Brown was "the easiest fight I've ever had."

Ortiz, who won a decision over Brown in the Las Vegas Convention Center, said he is considering giving Brown a chance to regain the title.

Ortiz, whose aggressiveness led Brown the entire fight, said he knew from the first round he was going to win.

Ortiz said Brown "is not the fighter he was 4, 3, or 2 years ago when I was coming up, but he deserves a return bout. He is a great fighter and was a good champion."

Ortiz said he only got mad once in the 15-round bout.

"Joe hit me after the bell in the sixth round. I told myself, 'Don't get mad now.' I didn't get mad after the sixth round."

In the sixth, both fighters went on punching after the bell while a roaring crowd screamed and Referee Frankie Van tried to pull them apart.

They kept hitting as the bell burst a series of alarms and then Van broke them up.

Ortiz said he didn't think the Feb. 24 postponement of the fight due to Brown's illness helped him.

"I was in just as good shape then," Ortiz said. Ortiz said he wouldn't mind fighting again in Las Vegas, which he described as a "great town."

Brown attributed his loss to Ortiz' "annoying left jab." He said Ortiz' jab to his left eye cut bothered him throughout the fight.

"I just couldn't get off the ground," Brown said. "I think the real Joe Brown could whip Ortiz."

Brown said he felt badly about losing the title—not for himself but for his friends.

"I feel I've let thousands of my friends around the country down. That hurts most."

Brown said perhaps he overtrained. He said he may want to fight Ortiz again, but he would want a match with someone else first, to get back in shape.

"Ortiz was smarter tonight than I thought he was. He was a better fighter than usual tonight."

Colts Lose First On Home Field To Philadelphia

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts, bewildered by Cal McLish's breaking stuff, lost their first ever before their home fans and their third straight to the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night, 3-1.

The Colts, woh swept teir opening series from the Chicago Cubs, couldn't damage the 37-year-old right-hander until they managed their only run in the seventh. McLish, who gave up six hits through 7 1-3 innings, got relief help from Jack Baldschun.

Baldschun had to choke off a Houston threat in the ninth to preserve it. Jim Pendleton's leadoff single and a two-out single by Bob Lillis had the tying run on first base before Baldschun got Merritt Renew on a strikeout.

It preserved McLish's first National League victory since Aug. 14, 1969, when he was with Cincinnati. McLish was in the American League last season, and had lost eight straight.

A triple by Tony Gonzalez, singles by Roy Sievers and Wes Covington and a sacrifice fly by Clay Dalrymple gave the Phillies two runs in the fourth off starter and loser Ken Johnson.

They got another in the seventh on a double by Dalrymple, a wild pitch and an infield out.

The Colts' only run came in the bottom of the inning on Jim Pendleton's double and a run-scoring single by Joe Amalfitano.

Oriole Slingers Blank Senators 3-0 On 7-Hit Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rookie Art Quirk and reliever West Stock of Baltimore put together a seven-hit shutout Saturday as the Orioles handed the Washington Senators their fifth straight defeat 3-0.

Johnny Temple drove in the game's only runs with a single in the third and a double in the seventh.

Quirk, making his first major league start, retired because of a finger blister after 5 1-3 innings. Stock permitted a base runner each inning, but nobody got as far as second base.

Claude Osteen was the loser.

Jack Nicklaus Grabs 54-Hole Lead In Houston Tourney

Baylor Blanks Tribe 6-0 To Win Tourney

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Baylor's Pete Charton, who was named the most outstanding player of the third Annual Northeast Invitational baseball tournament, pitched a two-hit game Friday while shutting out Northeast, 6-0, to give the Bears first place in the tourney.

Arkansas downed Northwestern State College 8-4 in a nine-inning contest for consolation honors.

Charton pitched four innings of no-hit ball before Northeast's John Pace stroked a single to right field. Bob Groves followed Pace with another single for Northeast's only hits of the game.

Baylor tallied single runs in the third and fourth innings, then pushed four Bears across the plate in the sixth on back to back homers.

In the consolation tilt, the Razorbacks and the Demons were dead locked 4-4 until the bottom of the ninth when Arkansas shortstop Jerry Carlton homered over the left center fence with the bases loaded.

Northwestern finished the tourney with a 0-5 record, Arkansas was 3-2, Northeast 3-2 and Baylor 4-1.

Bear John McEldowney homered in the sixth inning against Northeast with two aboard, Art Funtes, and all tournament team selection outfielder, Audie Cox.

Baylor catcher, David Young, socked the next pitch out of the park in almost the same spot—to give the Bears their 6-0 edge.

Northeast never posed a serious threat in the game.

Charton struck out five Indians and gave up no walks in going the full distance for the Bears.

Baylor landed five players on the all-tourney team including Charton and Cox. Another Bear pitcher, Henry Perkins, who also pitched a two hitter and was 1-0 for the tournament was selected to the group.

Rounding out Baylor's All-Tournament players are: first baseman Fred Neely, and another outfielder, Tommy Ledbetter.

Both Northeast and Arkansas placed two on the team. Indians Eddie McGowan, at second base and Phil Petras at shortstop and Razorbacks Paul Soden, in the outfield and Marl Carter at third base were named.

Northwestern placed one man, catcher O'Brien Smith, on the All-Tournament squad.

Trophies were awarded the all tourney players, champion Baylor and runner-up, Northeast by Dean James Nicholson of Northeast. The awards were donated by Ed Hemphill.

The Indians are scheduled to play Arkansas at the Ouachita High diamond, the location of the Easter tourney, Monday at 1:30 p.m. with the remainder of the protested Northeast - Louisiana Tech match set for Wednesday. Play will start with Northeast at bat in the bottom of the sixth, the point of the protest. The Tribe will have a man on second and two out.

Northeast bested the Baylor team earlier in the tournament, downing the Bears 9-5 Friday and both teams went into the championship match with 3-1 records.

Friday afternoon action at the Ouachita diamond was highlighted by several double plays and excellent defensive playing by both Baylor and Northeast. Several Baylor fans turned out to watch their team take the tournament on the sunny afternoon.

Bob Rachal pitched five innings for the Indians in the championship game but was replaced by Jerry Godwin after McEldowney's three run homer.

Shoots A Two Under Par 68 To Lead Field

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, a young rookie who has collected money in every tournament since turning pro, used a 2-under-par 68 Saturday to grab the 54-hole lead in the $50,000 Houston Golf Classic.

The 68-70-68—206 for the 7,100-yard, par 70 Memorial Park course left the 1961 National Amateur Champion two strokes ahead of Bobby Nichols, the 36-hole leader from Midland, Tex., and Doug Sanders, Ojai, Calif.

Nichols, the St. Petersburg Open champion, missed a 2-foot putt on the final green to place a 71 beside earlier rounds of 68 and 69. Sanders, after two par rounds, matched Nicklaus' 68.

Tied at 209 were George Knudson, the first day leader from Toronto, Canada, and Jay Hebert, the defending champion from Lafayette, La. Herbert thus became the first defending champion since 1954 to survive the Classic's 54-hole cut.

A score of 220—10 over par—was needed for Sunday's final 18 holes and the 22 pros eliminated included Bill Collins, the 1960 Classic champion, and Ken Venturi who lost a 19-hole playoff to Hebert a year ago.

Only four strokes separated the top 11 players as the third round got under way and seven of them held or shared the lead at one time or another through the first eight holes.

Billy Casper Jr., winner of the Greensboro Open last Sunday, surged into the lead on the ninth hole but his game collapsed with four straight bogies on the back nine and Nicklaus caught him on 13 and took the lead on 14.

The 22-year-old Nicklaus had birdie putts of 2, 8 and 6 feet. His lone bogie came on the 451-yard, par 4 eighth when his second shot crossed a sand trap, struck a rake, and bounced back into the trap.

"I drove well on the back side," he said. "I'm playing better than at any time since becoming a pro but I'm thinking a lot better. You have to think on this course."

Casper's string of bogies forced him to take a 71 and a sixth place tie at 210 with Dan Sikes, Jacksonville, Fla.

The day's best rounds were 4-under 66s fired by Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, Calif., and Billy Dunk, Gasford, Australia. Dunk moved to a seventh place tie at 211. Barber moved to 214.

Podres Finishes First Game In 11 As Bums Win

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Los Angeles southpaw Johnny Podres hurled his first complete game in 11 starts since last August as the Dodgers defeated the Milwaukee Braves 4-1 Saturday with a nine-hit attack led by Tommy Davis and Frank Howard.

Podres stopped the Braves on seven hits in posting his first victory in two decisions this season. With near perfect control, he struck out two and walked only one in handing stumbling Milwaukee its eighth loss in 10 games.

Tommy Davis collected a pair of doubles, scoring after each on hits by Howard.

Held hitless for the first 4 2-3 innings by Milwaukee's southpaw Bob Hendley, the Dodgers picked up a run with two out in the fifth. Willie Davis walked, moved up as Podres also strolled on four straight pitches, and scored on Maury Wills' line single to left. That tied the count at 1-1.

With one out in the sixth, Tommy Davis doubled into the right field corner and scored as Howard lined a hit to left.

CARDS WIN AGAIN

Simmons 3-Hitter Blanks Cubs, 8-0

By JIM VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran lefty Curt Simmons—picked up by St. Louis for almost nothing two years ago—pitched the unbeaten Cardinals to their seventh victory Saturday with a masterful three-hit, 8-0 shutout over the Chicago Cubs.

It was the second straight route-going victory for the 32-year-old former Philadelphia Phillie Whiz Kid, both over the hapless Cubs, now 1-8 this season.

The Redbirds' 7-0 getaway matches the club record set in 1899. But the Cards are three short of the modern National League mark.

Bill White—extending his hitting streak to seven games—slammed a solo home run off Cub starter Glen Hobbie in the first inning. Simmons himself, a 3-for-3 hitter in his first victory over the Cubs, delivered in the sixth made it 5-0 and highlighted a six-run sixth.

The Cardinals signed Simmons as a free agent in 1960. His contract cost the Cards only the nominal $1 fee, plus the cost of a phone call, in which Curt assured Solly Hemus—then Redbird manager — his arm was still sound.

Hobbie was in a 1-0 duel with Simmons until the fifth when rookie centerfielder Lou Brock's fumble after singles by Don Landrum and White gave the Cards an uneared run.

Boston Unloads On Lary; Edge Detroit By 4-3

BOSTON (AP)—Boston enjoyed a rare four run outburst against Detroit's Frank Lary and held on for a 4-3 victory Saturday in celebration of Fenway Park's 50th anniversary.

The Red Sox landed on tough Tiger Lary for all their runs and five of their eight hits in the third inning.

Right-hander Don Schwall shook off his sophomore "slump", surviving a two-run homer by Al Kaline in the fourth and a solo belt by Norm Cash in the eighth.

Rookie Dick Radatz, the 6-foot-6, 240-pounder, used his lightning fast ball to slam the door on the Tigers in ninth inning relief for the Sox.

Schwall, 1961 American League rookie of the year, was not at peak form for his first triumph of the season against two setbacks. But he was typically cool under fire, stranding four Detroit runners in scoring position.

Chuck Schilling's second hit of the season, and a Schwall sacrifice bunt touched off the Red Sox uprising with solo runs coming on Ed Bressoud's single.

DEFEAT METS, 8-4

Bucs Grab Ninth Straight Victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The undefeated Pittsburgh Pirates nailed down their ninth victory Saturday in a 8-4 triumph over the winless New York Mets.

It left Pittsburgh only one victory away from tying the modern National League record of 10 straight wins at the outset of the season. It was New York's eighth loss.

In a hectic seventh inning New York catcher Hobie Landrith was carried from the field on a stretcher after getting hit on the head with a bat and Pittsburgh pitcher Bob Friend suffered a hand injury when hit by a line drive.

Landrith, hit by the swinging bat of Bob Skinner, was taken to a hospital with a head cut. Friend's injury was not believed serious.

Friend, who gave up two runs on eight hits, notched his third victory with no defeats.

Pittsburgh grabbed a run in the second inning and New York came back with two in the fourth. The Pirates got two more in the fourth and led the rest of the way.

Dick Stuart socked his first home run of the year for Pittsburgh, a blast over the left field scoreboard, after Skinner had singled in the sixth.

New York, entering the ninth inning trailing 8-2, fought back for two runs on a walk, two singles and an error before the uprising was put down.

The Pirates' run in the second came on a walk to Roberto Clemente who went to third on a single by Smoky Burgess and scored on an infield double play ball by Don Hoak.

Richie Ashburn knocked in the Mets' two runs in the fourth on a double over Clemente's head in right field after Felix Mantilla and Landrith singled.

Skinner doubled in the fourth, Clemente tripled and Burgess hit a sacrifice fly for two runs.

The Pirates pushed over three insurance runs in the seventh on three hits and an error.

Champ Dethroned In Lopsided Bout

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Old age and Carlos Ortiz finally caught up with lightweight champion Joe Brown Saturday night as the young New Yorker wrested the world crown from the 35-year-old veteran of 115 ring engagements.

The new champion and the ancient Brown, who is from Houston, Tex., each weighed 134¾.

A crowd of more than 7,000 in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and a national television audience looked on with astonishment as the 25-year-old bull from the Bronx completely outclassed the Old Bones of fighting.

Brown had ruled the 135-pound division for 5½ years, and Ortiz had claimed that the champion had been ducking him for the past three.

The champion went into the ring the favorite at odds of 8-5, but Ortiz from the opening bell showed that this was a mistake.

At the end of the 15th, old Joe was dripping blood from a slit in the corner of his left eye. As he stood hopelessly beaten, the brash New Yorker was jumping with glee in his corner. Ortiz knew he had the title sewed up.

Most ringsiders gave Brown only one round, the fourth, and even that might have been called even.

Ortiz did just what he had promised before the fight. He stayed on top of Brown all the way, seldom letting the hard-hitting champion get set to throw a lethal punch with either hand.

Ortiz, scoring consistently with a popping left jab as his main weapon, slit open Brown's eye in the first round. It bled throughout the evening, and while it may not have hurt the old fellow, it didn't do him any good.

Ortiz came up with a slight cut in the corner of his right eye in the sixth, but it was a minor wound.

There were no knockdowns, but in the 12th Brown landed on the seat of his pants as he either slipped or was caught off balance by a short right to the head.

Referee Frankie Van of Los Angeles scored it 74-60, Judge Dave Zenoff of Las Vegas had it 74-66, and Judge Bud Traynor of Reno called it 74-58, all for Ortiz.

The Associated Press had it 74-61.

The two fought wildly after the bell ending the sixth and Van had to pull the infuriated Ortiz off of the champion.

Ortiz Claims Brown Bout Easiest Ever

By WARREN LERUDE

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—New lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz said Saturday night his victorious title bout with champ Joe Brown was "the easiest fight I've ever had."

Ortiz, who won a decision over Brown in the Las Vegas Convention Center, said he is considering giving Brown a chance to regain the title.

Ortiz, whose aggressiveness led Brown the entire fight, said he knew from the first round he was going to win.

Ortiz said Brown "is not the fighter he was 4, 3, or 2 years ago when I was coming up, but he deserves a return bout. He is a great fighter and was a good champion."

Ortiz said he only got mad once in the 15-round bout.

"Joe hit me after the bell in the sixth round. I told myself, 'Don't get mad now.' I didn't get mad after the sixth round."

In the sixth, both fighters went on punching after the bell while a roaring crowd screamed and Referee Frankie Van tried to pull them apart.

They kept hitting as the bell burst a series of alarms and then Van broke them up.

Ortiz said he didn't think the Feb. 24 postponement of the fight due to Brown's illness helped him.

"I was in just as good shape then," Ortiz said. Ortiz said he wouldn't mind fighting again in Las Vegas, which he described as a "great town."

Brown attributed his loss to Ortiz' "annoying left jab." He said Ortiz' jab to his left eye cut bothered him throughout the fight.

"I just couldn't get off the ground," Brown said. "I think the real Joe Brown could whip Ortiz."

Brown said he felt badly about losing the title—not for himself but for his friends.

"I feel I've let thousands of my friends around the country down. That hurts most."

Brown said perhaps he overtrained. He said he may want to fight Ortiz again, but he would want a match with someone else first, to get back in shape.

"Ortiz was smarter tonight than I thought he was. He was a better fighter than usual tonight."

Colts Lose First On Home Field To Philadelphia

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts, bewildered by Cal McLish's breaking stuff, lost their first ever before their home fans and their third straight to the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night, 3-1.

The Colts, woh swept teir opening series from the Chicago Cubs, couldn't damage the 37-year-old right-hander until they managed their only run in the seventh. McLish, who gave up six hits through 7 1-3 innings, got relief help from Jack Baldschun.

Baldschun had to choke off a Houston threat in the ninth to preserve it. Jim Pendleton's leadoff single and a two-out single by Bob Lillis had the tying run on first base before Baldschun got Merritt Renew on a strikeout.

It preserved McLish's first National League victory since Aug. 14, 1969, when he was with Cincinnati. McLish was in the American League last season, and had lost eight straight.

A triple by Tony Gonzalez, singles by Roy Sievers and Wes Covington and a sacrifice fly by Clay Dalrymple gave the Phillies two runs in the fourth off starter and loser Ken Johnson.

They got another in the seventh on a double by Dalrymple, a wild pitch and an infield out.

The Colts' only run came in the bottom of the inning on Jim Pendleton's double and a run-scoring single by Joe Amalfitano.

Oriole Slingers Blank Senators 3-0 On 7-Hit Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rookie Art Quirk and reliever West Stock of Baltimore put together a seven-hit shutout Saturday as the Orioles handed the Washington Senators their fifth straight defeat 3-0.

Johnny Temple drove in the game's only runs with a single in the third and a double in the seventh.

Quirk, making his first major league start, retired because of a finger blister after 5 1-3 innings. Stock permitted a base runner each inning, but nobody got as far as second base.

Claude Osteen was the loser.

ADMIRAL'S VOYAGE (3) and Sunrise County are nose and nose as they race down the stretch in yesterday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct. Admiral's Voyage, ridden by Braulio Baeza, was declared the winner after a dead heat when officials disqualified Sunrise County, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, for interference at the first turn and in the stretch. AFTER DISQUALIFICATION

Admiral's Voyage Winner Of Wood Memorial Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Admiral's Voyage was declared the winner of the $91,850 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct Saturday after finishing in a sensational dead heat with Sunrise County and then having his favored rival disqualified.

Sunrise County was placed second for interfering with the Admiral on the first turn and again during their torrid home stretch duel.

It was the first dead heat and the second disqualification in 38 runnings of the famous 1⅛-mile race, which leads up to the Kentucky Derby May 5. In 1956 Head Man was the winner after Golf Ace was disqualified.

For Sunrise County, owned by Townsend B. Martin, it was the second disqualification this year. In the $100,000 Flamingo at Hialeah on March 3, the colt bore out in the stretch and was disqualified for bothering Ridan, who had finished third. Prego, the second place finisher, was declared the winner, with Ridan second and Sunrise County third.

A crowd of 55,458 turned out in sunny 70-degree weather to watch the Wood and they saw a thriller, with 11 3-year-olds in the line-up. All are eligible for the Kentucky Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown with the exception of Stinson Beach, who finished ninth.

For Fred W. Hooper, owner of Admiral's Voyage, this was the third and toughest victory in the Wood. In 1945, Hoop Jr. won the second division of the race and went down to Louisville to capture the Derby.

Four years later, Olympia won the Wood for the Coral Gables, Fla., construction man and finished sixth after being established Derby favorite.

It required almost five minutes before the officials determined from the movies that they could not separate the two top horses. Braulio Baeza, aboard Admiral's Voyage, and Willie Shoemaker, Sunrise County's rider, walked their horses around outside the winner's circle awaiting the verdict.

When the dead heat was announced, the crowd roared, but not nearly as loud as when Baeza marched to the clerk of scales and lodged his foul claim against Shoemaker's mount. Some 12 minutes later, there was another big roar when the stewards disqualified Sunrise County.

The two leaders, who had fought for the lead during most of the race, hit the wire three-quarters of a length in front of Vern Winchell's Donut King.

Sunrise County came off the rail toward Admiral's Voyage in the stretch, and Donut King was slightly off and behind Admiral's Voyage when the horses were in close quarters with less than one-eighth-mile to go.

The time was 1:49 4-5 and the winner earned $59,702.

"The other horse (Sunrise County) bothered us all the way from the first turn," said Baeza. "He kept drifting out. He bothered me all the way. He (Shoemaker) wouldn't keep his horse off me, even in the stretch. I couldn't get away from him."

Shoemaker admitted his mount was bearing out.

"The worst was on the first turn," said Shoemaker, whose horse was the 11-10 favorite. "He ran a good race. He hung on good and game. I still want him for the Derby and I probably will ride him."

Admiral Voyage, a son of Crafty Admiral-Olympia Lou, by Olympia, was the third choice and paid $15.30, $5.40 and $3.20. Sunrise County returned $3 and $2.40 and Donut King, the second favorite, was $3.40 to show. Prego was fourth and Mr. Pitt fifth.

Texas Southern Sweeps Relays

By SKIPPER PATRICK

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Texas Southern University's marvelous runners completed a sweep of the six college division baton races at the Kansas Relays with a record shattering victory in the mile relay Saturday.

The versatile Negro speedsters from Houston lowered the meet's mile relay mark to 3:11 flat, six-tenths of a second faster than the standard they set in qualifying Friday.

John Uelses, ex-Marine now living in Washington, D.C., and the only man in history ever to clear 16 feet in the pole vault, cleared 15-1¾, then missed at 15-6¼. Henry Wadsworth, a Marine at West Point, also made 15-1¾ in the special competition.

Fred Hansen of Rice, kept most of the crowd of 15,000 hanging around late, however, as he vaulted to a relays record of 15-6¼, in the university-college event, best in the nation this spring by a collegian.

The Texans started with a record 3:19.8 in the sprint medley Friday. Then Saturday they settled for the mile relay record and four other relay successes as strong crosswinds gusting up to 60 miles per hour slowed the runners.

Missouri stole a bit of Texas Southern thunder by running the fastest 2-mile relay race of the season to lower the meet mark to 7:24.2. Jerry McFadden, Greg Pelster, Bill Rawson and Jim Baker were the runners.

Texas Southern's 11-man entry had this worksheet for today:

Mile relay — Melvin Houston, Wesley Blackmon, Ray Saddler, Lester Milburn—3:11.0.

Distance medley—Walter Hunt, Blackmon, Maurice Hobson, Major Adams—10:09.2.

440-yard relay — Homer Jones, Barney Allen, T. J. Bell, Overton Williams—41.3.

2-mile relay — Hunt, Adams, Hobson, Saddler—7:43.1.

880 relay — Jones, Allen, Williams, Milburn—1:24.8.

There wasn't a double winner in the university division relays Saturday as Colorado won the mile in 3:10; Baylor the half-mile in 1:24.9; Oklahoma the 440 in 40.8; Southern Illinois the distance medley in 9:53.9, and Missouri the 2-mile.

Phil Mulkey, 29-year-old schoolmaster from Birmingham, Ala., won his sixth decathlon championship, fifth in a row, with a record 7,480 points.

A record got away from Kent Floerke, former Kansas star, in the AAU-hop-step-jump when his 50-3¾ was disallowed because of excessive wind.

Don Smith of Missouri won the shot put at 57-4½, 5½ inches shorter than his winning distance in the Texas Relays. Oklahoma's Dick Inman was second at 53-3½.

Ray Kanub of Nebraska broke the tape in the 100-yard dash, inches ahead of Roger Sayers of Omaha University in 9.5 seconds.

Ray Cunningham of Texas nipped Bobby Bernard of Texas Christian in the 120-yard high hurdles in the fast time of :13.9.

Pat Clohessy, the rugged Aus-trailing representing Houston University, became the first double individual winner in capturing the Glenn Cunningham mile in 4:10.6. It was good time considering the strong, gusting winds.

Clohessy captured the 3-mile run Friday in 14:14.8. He beat John Camien, Emporia, Kan State freshman in the mile by about 12 yards. Bob Griffith, Colorado, was third and Larie Elliot Houston freshman and brother of the great Herb Elliot, placed fourth.

California's Derby Taken By Doc Jocy

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—Doc Jocoy', second - weighted at 120 pounds, won the California Derby at Tanforan Saturday but not until he had fought off Blue Serenade in a stirring duel down the strech.

Doc Jocoy's winning margin in the $42,250 stakes feature was just a nose although he had taken jockey Willie Hermatz in front from the break and actually was never headed.

Third in the field of nine 3-year-olds over the tradiational classic's mile and an eighth distance was Full Regalia.

Doc Jocoy paid $7.80 $3.80 and $2.00. Blue Serenade returned $4.60 and $3.20. Full Regalia showed at $3.40. The time for the mile and a furlong was 1-minute 50 seconds, flat.

Neil S. McCarthy's Santa Anita Derby winner, Royal Attack, one of the west's leading hopefuls for the Kentucky Derby before the race, finished sixth. The even-money favorite of a crowd of 17,-186 was high-weighted at 124 pounds.

Royal Attack lacked speed in the early stages, moved up at the far turn, held steady for lack of running room but then failed to rally in the last quarter with an open track ahead.

McCarthy said there would be no immediate decision as to whether Royal Attack would be scratched as a Louisville possibility.

Doc Jocoy's trainer, John Canty, said "if he cools out all right I imagine he will go to Kentucky Monday or Tuesday." Lionel C. Sternberger of South Pasadena, owner of Doc Jocoy, had indicated before the race the horse's chances of going to the Derby depended on his showing.

It was Doc Jocoy's fifth victory in 18 starts and his second stakes triumph. His $27,750 brings the bay colt's lifetime earnings to $117,925.

Arnold Palmer, defending champion in the 1962 Western Open July 28-July 1 at the Medinah C. C., Chicago, will try to become the second to successfully defend his title. Sam Snead repeated in 1950.

A's Thump Pale Hose Out Of League Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—Jerry Lumpe's two-run homer in the seventh cracked a 6-6 tie and helped the Kansas City A's to a 9-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox, tumbling the Pale Hose out of the American League lead Saturday.

The A's 12-hit attack also included a two-run homer in the third by Norm Siebern, who Friday night clouted a three-run homer in a 7-4 A's triumph over the Sox.

Chicago's Early Wynn, 42, making his first start since last July 22, lasted four innings and left trailing 4-1.

The White Sox, who fell behind the New York Yankees in the league race, wasted a five-run outburst in the sixth which tied the score at 6-6 and chased rookie starter John Wyatt.

Lumpe drove in three A's runs, also doubling across Bobby Del Greco in a three-run Kansas City third capped by Siebern's two-run homer.

Del Greco, who also slammed a two-bagger just before Lumpe's game-deciding homer in the seventh, made two sensational diving catches in center field.

One of Del Greco's great catches came in the fifth, with Sox runners on third and second, on a smash by Al Smith, who hit a solo homer in the second.

Blanchard Homer Puts NY In First

NEW YORK (AP)—John Blanchard's three-run homer and Whitey Ford's six-hit pitching gave the New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Cleveland Saturday, the 19th straight game the Indians have lost at Yankee Stadium since May 12, 1960.

Blanchard hit his homer into the lower stands in left field off Barry Latman in the first inning after Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle had walked.

Gene Green smashed a 420-foot homer into the left field bleachers in the fifth inning. It was the 14th blow hit into those seats in the history of Yankee Stadium.

Ford, a 25-game winner in 1961, won his first of the season after two no-decision starts. The Yanks won both of those games for relief pitchers.

Manager Mel McGaha, striving desperately to break the Indians' long stadium losing string in their first appearance of the year, used five pitchers. Each time the pitcher was scheduled to bat he sent up a pinch hitter. Frank Funk, Jim Grant, Bob Allen and Jim Perry followed Latman, the loser. Grant was making his first appearance of the season on a weekend pass from the Army. He is stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

A crowd of 21,455 turned out for the Yanks' second home game in bright, warm sunshine. Although the Indians got to Ford for a hit in each of the first six innings, Green's homer provided the only score.

GRIFFIN SIXTH

Marilyn Smith 1st In Sunshine Open

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Marilynn Smith of Jupiter surged into the lead in the second round of the Sunshine Women's Open Golf Tournament Saturday despite wind and rain that lashed the Miami Springs Country Club course.

Miss Smith, who hasn't won a tournament since 1959, toured the par-72, 6333-yard course at par to give her a total of 143 for the first two days.

Sybil Griffin of Baton Rouge, La., also toured the course at par, but her 77 Friday put her in a tie for sixth place at 149.

In second place, two strokes behind Miss Smith, was Patty Berg of Fort Myers. Ruth Jessen of Seattle, Wash., carded a two-day total of 146 for third place; and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Mickey Wright of Dallas, Tex., carded 148s to tie for fourth place.

Friday, Miss Rawls, Miss Berg and Miss Smith were tied for third place with 71s. Miss Jessen held the first round lead; and Jo Ann Prentice of Columbia, S.C., dropped from second place to eighth with a 150 total.

Miss Smith, a pro for 13 years, said she had been working six months on her swing. "My irons were doing real well today," she said, "and I was satisfied with my putting."

The 33-year-old blonde said one of the main reasons for the improvement in her game was an increase in confidence, due largely to her constant practice under pro Gardner Dickinson at Jupiter.

She birdied the second, fifth, and ninth holes and shot bogeys on the first, fourth, eighth, 14th and 17th.

"If I'm not swinging well,' she said, "I don't feel at my best. Now I'm swinging well."

Giants Rally For 8-6 Win Over Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, profiting handsomely from a home run by Ed Bailey plus two doubles and two singles in timely spots, wiped out a 6-1 deficit in the late innings Saturday and defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

The Giants clustered two runs each in the sixth, seventh and eighth and pinned the defeat on Jim Brosnan, who relieved starter Bob Purkey in the seventh.

Don Larsen, the third of seven Giant pitchers, was the winner. Felipe Alou's homer gave the Gaints their final run in the ninth.

The Giants used four pitchers in the last of the ninth as the Reds put two men on with one out and had the bases full with two out. Dick LeMay finally forced Don Pavletich to ground out to end the long 3-hour, 26-minute game.

The Reds got away in front and built their lead to 6-1 after four innings. Three of the runs came on Vada Pinson's homer in the fourth.

The Giants picked up a run in the second but really didn't get to work until the sixth although they had Purkey in trouble often.

Bailey's homer in the sixth drove in Orlando Cepeda who had singled for the third straight time. Two walks and a hit batsman brought in Brosnan in the seventh and he yielded a two-run single to Felipe Alou.

Doubles by Jim Davenport and Haryey Kuenn and a single by Manuel Mota gave the Giants the two-run cluster in the eighth.

Lions Capture Chennault Meet With 13-2 Route

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Southeastern Louisiana, heading for the baseball crown in the Gulf States Conference, won the Chennault Air Force Base Easter diamond tourney Saturday with a 13-2 triumph over the host airmen.

In a consolation game, McNeese trimmed Southwestern Louisiana 12-11.

SLC scored in every inning of the seven frame championship game and banged out 14 hits. The Lions got two homers, both by relief hurler Roy Baker, the victor. Baker smashed a two-run homer in the fifth inning and a three-run homer in the sixth.

McNeese blew a 6-0 lead built up in a big first inning and then had to come from behind to beat USL, which went ahead 11-10 in the top of the seventh on a two run homer by Eddie Mouton. Jimmy Blake's three-run homer in the first accounted for McNeese's big inning.

American Sets National Record For 10 Mile Run

LONDON (UPI)—Buddy Edelen of Sioux Falls, Iowa, set an American record time of 48 minutes, 31.8 seconds Saturday while winning the 10-mile Amateur Athletic Association championship.

Edelen finished 40 yards ahead of England's Mel Batty and Gerry North, also of England, was third.

"It was one of the easiest races I've ever had," Edelen said. "I've never felt so good."

Edelen, a 24-year-old schoolteacher in Essex, once held the American record for 10,000 meters. He has been in England for the last two years, where he teaches English.

Although he broke the American record in his first attempt at this distance, Edelen was far short of the world record for the 10-mile run of 47:47.0 set here by England's Basil Heatley last year.

IF you ever wondered what a pole vaulter looks like from straight below, here is your chance. John Uelses, the world's only 16-foot vaulter, goes over the 14-6 mark, caught by a camera burried in the sawdust at the edge of the pole retaining box and fired by remote control. John Uelses Blames Strong Wind For Showing At Kansas Relays

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—John Uelses blamed a strong wind and a long wait between vaults for his failure to go higher than 15 feet 1¾ inches at the Kansas Relays Saturday.

"You complain when there isn't enough wind," said Uelses, the first 16-foot vaulter in history, "but today there was just too much of it. It threw me off a lot."

Uelses and Henry Wadsworth, who engaged in an exhibition, vaulted along with the collegians and Uelses said the long wait between jumps disturbed him.

Fred Hansen of Rice, who won the university-college pole vault with a meet record of 15-6¼, took three tries at 15-10¾. If he had made this, Hansen said, he would have asked for the bar to be raised to 16 feet.

The Western Golf Association Amateur currently is without a defending champion. Jack Nicklaus, crowned in 1961 at New Orleans C. C., turned professional a few months later.

ADMIRAL'S VOYAGE (3) and Sunrise County are nose and nose as they race down the stretch in yesterday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct. AFTER DISQUALIFICATION

Admiral's Voyage Winner Of Wood Memorial Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Admiral's Voyage was declared the winner of the $91,850 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct Saturday after finishing in a sensational dead heat with Sunrise County and then having his favored rival disqualified.

Sunrise County was placed second for interfering with the Admiral on the first turn and again during their torrid home stretch duel.

It was the first dead heat and the second disqualification in 38 runnings of the famous 1⅛-mile race, which leads up to the Kentucky Derby May 5. In 1956 Head Man was the winner after Golf Ace was disqualified.

For Sunrise County, owned by Townsend B. Martin, it was the second disqualification this year. In the $100,000 Flamingo at Hialeah on March 3, the colt bore out in the stretch and was disqualified for bothering Ridan, who had finished third. Prego, the second place finisher, was declared the winner, with Ridan second and Sunrise County third.

A crowd of 55,458 turned out in sunny 70-degree weather to watch the Wood and they saw a thriller, with 11 3-year-olds in the line-up. All are eligible for the Kentucky Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown with the exception of Stinson Beach, who finished ninth.

For Fred W. Hooper, owner of Admiral's Voyage, this was the third and toughest victory in the Wood. In 1945, Hoop Jr. won the second division of the race and went down to Louisville to capture the Derby.

Four years later, Olympia won the Wood for the Coral Gables, Fla., construction man and finished sixth after being established Derby favorite.

It required almost five minutes before the officials determined from the movies that they could not separate the two top horses. Braulio Baeza, aboard Admiral's Voyage, and Willie Shoemaker, Sunrise County's rider, walked their horses around outside the winner's circle awaiting the verdict.

When the dead heat was announced, the crowd roared, but not nearly as loud as when Baeza marched to the clerk of scales and lodged his foul claim against Shoemaker's mount. Some 12 minutes later, there was another big roar when the stewards disqualified Sunrise County.

The two leaders, who had fought for the lead during most of the race, hit the wire three-quarters of a length in front of Vern Winchell's Donut King.

Sunrise County came off the rail toward Admiral's Voyage in the stretch, and Donut King was slightly off and behind Admiral's Voyage when the horses were in close quarters with less than one-eighth-mile to go.

The time was 1:49 4-5 and the winner earned $59,702.

"The other horse (Sunrise County) bothered us all the way from the first turn," said Baeza. "He kept drifting out. He bothered me all the way. He (Shoemaker) wouldn't keep his horse off me, even in the stretch. I couldn't get away from him."

Shoemaker admitted his mount was bearing out.

"The worst was on the first turn," said Shoemaker, whose horse was the 11-10 favorite. "He ran a good race. He hung on good and game. I still want him for the Derby and I probably will ride him."

Admiral Voyage, a son of Crafty Admiral-Olympia Lou, by Olympia, was the third choice and paid $15.30, $5.40 and $3.20. Sunrise County returned $3 and $2.40 and Donut King, the second favorite, was $3.40 to show. Prego was fourth and Mr. Pitt fifth.

Texas Southern Sweeps Relays

By SKIPPER PATRICK

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Texas Southern University's marvelous runners completed a sweep of the six college division baton races at the Kansas Relays with a record shattering victory in the mile relay Saturday.

The versatile Negro speedsters from Houston lowered the meet's mile relay mark to 3:11 flat, six-tenths of a second faster than the standard they set in qualifying Friday.

John Uelses, ex-Marine now living in Washington, D.C., and the only man in history ever to clear 16 feet in the pole vault, cleared 15-1¾, then missed at 15-6¼. Henry Wadsworth, a Marine at West Point, also made 15-1¾ in the special competition.

Fred Hansen of Rice, kept most of the crowd of 15,000 hanging around late, however, as he vaulted to a relays record of 15-6¼, in the university-college event, best in the nation this spring by a collegian.

The Texans started with a record 3:19.8 in the sprint medley Friday. Then Saturday they settled for the mile relay record and four other relay successes as strong crosswinds gusting up to 60 miles per hour slowed the runners.

Missouri stole a bit of Texas Southern thunder by running the fastest 2-mile relay race of the season to lower the meet mark to 7:24.2. Jerry McFadden, Greg Pelster, Bill Rawson and Jim Baker were the runners.

Texas Southern's 11-man entry had this worksheet for today:

Mile relay — Melvin Houston, Wesley Blackmon, Ray Saddler, Lester Milburn—3:11.0.

Distance medley—Walter Hunt, Blackmon, Maurice Hobson, Major Adams—10:09.2.

440-yard relay — Homer Jones, Barney Allen, T. J. Bell, Overton Williams—41.3.

2-mile relay — Hunt, Adams, Hobson, Saddler—7:43.1.

880 relay — Jones, Allen, Williams, Milburn—1:24.8.

There wasn't a double winner in the university division relays Saturday as Colorado won the mile in 3:10; Baylor the half-mile in 1:24.9; Oklahoma the 440 in 40.8; Southern Illinois the distance medley in 9:53.9, and Missouri the 2-mile.

Phil Mulkey, 29-year-old schoolmaster from Birmingham, Ala., won his sixth decathlon championship, fifth in a row, with a record 7,480 points.

A record got away from Kent Floerke, former Kansas star, in the AAU-hop-step-jump when his 50-3¾ was disallowed because of excessive wind.

Don Smith of Missouri won the shot put at 57-4½, 5½ inches shorter than his winning distance in the Texas Relays. Oklahoma's Dick Inman was second at 53-3½.

Ray Kanub of Nebraska broke the tape in the 100-yard dash, inches ahead of Roger Sayers of Omaha University in 9.5 seconds.

Ray Cunningham of Texas nipped Bobby Bernard of Texas Christian in the 120-yard high hurdles in the fast time of :13.9.

Pat Clohessy, the rugged Austrailing representing Houston University, became the first double individual winner in capturing the Glenn Cunningham mile in 4:10.6. It was good time considering the strong, gusting winds.

Clohessy captured the 3-mile run Friday in 14:14.8. He beat John Camien, Emporia, Kan State freshman in the mile by about 12 yards. Bob Griffith, Colorado, was third and Larie Elliot Houston freshman and brother of the great Herb Elliot, placed fourth.

California's Derby Taken By Doc Jocy

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP)—Doc Jocoy', second - weighted at 120 pounds, won the California Derby at Tanforan Saturday but not until he had fought off Blue Serenade in a stirring duel down the strech.

Doc Jocoy's winning margin in the $42,250 stakes feature was just a nose although he had taken jockey Willie Hermatz in front from the break and actually was never headed.

Third in the field of nine 3-year-olds over the tradiational classic's mile and an eighth distance was Full Regalia.

Doc Jocoy paid $7.80 $3.80 and $2.00. Blue Serenade returned $4.60 and $3.20. Full Regalia showed at $3.40. The time for the mile and a furlong was 1-minute 50 seconds, flat.

Neil S. McCarthy's Santa Anita Derby winner, Royal Attack, one of the west's leading hopefuls for the Kentucky Derby before the race, finished sixth. The even-money favorite of a crowd of 17,186 was high-weighted at 124 pounds.

Royal Attack lacked speed in the early stages, moved up at the far turn, held steady for lack of running room but then failed to rally in the last quarter with an open track ahead.

McCarthy said there would be no immediate decision as to whether Royal Attack would be scratched as a Louisville possibility.

Doc Jocoy's trainer, John Canty, said "if he cools out all right I imagine he will go to Kentucky Monday or Tuesday." Lionel C. Sternberger of South Pasadena, owner of Doc Jocoy, had indicated before the race the horse's chances of going to the Derby depended on his showing.

It was Doc Jocoy's fifth victory in 18 starts and his second stakes triumph. His $27,750 brings the bay colt's lifetime earnings to $117,925.

Arnold Palmer, defending champion in the 1962 Western Open July 28-July 1 at the Medinah C. C., Chicago, will try to become the second to successfully defend his title. Sam Snead repeated in 1950.

Lions Capture Chennault Meet With 13-2 Route

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Southeastern Louisiana, heading for the baseball crown in the Gulf States Conference, won the Chennault Air Force Base Easter diamond tourney Saturday with a 13-2 triumph over the host airmen.

In a consolation game, McNeese trimmed Southwestern Louisiana 12-11.

SLC scored in every inning of the seven frame championship game and banged out 14 hits. The Lions got two homers, both by relief hurler Roy Baker, the victor. Baker smashed a two-run homer in the fifth inning and a three-run homer in the sixth.

McNeese blew a 6-0 lead built up in a big first inning and then had to come from behind to beat USL, which went ahead 11-10 in the top of the seventh on a two run homer by Eddie Mouton. Jimmy Blake's three-run homer in the first accounted for McNeese's big inning.

A's Thump Pale Hose Out Of League Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—Jerry Lumpe's two-run homer in the seventh cracked a 6-6 tie and helped the Kansas City A's to a 9-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox, tumbling the Pale Hose out of the American League lead Saturday.

The A's 12-hit attack also included a two-run homer in the third by Norm Siebern, who Friday night clouted a three-run homer in a 7-4 A's triumph over the Sox.

Chicago's Early Wynn, 42, making his first start since last July 22, lasted four innings and left trailing 4-1.

The White Sox, who fell behind the New York Yankees in the league race, wasted a five-run outburst in the sixth which tied the score at 6-6 and chased rookie starter John Wyatt.

Lumpe drove in three A's runs, also doubling across Bobby Del Greco in a three-run Kansas City third capped by Siebern's two-run homer.

Del Greco, who also slammed a two-bagger just before Lumpe's game-deciding homer in the seventh, made two sensational diving catches in center field.

One of Del Greco's great catches came in the fifth, with Sox runners on third and second, on a smash by Al Smith, who hit a solo homer in the second.

Blanchard Homer Puts NY In First

NEW YORK (AP)—John Blanchard's three-run homer and Whitey Ford's six-hit pitching gave the New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Cleveland Saturday, the 19th straight game the Indians have lost at Yankee Stadium since May 12, 1960.

Blanchard hit his homer into the lower stands in left field off Barry Latman in the first inning after Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle had walked.

Gene Green smashed a 420-foot homer into the left field bleachers in the fifth inning. It was the 14th blow hit into those seats in the history of Yankee Stadium.

Ford, a 25-game winner in 1961, won his first of the season after two no-decision starts. The Yanks won both of those games for relief pitchers.

Manager Mel McGaha, striving desperately to break the Indians' long stadium losing string in their first appearance of the year, used five pitchers. Each time the pitcher was scheduled to bat he sent up a pinch hitter. Frank Funk, Jim Grant, Bob Allen and Jim Perry followed Latman, the loser. Grant was making his first appearance of the season on a weekend pass from the Army. He is stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

A crowd of 21,455 turned out for the Yanks' second home game in bright, warm sunshine. Although the Indians got to Ford for a hit in each of the first six innings, Green's homer provided the only score.

GRIFFIN SIXTH

Marilyn Smith 1st In Sunshine Open

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Marilynn Smith of Jupiter surged into the lead in the second round of the Sunshine Women's Open Golf Tournament Saturday despite wind and rain that lashed the Miami Springs Country Club course.

Miss Smith, who hasn't won a tournament since 1959, toured the par-72, 6333-yard course at par to give her a total of 143 for the first two days.

Sybil Griffin of Baton Rouge, La., also toured the course at par, but her 77 Friday put her in a tie for sixth place at 149.

In second place, two strokes behind Miss Smith, was Patty Berg of Fort Myers. Ruth Jessen of Seattle, Wash., carded a two-day total of 146 for third place; and Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Mickey Wright of Dallas, Tex., carded 148s to tie for fourth place.

Friday, Miss Rawls, Miss Berg and Miss Smith were tied for third place with 71s. Miss Jessen held the first round lead; and Jo Ann Prentice of Columbia, S.C., dropped from second place to eighth with a 150 total.

Miss Smith, a pro for 13 years, said she had been working six months on her swing. "My irons were doing real well today," she said, "and I was satisfied with my putting."

The 33-year-old blonde said one of the main reasons for the improvement in her game was an increase in confidence, due largely to her constant practice under pro Gardner Dickinson at Jupiter.

She birdied the second, fifth, and ninth holes and shot bogeys on the first, fourth, eighth, 14th and 17th.

"If I'm not swinging well,' she said, "I don't feel at my best. Now I'm swinging well."

Giants Rally For 8-6 Win Over Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, profiting handsomely from a home run by Ed Bailey plus two doubles and two singles in timely spots, wiped out a 6-1 deficit in the late innings Saturday and defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

The Giants clustered two runs each in the sixth, seventh and eighth and pinned the defeat on Jim Brosnan, who relieved starter Bob Purkey in the seventh.

Don Larsen, the third of seven Giant pitchers, was the winner. Felipe Alou's homer gave the Gaints their final run in the ninth.

The Giants used four pitchers in the last of the ninth as the Reds put two men on with one out and had the bases full with two out. Dick LeMay finally forced Don Pavletich to ground out to end the long 3-hour, 26-minute game.

The Reds got away in front and built their lead to 6-1 after four innings. Three of the runs came on Vada Pinson's homer in the fourth.

The Giants picked up a run in the second but really didn't get to work until the sixth although they had Purkey in trouble often.

Bailey's homer in the sixth drove in Orlando Cepeda who had singled for the third straight time. Two walks and a hit batsman brought in Brosnan in the seventh and he yielded a two-run single to Felipe Alou.

Doubles by Jim Davenport and Haryey Kuenn and a single by Manuel Mota gave the Giants the two-run cluster in the eighth.

Final Meeting For Organizing Slated Monday

The Monroe Recreation Department is scheduled to hold its final organizational meeting Monday night for summer softball leagues before the beginning of the season.

Adult leagues scheduled to compete this season are: City League, open to independent teams; Industrial League, open to any type of industry; Church League, open to all churches in the Twin Cities and the Ladies League, open to ladies 16 and above.

The City League will meet at 6:30 p.m. followed by the Church League at 7:00, Ladies at 7:45 and Industrial at 8:00.

All meetings will be held at the Community Center on Catalpa Street. Managers from all teams that are planning to enter a team must be present or sent a representative.

A special meeting is also set for Monday night for all persons interested in umpiring in the summer softball program. The meet is set for 7 p.m. at the center and a former pro umpire is expected to conduct a rules clinic.

American Sets National Record For 10 Mile Run

LONDON (UPI)—Buddy Edelen of Sioux Falls, Iowa, set an American record time of 48 minutes, 31.8 seconds Saturday while winning the 10-mile Amateur Athletic Association championship.

Edelen finished 40 yards ahead of England's Mel Batty and Gerry North, also of England, was third.

"It was one of the easiest races I've ever had," Edelen said. "I've never felt so good."

Edelen, a 24-year-old schoolteacher in Essex, once held the American record for 10,000 meters. He has been in England for the last two years, where he teaches English.

Although he broke the American record in his first attempt at this distance, Edelen was far short of the world record for the 10-mile run of 47:47.0 set here by England's Basil Heatley last year.

IF you ever wondered what a pole vaulter looks like from straight below, here is your chance. John Uelses, the world's only 16-foot vaulter, goes over the 14-6 mark, caught by a camera burried in the sawdust at the edge of the pole retaining box and fired by remote control. Uelses, at the Kansas Relays, did only exhibition vaulting and reached 15-1½. (AP Wirephoto)

John Uelses Blames Strong Wind For Showing At Kansas Relays

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—John Uelses blamed a strong wind and a long wait between vaults for his failure to go higher than 15 feet 1¾ inches at the Kansas Relays Saturday.

"You complain when there isn't enough wind," said Uelses, the first 16-foot vaulter in history, "but today there was just too much of it. It threw me off a lot."

Uelses and Henry Wadsworth, who engaged in an exhibition, vaulted along with the collegians and Uelses said the long wait between jumps disturbed him.

Fred Hansen of Rice, who won the university-college pole vault with a meet record of 15-6¼, took three tries at 15-10¾. If he had made this, Hansen said, he would have asked for the bar to be raised to 16 feet.

The Western Golf Association Amateur currently is without a defending champion. Jack Nicklaus, crowned in 1961 at New Orleans C. C., turned professional a few months later.

BILL KRIEGER, shown here on the still rings, may miss Northeast's gymnastics meet here Thursday night against LSU because of a collar bone injury. Krieger, a junior from Hammond, suffered the injury in the Southwestern AAU championships in Dallas. He won three events to help pace Northeast to the Southern AAU title here several weeks ago.

WITH LSU HERE

Star Could Miss Final Gym Meet

High - scoring Bill Krieger may miss the Northeast State gymnastics team's final meet of the season, a Thursday night date with LSU here, because of a collar bone injury.

Krieger, a Hammond junior, suffered the injury in the Southwestern AAU championships in Dallas and his doctor says recovery may be slow. No bone was broken but several tendons were torn.

Coach Barry Johnson's Northeast team finished second in the Dallas meet. Krieger scored eight points in junior division competition in the meet. He won three events and placed second in four others to help Northeast win the Southern AAU championship here several weeks ago.

The meet with LSU will begin at 7:30 in Brown Hall Gym on the Northeast campus. Tickets are now on sale in the college bookstore and at room 104 in Brown Hall. Advance tickets sell for 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets purchased at the door Thursday night will sell for $1 and 75 cents.

A team trophy and trophies for the winners of each event have been donated by Twin City Pontiac, according to Coach Johnson, and Selig Manufacturing Co. is donating a trophy for the meet's outstanding gymnast.

If Krieger does not compete Thursday, Northeast will lean heavily on all - around performers Gene Huffty and Marvin Jordan. Huffty took three events, including the all - around, in the Southern AAU meet while Jordan won the long horse.

Improving Jim Walker, if Krieger does not compete, will take his place in the free exercise and long horse events while Pearman Smith, Wynn Jefferson and Louis Whitworth will participate in other events.

Judges for the meet will be Coach Orie Pugh of Pioneer, Jimmy Sanefeur of Alexandria and Terrell Leach and Mike Murphy of Monroe. Chief Clerk will be George Smith of the local YMCA and Johnson will be meet director.

SAYS GAROGIOLA

Birds Should Win National Pennant

By JACK CLARY

NEW YORK (AP) — "The St. Louis Cardinals should win the National League pennant this year."

It was stated simply, yet it came across cold. And it sounded almost foreign coming from a man whose ability to make a person laugh exceeds the baseball record book's analysis of his 10-year major league career as a catcher.

Yet Joe Garogiola couldn't joke about the Cards' chances for their first pennant since 1946. Even the potential specter of age that hangs over the club failed to change his opinion.

"Age? I don't believe in age," he said. "And my biggest argument is based on four guys—Spahn, Minoso, Musial and Glenn. And you can throw in a man named Kennedy too," he added, listing President Kennedy along with Warren Spahn, Minnie Minoso, Stan Musial, and astronaut John Glenn.

"You could even say that Kennedy is young for his job," Garogiola added quickly before hurrying off to his weekend NBC game of the week assignment.

"But age has nothing to do with the Cardinals this year," he went on. "The club has depth, something that will overcome the uncertainties of a 162-game schedule and any problems that aging ball players create.

"Why, the Cards haven't even given their top pitcher of last year, Ray Sadecki, two turns yet and still they've gotten off to a flying start. Just the other night one of their so-called question marks, Ernie Broglio, came on in relief on a night that was really too cold for baseball, and gave only five hits to the Phils in 8 1-3 innings. He is a question mark no longer.

"The Cards have this pitching, and like any other club in the league, are going to need every bit of it to win games, even against the new teams.

"In fact," he digressed, "no one is going to beat the New York team with second line pitching. A club will have to go with its top pitchers for that club has players that will murder anything else in the hitting bracket. And they have a few pitchers that won't prove to be patsies for anyone."

AFTER WAVE OF CRITICISM

Paret Death Could Bring Clean-Up, Ban-Or Nothing

By JIM HACKLEMAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Four weeks ago, before the eyes of millions, Benny Paret suffered a savage beating at the hands of Emile Griffith in their welterweight title fight at Madison Square Garden.

Ten days later, without ever having regained consciousness, the 25-year-old Cuban died of brain injuries suffered in the bout.

The Paret tragedy triggered a crescendo of harsh criticism of boxing—perhaps the most intense criticism ever leveled against the much-maligned sport.

From all over the globe words of condemnation came, from Japan, Sweden, Cuba, England, Australia, Puerto Rico. Boxing was castigated as "legalized murder," "revolting," "s a d i s t i c," and "criminal."

Gov. Edmund Brown of California called boxing "dirty, rotten and brutalizing" and said he would like to see it abolished. Richard M. Nixon said it ought to be "cleaned up or kicked out."

The Vatican labeled prizefighting "objectively immoral," and the Jesuit magazine America said it was a violation of "natural justice," which "unleashes the beast in the boxer and the sadist in the spectator."

Newspapers all over the world have editorially blasted boxing and there has been an outcry for the abolishment of the sport by legislators here and abroad. Several governmental investigations are planned, or being called for.

So far, the sound and fury has signified little—but the future of boxing could be on a tightrope.

Actually, ring deaths are not rare, averaging about a dozen a year in pro and amateur bouts over the past 15 years. Why should one more fatality set off such a widespread furore?

For one thing, the man killed was a champion and his death occurred in a championship fight. And more importantly, it happened on nationwide television with the cameras zeroed in on the brutal climax as Griffith hammered the helpless Paret with a succession of more than 20 blows to the head. After Referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the bout, the final moments were rerun in slow motion tape, magnifying the savagery of Griffith's attack and the horrible punishment absorbed by Paret.

Criticism is not new to boxing. Throughout its long history it has been the black sheep of the family of sports. Boxing has had its great heroes, its respected champions. During the last years of the several weekly television shows, it was one of the most popular of entertainments. But it never has been really accepted as a wholesome profession.

And boxing is vulnerable to attack. Even its stoutest advocates must concede the validity of most charges brought against it.

By its very nature, boxing is a primitive business. Beating the other guy is the name of the game and beating him into submission, into senselessness, is the ultimate achievement. Blood and injuries are common by-products of boxing. And all too often ex-prize fighters suffer from the occupational disability that makes them worthless, pitiful hulks—unch drunkeness.

Former Scout And Ex-Manager Passes Away

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Bill Norman, 51, a scout for the Chicago White Sox and former manager of the Detroit Tigers, died at St. Luke's Hospital Saturday following a heart attack.

The hospital said Norman, who had complained of not feeling well, was given an electro-cardiogram when a physician diagnosed his condition as a heart difficulty. Norman had trouble breathing and died within a few minutes after the test was completed.

He managed Detroit from June 10, 1958, to May 2, 1959 and piloted the San Diego Club of the Pacific Coast League part of last season.

State Smashes Memphis Nine In 10-1 Revenge

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)—Righthander Dale Oliver pitched five-hit ball Saturday as Mississippi State defeated M e m p h i s State 10-1 to gain a split in a two-game non-conference baseball series.

Oliver was the loser in Friday's 23-8 loss to Memphis State, being knocked out in the second inning.

Mississippi State got a dozen hits—four of them homers—off starter Steve Dropkin who was the loser and reliefer Billy Patrick.

Johnny Cantrell had a homer for the Maroons in the second. Ronnie Norton led off the fourth with a four-bagger while Hal Green hit his first two home runs in the fourth.

Memphis State got its only run in the fifth inning when pinchhitter Jim Cupples walked, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Houston Akins' single.

Bill Etheridge and Cantrell each had three hits to lead the Maroon attack.

BILL KRIEGER, shown here on the still rings, may miss Northeast's gymnastics meet here Thursday night against LSU because of a collar bone injury. WITH LSU HERE

Star Could Miss Final Gym Meet

High - scoring Bill Krieger may miss the Northeast State gymnastics team's final meet of the season, a Thursday night date with LSU here, because of a collar bone injury.

Krieger, a Hammond junior, suffered the injury in the Southwestern AAU championships in Dallas and his doctor says recovery may be slow. No bone was broken but several tendons were torn.

Coach Barry Johnson's Northeast team finished second in the Dallas meet. Krieger scored eight points in junior division competition in the meet. He won three events and placed second in four others to help Northeast win the Southern AAU championship here several weeks ago.

The meet with LSU will begin at 7:30 in Brown Hall Gym on the Northeast campus. Tickets are now on sale in the college bookstore and at room 104 in Brown Hall. Advance tickets sell for 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets purchased at the door Thursday night will sell for $1 and 75 cents.

A team trophy and trophies for the winners of each event have been donated by Twin City Pontiac, according to Coach Johnson, and Selig Manufacturing Co. is donating a trophy for the meet's outstanding gymnast.

If Krieger does not compete Thursday, Northeast will lean heavily on all - around performers Gene Huffty and Marvin Jordan. Huffty took three events, including the all - around, in the Southern AAU meet while Jordan won the long horse.

Improving Jim Walker, if Krieger does not compete, will take his place in the free exercise and long horse events while Pearman Smith, Wynn Jefferson and Louis Whitworth will participate in other events.

Judges for the meet will be Coach Orie Pugh of Pioneer, Jimmy Sanefeur of Alexandria and Terrell Leach and Mike Murphy of Monroe. Chief Clerk will be George Smith of the local YMCA and Johnson will be meet director.

SAYS GAROGIOLA

Birds Should Win National Pennant

By JACK CLARY

NEW YORK (AP) — "The St. Louis Cardinals should win the National League pennant this year."

It was stated simply, yet it came across cold. And it sounded almost foreign coming from a man whose ability to make a person laugh exceeds the baseball record book's analysis of his 10-year major league career as a catcher.

Yet Joe Garogiola couldn't joke about the Cards' chances for their first pennant since 1946. Even the potential specter of age that hangs over the club failed to change his opinion.

"Age? I don't believe in age," he said. "And my biggest argument is based on four guys—Spahn, Minoso, Musial and Glenn. And you can throw in a man named Kennedy too," he added, listing President Kennedy along with Warren Spahn, Minnie Minoso, Stan Musial, and astronaut John Glenn.

"You could even say that Kennedy is young for his job," Garogiola added quickly before hurrying off to his weekend NBC game of the week assignment.

"But age has nothing to do with the Cardinals this year," he went on. "The club has depth, something that will overcome the uncertainties of a 162-game schedule and any problems that aging ball players create.

"Why, the Cards haven't even given their top pitcher of last year, Ray Sadecki, two turns yet and still they've gotten off to a flying start. Just the other night one of their so-called question marks, Ernie Broglio, came on in relief on a night that was really too cold for baseball, and gave only five hits to the Phils in 8 1-3 innings. He is a question mark no longer.

"The Cards have this pitching, and like any other club in the league, are going to need every bit of it to win games, even against the new teams.

"In fact," he digressed, "no one is going to beat the New York team with second line pitching. A club will have to go with its top pitchers for that club has players that will murder anything else in the hitting bracket. And they have a few pitchers that won't prove to be patsies for anyone."

AFTER WAVE OF CRITICISM

Paret Death Could Bring Clean-Up, Ban-Or Nothing

By JIM HACKLEMAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Four weeks ago, before the eyes of millions, Benny Paret suffered a savage beating at the hands of Emile Griffith in their welterweight title fight at Madison Square Garden.

Ten days later, without ever having regained consciousness, the 25-year-old Cuban died of brain injuries suffered in the bout.

The Paret tragedy triggered a crescendo of harsh criticism of boxing—perhaps the most intense criticism ever leveled against the much-maligned sport.

From all over the globe words of condemnation came, from Japan, Sweden, Cuba, England, Australia, Puerto Rico. Boxing was castigated as "legalized murder," "revolting," "sadistic," and "criminal."

Gov. Edmund Brown of California called boxing "dirty, rotten and brutalizing" and said he would like to see it abolished. Richard M. Nixon said it ought to be "cleaned up or kicked out."

The Vatican labeled prizefighting "objectively immoral," and the Jesuit magazine America said it was a violation of "natural justice," which "unleashes the beast in the boxer and the sadist in the spectator."

Newspapers all over the world have editorially blasted boxing and there has been an outcry for the abolishment of the sport by legislators here and abroad. Several governmental investigations are planned, or being called for.

So far, the sound and fury has signified little—but the future of boxing could be on a tightrope.

Actually, ring deaths are not rare, averaging about a dozen a year in pro and amateur bouts over the past 15 years. Why should one more fatality set off such a widespread furore?

For one thing, the man killed was a champion and his death occurred in a championship fight. And more importantly, it happened on nationwide television with the cameras zeroed in on the brutal climax as Griffith hammered the helpless Paret with a succession of more than 20 blows to the head. After Referee Ruby Goldstein stopped the bout, the final moments were rerun in slow motion tape, magnifying the savagery of Griffith's attack and the horrible punishment absorbed by Paret.

Criticism is not new to boxing. Throughout its long history it has been the black sheep of the family of sports. Boxing has had its great heroes, its respected champions. During the last years of the several weekly television shows, it was one of the most popular of entertainments. But it never has been really accepted as a wholesome profession.

And boxing is vulnerable to attack. Even its stoutest advocates must concede the validity of most charges brought against it.

By its very nature, boxing is a primitive business. Beating the other guy is the name of the game and beating him into submission, into senselessness, is the ultimate achievement. Blood and injuries are common by-products of boxing. And all too often ex-prize fighters suffer from the occupational disability that makes them worthless, pitiful hulks—unch drunkeness.

Former Scout And Ex-Manager Passes Away

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Bill Norman, 51, a scout for the Chicago White Sox and former manager of the Detroit Tigers, died at St. Luke's Hospital Saturday following a heart attack.

The hospital said Norman, who had complained of not feeling well, was given an electro-cardiogram when a physician diagnosed his condition as a heart difficulty. Norman had trouble breathing and died within a few minutes after the test was completed.

He managed Detroit from June 10, 1958, to May 2, 1959 and piloted the San Diego Club of the Pacific Coast League part of last season.

State Smashes Memphis Nine In 10-1 Revenge

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)—Righthander Dale Oliver pitched five-hit ball Saturday as Mississippi State defeated Memphis State 10-1 to gain a split in a two-game non-conference baseball series.

Oliver was the loser in Friday's 23-8 loss to Memphis State, being knocked out in the second inning.

Mississippi State got a dozen hits—four of them homers—off starter Steve Dropkin who was the loser and reliefer Billy Patrick.

Johnny Cantrell had a homer for the Maroons in the second. Ronnie Norton led off the fourth with a four-bagger while Hal Green hit his first two home runs in the fourth.

Memphis State got its only run in the fifth inning when pinchhitter Jim Cupples walked, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Houston Akins' single.

Bill Etheridge and Cantrell each had three hits to lead the Maroon attack.

Deer Tagging System

Louisiana took a great step forward two years ago when the Legislature approved the deer tagging system under which hunters are required to tag their deer after kill, then submit a report after the season has ended.

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission has administered the program for two years, noting that many sportsmen are are failing to return their report cards.

While the system is certainly not foolproof and is still far from offering complete coverage of the annual deer kill, it's a program that should be supported by every man who attempts to kill a buck each year.

Other states have had the deer tagging system for years. Louisiana was one of the last to adopt it.

It should be kept in mind that the Louisiana game program can't be approached as it was in the days of our grandfathers. We simply have more people now and far less game.

Naturally, if we are to preserve the game the hunter must accept more obligations while relinquishing a part of the freedom that was enjoyed when there were not any hunting seasons nor licenses nor game wardens nor game laws.

This week, on Monday and Tuesday, when the Louisiana Police Jury Association convenes in New Orleans for its annual meeting, a resolution will be presented calling on the Legislature to abolish the deer tagging system.

The resolution was originally adopted by the Grant Parish Police Jury and now will be presented to the association for its official approval.

If the association adopts the resolution, those who are against the tagging method will have a heavy stick to swing when the Legislature meets in May.

They can tell the legislators that their respective police juries are against tagging deer, that the program should be abolished.

We sincerely hope that the police juries of this section will be patient with the tagging method and will turn thumbs down on the resolution when presented in New Orleans.

Sportsmen who can see in the future should contact their jurors before they depart today and urge them to vote against the resolution.

What's more, sportsmen should talk to their representatives and senators about the prospects of maintaining such a vital program that can be of a resource that unless protected will disappear.

It would be a great shame to push the Louisiana conservation program back to the horse-and-buggy days.

Turkey Kill Reports

From all indications, Northeast Louisiana had one of its better turkey seasons. The hunting — at least the legal hunting — ended last Sunday after nine days.

Dewey Wills, the Ferriday district supervisor of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, reported Thursday that his staff had checked 70 known kills in Madison, Tensas and Franklin.

Dewey believes that at least 85 gobblers were bagged in the three parishes during the season.

Even comparing the 70 known kills with last year, this is an increase. There were 53 known kills last year.

Madison again led the field in this area with 42, Tensas with 15 and Franklin with 13. Of the total, 38 gobblers were killed on the Chicago Mills Game Management Area — compared with 27 last year.

Dewey said the weather was the big factor, pointing out that there were really only two bad days during the nine-day seasôn. We have seen seasons when it rained most of the time.

Meantime, Cliff Williams, Monroe district supervisor, reported this week that so far his staff has checked out 11 gobblers in Union, which is encouraging, and eight in Morehouse.

Union had its first season while Morehouse has seen better seasons, if there were only eight birds bagged.

Turkdy hunters should send their report cards to the commission office. Just tear the card off your license, fill it in and drop it in the mail, postage paid.

It's important, in that the state's biologists can determine by the card system where the turkey population trend is heading. Or at least the card system helps.

The best way to check the turkey trend is just get in the woods and listen to them gobble.

Joint Meeting Here

Cattlemen, farmers and sportsmen are urged to attend a joint meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the agriculture building in West Monroe.

In short, the meeting was called to create interest and support for a state-wide program designed to combat the spread of the screwworm, which is harmful to livestock as well as wildlife.

The meeting will be co-sponsored by the Ouachita Farm Bureau, the Ouachita Cattlemen's Association and the Ouachita Wildlife Unit. County agent J. J. Joyce is handling the arrangements.

Normally, the local wildlife unit holds its regular monthly meetings on the last Tuesday night of each month, but this particular session will suffice for this month's meeting.

Local farmers, cattlemen and sportsmen are pitching in to make the drive against the screwworm successful. You are invited to attend.

Little Man's Corner

The turkey season ended, but the fishing continued and the little men made news afield.

From Monroe, Stan (The Man) Brister bagged a gobbler hunting with his barber partner, George Stamper, in Madison Parish at their camp. George didn't get one this year,, but he managed to kill his usual rattler.

Wilton Crawford of Rayville killed a turkey on the same hunt. Brister's bird had a beard that was over 11 inches long.

J. E. Hamilton of Downsville and O. D. Graves of Marion killed gobblers in Union while Fred Herrington, Mike Moore and Jack Wells dropped on in Morehouse—one each.

Newellton sportsman Iley Garr killed his gobbler near the Burnside camp on the Tensas River. John Randall of Newellton killed one too.

Two Tallulah sportsmen, Carl Griffin, and George Townsend had successful turkey hunts on the Chicago Mills Game Management Area.

And on the fishing side, Clear Lake has been good for bream fishing. Jeff Davis caught 70 bream there.

J. E. Melton, Bill Cummins, Carol Hicks, Walt Durham and John Carson, all of Winnfield, have been landing the limit of bream on Saline.

From Winnsboro, Shirley Evans and Jack Givens, fishing with top water baits, landed four bass that weighed 12½ pounds in Lake St. John.

Fishing Lafourche with crickets, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Albritton caught 19 large bream.

Bussie continues to be a hot spot. Catching specs were W. D. Rodgers, J. G. Stewart, Mrs. C. W. Woods, Willie Hutson, T. E. and Henry Emerson and Thurmond Goodnight. Nelson Payne and his partners have caught over 90 bass in Bussie.

W. E. Perry has had lots of luck with the bass in Bussie while Russell White landed 15.

And from Jena, R. L. Buckelew has landed some big bream in Snaggy Lake.

At Lake Providence, J. H. Gilfoil caught five bass in the lake with a homemade Helldiver. Ernest Sulivers caught 11 white perch in Gassaway. Claude Williams of Oak Grove landed 14 and O. S. Malone of Kilbourne caught seven.

P. R. Saxton and Mike Miller of Oak Grove got their limits of white perch while John Hankins of Lake Providence caught four bass on the Helldiver.

Lake Providence also has been good for catfish. Mrs. Mattie Preson of Missouri, visiting in East Carroll, and Mrs. Morris Coleman of Lake Providence caught 30 catfish each. They used worms.

Meantime, Black Bayou took on an international flavor. Haus Palmgreir of Gotebrug, Sweden caught a boat full of bream. The blonde Swede got blistered with it.

Dave McKenzie, Sam Ruffino, Millard Williams, Art Barton, Harvey Walker, Buck Coker — all of Monroe — landed the bream. Cleveland Cornett and Jake Benton had luck with the bass in Black Bayou.

White perch fishing was good Friday.

LOCAL SPORTSMAN Stan Brister is a happy man as he poses with the wild turkey he killed in Madison Parish. The gobbler weighed 16½-pounds field dressed, sported a 55-inch wingspread and a beard that went over 11 inches.

Assault On Drake Relay Records Set

By RON SPEER

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The annual assault on Drake Relays records takes place Friday and Saturday with sprinters and a pair of pole vaulters leading the attack in the 53rd running of the field classic.

Relays officials are hoping for a 16-foot vault from John Uelses, ex-Marine who is the only person to clear that ceiling.

Uelses' competition in the AAU pole vault will be provided by George Davies of Arizona State and J. D. Martin, former Oklahoma ace.

Davies' world record of 15-10¼ was shattered last month by Uelses. Davies holds the Drake college and university mark of 15-6 which he set a year ago while competing for Oklahoma State.

Heading the classy sprint field is Bob Hayes, Florida A&M speedster who has tied the world record in the 100-yard dash with a 9.2-second clocking.

Challenging Hayes in the sprint feature will be Stone Johnson of Grambling, Homer Jones of Texas Southern and Bob Paremore of Florida A&M, all of whom have run the dash in 9.4 seconds.

Also bidding in the century will be defending champion Bill Kemp of Baylor, Ray Knaub of Nebraska and Rogers Sayers of Omaha University, who have been timed in 9.6 seconds or less.

Kemp is one of five individual defending champions in the field. Others are Pat Clohessy of Houston in the 2-mile run, Bobby Bernard of Texas Christian in the 120-yard high hurdles, Ron Ablowich of Georgia Tech in the 440-yard hurdles, and Barrie Almond of Houston in the mile run.

Almond, 27-year-old Australian, is bidding for a third straight Drake crown. Other 13 athletes have turned the trick in Drake history.

Two of the best milers in the meet, Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago and Bill Dotson of Kansas, have indicated they will pass up the open mile to run on several relay teams. O'Hara ran a 4:01.6 indoor mile and Dotson recently ran the open mile in 4:04.3.

Texas Southern the little school which ran wild in Southern meets, is favored—and apt to set records —in five events in the college division.

Texas Southern has better times this year than the Drake standards in the college 440-relay, 880-relay, mile relay, 2-mile relay and the sprint medley relay.

Other records which could fall include the shot put, the university mile, 2-mile and distance medley relays and the shuttles hurdles relay.

Uelses' vaulting is the featured event on Friday's program, which also includes finals in the 2-mile run, the college distance medley relay, the university sprint medley relay, the 440-yard shuttle hurdles, the 4-mile relay and the discus throw.

Running events start at 2 p.m., CST both Friday and Saturday.

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi came up with a 3-run rally in the seventh Saturday to down Tulane 7-4 for its second straight Southeastern Conference victory over the Greenies in as many days.

Ole Miss crushed Tulane 13-1 Friday.

Also bidding in the century will be defending champion Bill Kemp of Baylor, Ray Knaub of Nebraska and Rogers Sayers of Omaha University, who have been timed in 9.6 seconds or less.

Kemp is one of five individual defending champions in the field. Others are Pat Clohessy of Houston in the 2-mile run, Bobby Bernard of Texas Christian in the 120-yard high hurdles, Ron Ablowich of Georgia Tech in the 440-yard hurdles, and Barrie Almond of Houston in the mile run.

Almond, 27-year-old Australian, is bidding for a third straight Drake crown. Other 13 athletes have turned the trick in Drake history.

Two of the best milers in the meet, Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago and Bill Dotson of Kansas, have indicated they will pass up the open mile to run on several relay teams. O'Hara ran a 4:01.6 indoor mile and Dotson recently ran the open mile in 4:04.3.

Texas Southern the little school which ran wild in Southern meets, is favored—and apt to set records—in five events in the college division.

Texas Southern has better times this year than the Drake standards in the college 440-relay, 880-relay, mile relay, 2-mile relay and the sprint medley relay.

Other records which could fall include the shot put, the university mile, 2-mile and distance medley relays and the shuttles hurdles relay.

Uelses' vaulting is the featured event on Friday's program, which also includes finals in the 2-mile run, the college distance medley relay, the university sprint medley relay, the 440-yard shuttle hurdles, the 4-mile relay and the discus throw.

Running events start at 2 p.m., CST both Friday and Saturday.

Demo Chairman Assails Attacks

CAVALRY GEN. Enrique Rauch, above, told newsmen in Buenos Aires, Argentina, Saturday that a truce had been reached between President Jose Mario Guido and military chiefs in nation's current crisis over Peronism. Rauch had staged a rebellion against the Army chiefs in support of the president. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey Saturday termed the Republican leadership attack on President Kennedy's actions in the steel price controversy arrant nonsense.

Bailey said in a statement the attack was a "silly and specious bit of partisan exaggeration" and "so clumsy and partisan it is sure to backfire on the Republican party."

Republican congressional leaders Thursday accused Kennedy of using police - state methods to blackjack steel companies into rescinding a $6-a-ton price increase.

The GOP statement charged the President with ordering or supporting actions that "imperiled basic American rights, went far beyond the law, and were more characteristic of a police state than a free government."

The Republicans said they condoned nothing in the actions of the steel companies "except their right to make an economic judgment without massive retaliation by the federal government."

Bailey in his reply said:

"The Republican congressional leadership's action in coming to the defense of the big steel companies with a specious attack upon the President for mobilizing public opinion and governmental resources to combat this inflationary price rise demonstrates once again that the Republican party puts the selfish and narrow interests of the few ahead of the welfare of the average American family.

"For 10 days the GOP was strangely silent. They said nothing to protect the public interest and prevent an inflationary spiral. Only when the President, aided by the forces of competition, had safeguarded the public interest did they suddenly decide they could attack him in a crudely partisan manner.

"The Republicans know that it is arrant nonsense to compare the public activities of the President and the executive branch with the secret violence of a police state.

"The Republicans know that the President's actions did not deprive any American of any freedom, including the freedom of foolish utterance which was exercised by the Republican leaders."

Bailey said the Republican "scare statement may frighten some right-wing radicals into looking under their beds and disconnecting their doorbells, but most Americans will recognize the Republican document for the silly and specious bit of partisan exaggeration that it is."

Saying officers and directors of the big steel companies gave more than $135,000 to the Republicans in the 1960 campaign, Bailey added, "It is natural that they should have turned to the recipients of this largesse when they sought some organization to make a sneak attack upon the President that they were undoubtedly afraid to make in their own names.

"It is also natural that the Republicans should be glad to oblige their generous friends."

Bailey said reports from all over the country indicate the people "are proud to have a strong president who was willing to fight the big steel companies in the interest of the public."

Penguin Gives Officer A Start

NEW YORK (AP) — A policeman was startled Saturday at seeing a penguin in a Bronx park.

But it turned out to be Charley, a penguin absent without leave from the Bronx Zoo, about a mile away. He was returned to the zoo.

Joseph Bell, a zoo official, said this marked the fourth time since Christmas that somebody had taken a penguin from the zoo pool and set it loose elsewhere.

"It's only a matter of time before one of the birds gets hurt," he said.

Derby-Sims Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

First Methodist Church at Warren, Arkansas, was scene of the marriage of Miss Bobbie Sims and Samuel Arthur Derby on Saturday, April 7. The bride is the daughter of Robbie A. Sims of Farmerville and the late Mrs. Jewel Books Sims. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hedrick Derby of Warren.

Dr. Kenneth Spore, minister of the church, performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p.m. following a program of nuptial music by Miss Jessye Mae Harley and Mrs. Richard Gray. Vows were exchanged before a background of palms and southern smilax and baskets of calla lilies. Chinese silk draped the pulpit and four console candles were used on the chancel rail. Numerous lighted tapers in seven - branched candelabra illuminated the setting with console, candles in Gothic standards completing the scene. Pews were marked with white satin bows, smilax and single white tapers.

BRIDE'S GOWN

The bride wore a traditional gown of peau de soie. The sculptured bodice featured a Sabrina neckline yoked with re - embroidered Alencon lace with iridescent sequins and pearls. Long fitted sleeves formed calla lily points over the hands and the voluminous skirt was caught up by sheared poufs in back to form a bustle from which fell a cathedral train. Her tiered fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a crown of seed pearls with an illusion rose and crystal drop in each point of the crown. she carried a bouquet of calla lilies tied with ivory velvet ribbon and leather leaf fern. Her only adornment was an heirloom seed pearl necklace with opal drop, worn by Mr. Derby's mother and his grandmother, the late Mrs. Sam B. Meeks of Warren, at their weddings.

Mrs. Bob Clements of Lake Village, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. George Wagnon, sister of the bride, of Center, Texas; Miss Charmyne Brooks, Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride; Miss Judy McLemore of Farmerville and Miss Betsy Meeks, cousin of the bridegroom.

They wore identical gowns of coral chiffon over pink taffeta, fashioned with round necklines, cap sleeves and full skirts with shirred bodices forming an empire waist effect. They wore matching circular net veils. NLSC Honor Society Initiates 56 At Banquet

Initiation and a banquet honoring new members marked the climax of the school year's events for the Northeast Louisiana State College Honor Society. The Paragon Club Ballroom was scene of the annual affair Tuesday night. Guests were greeted in the foyer by Charles Cagle and Miss Judith Brown.

A crystal bowl of crimson roses and pittisporum graced the table where Mrs. Gloria Garland, Mrs. Sara Taylor and Miss Sheila Townley presided at the guest book.

Preceding the banquet were initiation ceremonies in which 56 students became affiliated with the organization, the largest number for such an occasion in the history of the Honor Society.

Pink, blue and silver, the organization's colors, were employed in decorative motifs. The head table was centered with an arrangement of white stock, pink and white daisies, and iris in shades of yellow, lavender and white. Derby-Sims Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

First Methodist Church at Warren, Arkansas, was scene of the marriage of Miss Bobbie Sims and Samuel Arthur Derby on Saturday, April 7. The bride is the daughter of Robbie A. Sims of Farmerville and the late Mrs. Jewel Books Sims. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hedrick Derby of Warren.

Dr. Kenneth Spore, minister of the church, performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p.m. following a program of nuptial music by Miss Jessye Mae Harley and Mrs. Richard Gray. Vows were exchanged before a background of palms and southern smilax and baskets of calla lilies. Chinese silk draped the pulpit and four console candles were used on the chancel rail. Numerous lighted tapers in seven - branched candelabra illuminated the setting with console, candles in Gothic standards completing the scene. Pews were marked with white satin bows, smilax and single white tapers.

BRIDE'S GOWN

The bride wore a traditional gown of peau de soie. The sculptured bodice featured a Sabrina neckline yoked with re - embroidered Alencon lace with iridescent sequins and pearls. Long fitted sleeves formed calla lily points over the hands and the voluminous skirt was caught up by sheared poufs in back to form a bustle from which fell a cathedral train. Her tiered fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a crown of seed pearls with an illusion rose and crystal drop in each point of the crown. she carried a bouquet of calla lilies tied with ivory velvet ribbon and leather leaf fern. Her only adornment was an heirloom seed pearl necklace with opal drop, worn by Mr. Derby's mother and his grandmother, the late Mrs. Sam B. Meeks of Warren, at their weddings.

Mrs. Bob Clements of Lake Village, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. George Wagnon, sister of the bride, of Center, Texas; Miss Charmyne Brooks, Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride; Miss Judy McLemore of Farmerville and Miss Betsy Meeks, cousin of the bridegroom.

They wore identical gowns of coral chiffon over pink taffeta, fashioned with round necklines, cap sleeves and full skirts with shirred bodices forming an empire waist effect. They wore matching circular net veils. The honor attendant carried a crescent bouquet of red happiness roses tied with moss green velvet ribbon and the bridesmaids' bouquets were crescents of red happiness roses and pink carnations, tied with moss green velvet ribbon.

For Easter, we know no better poem than John Donne's "Holy Sonnett':

Death, be not proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so;
For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow
Die not, poor Death; nor yet canst thou kill me.
From rest and sleep, which but thy picture be Much pleasure; then from thee much more must flow;
And soonest our best men with thee do go—
Rest of their bones and souls' delivery!
Thou'rt slave to fate, chance, kings, and desperate men,
And dost with poison, war, and sickness dwell;
And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well
And better than thy stroke. Why swell'st thou then?
One short sleep past, we wake eternally,
And Death shall be no more: Death, thou shalt die!

For people who always knew there must be a medical reason why "everything they eat seems to turn to fat"...here's news of a revolutionary new bio-chemical concept of weight control, developed by doctors!

The CDC Plan

First weight-reducing plan promising three satisfying meals a day

"Don't count calories", says this new concept. This is not a crash diet. Not a "starvation" diet. The CDC plan, developed by a well-known doctor, reported in an important medical journal, urges you to eat plenty of roasts, steaks, chops, fried chicken, fried potatoes, bacon, ham, avocados and other heretofore "forbidden foods". No need to be hungry. No haggard dieter's look. You'll feel better. Best of all, this doctor reports that you can expect to rid your body of stubborn deposits of excess fat.

Now, from a pioneering group of courageous doctors, comes a radical new bio-chemical concept of weight control that challenges previous thinking about the cause and management of overweight and obesity. True, there are differences of medical opinion about a method of weight-control as radically new as this. But a well-known doctor has achieved dramatic success using this plan with hundreds of patients for a period of years.

It is now possible according to these doctors to pinpoint the real reason why so many people get fat on the same kinds of amounts of food that keep the lucky few slim; and why crash diets and other low-calorie starvation diets seldom work permanently.

Your body may not be able to handle carbohydrates

Contrary to popular belief, these dissident doctors maintain it is not so much a matter of lack of will-power, or "gluttony" as some obesity experts are fond of saying. It's a matter of body chemistry. These doctors say it's the way your body handles carbohydrates (sugars and starches) that determines whether or not you get fat.

That is why the CDC plan, unlike some low-calorie diets, drastically reduces your intake of carbohydrates.

The more fat you eat, the more fat you lose!

Based upon clinical observations, these doctors maintain that most low-calorie diets do not supply sufficient fats which, in their opinion, are essential for your body to burn up its excess fat. In fact, a well-known doctor advocates that to get rid of excess fat, you must eat three full meals each day, and you must consume more fats of a very special kind. These are the polyunsaturated fats.

Impressive medical evidence

An impressive body of medical evidence now points the way to this new bio-chemical concept of weight control. And the new CDC plan calls for the foods you eat to enable your body to melt down, burn up, take off excess body fat. You can keep it off, too, because the CDC weight control program is so satisfying and easy to stay on.

Polyunsaturated fats essential

The cornerstone of the new CDC plan is a radical new diet pattern that calls for plenty of fats, preferably polyunsaturated fats. You don't count calories. You eat three big meals each day, and satisfy your appetite completely with more good solid food than you may have eaten in years.

And because it is sometimes difficult for people unaccustomed to large amounts of fats in the diet to take in each day the quantities of fats called for, the CDC plan also provides you with polyunsaturated fats in convenient capsule form to supplement your meals. These capsules are orange and white. (Caution: to make sure you have the same capsules used by this well-known doctor in his work on this new concept of dietary management of obesity, be sure you get the genuine CDC capsules with the distinctive orange and white jackets.)

The combination of CDC capsules and the CDC weight control program is designed to help you lose excess fat wherever you have it – buttocks, abdomen, neck, upper arms, thighs, etc. – without looking haggard and hungry.

No need to starve yourself, no need to feel hungry

Under the CDC plan you eat steaks, roasts, chops, fried potatoes, avocados, cheese, ham, bacon, sausage, salads with rich dressing and choose vegetables from a long list low in carbohydrates. You eat three full meals a day. And you don't count calories!

The only foods forbidden to you are the high carbohydrates such as bread, cake, pies, crackers, rolls, doughnuts, sweets and some fruits and vegetables with high carbohydrate content. You'll soon find you don't have the cravings that go with so many diets because the many good foods you must eat as part of the CDC plan are so satisfying.

What you get in the CDC plan

With your CDC plan you get everything you need to start at once on this new happier way of life. In addition to the original orange and white CDC capsules, you get "The CDC Plan", a booklet complete with food charts and a doctor's easy-to-understand explanation of the foods to eat and the foods to shun.

Steady loss of fat

You should know this important fact. The CDC plan doesn't promise to make you slim overnight, but the pioneering doctor responsible for this new concept of weight control has reported a pattern of definite, steady loss over and over again among many hundreds of overweight patients. That is why we have introduced the CDC plan to the general public, so many thousands of overweight people can now try for themselves this exciting new concept of weight control.

Ask your Doctor

Whether you're a little overweight, or weigh many pounds too much, we suggest you show this page to your doctor and ask him what he thinks about the CDC Plan for you. Unless you are among those 5% of all obese people with glandular imbalance, you may be able to get started on the CDC Plan today!

Baskets of white gladioli and seven-branched candelabra, holding white tapers on either side of a prie dieu formed a setting at the altar for the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. T. Earl Ogg.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Ronnie Brothers, organist, who also accompanied Veo Gray as he sang "In the Still of the Night," "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of bridal satin, embellished with motifs of reembroidered Chantilly lace sweeping across the fitted bodice and front of the skirt. Unpressed box pleats shaped the wide floating skirt, which terminated in a chapel train. A butterfly bow and covered buttons added back interest. Her veil was a Mantilla of Chantilly lace and for adornment she wore a diamond pendant, given her by her parents some years ago. She carried a cascade of white roses.

Miss Judy Elaine Durham of Oakdale, attended the bride as maid of honor. Her dress of pink organza over pink taffeta, was designed with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Nell McAllister, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Nancy Whobery of Rogersville, Missouri.

Flower girl was Miss Roberta Lynn Ledbetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Ledbetter of Birmingham, Alabama, niece of the bride. She carried a basket filled with pink roses and trailing ivy.

Serving as best man was George P. McAllister Jr., of Nashville, Tenn., brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Glenn Wyatt and Durwood Kuhn of New Orleans and ushers were Charles Walker and Arthur S. Patron of Ruston. Candles were lighted by Jack and Jess Hixson, twin sons of Mr and Mrs. Rudy Hixson and the ringbearer was Gary Wyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Wyatt, nephew of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Lane selected for her daughter's wedding a gown of beige lace over green taffeta, with softly draped bow of matching silk organza at the hipline. She wore a close fitting hat with an accent of beige veiling with elbow length white gloves and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. McAllister wore a blue silk sheath dress with white hat and gloves, patent accessories, and a pink sweetheart rose corsage.

A reception was held in the church social center following the exchange of vows. The tables were covered with white linen cutwork cloths. Centerpiece for the punch table was an arrangement of pink roses and white stock in a silver bowl. Mrs. Glenn Wyatt and Mrs. Durwood Kuhn, sisters of the bridegroom, presided at punch bowls from either end of the table, which also held matching candelabra with white tapers. Mrs. Charles Whobery of Rogersville, Mo., aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake, decorated with pink and white roses in spiral form and Mrs. Robert C. Ledbetter, sister of the bride, presided at the guest book.

When the couple left for a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a suit of hot pink with matching flower hat and white accessories with a corsage of white roses. Upon their return the couple will be at home in West Monroe.

Moral Code's New Version Concern Point

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"Thou shalt not steal—much."

"Thou shalt not bear false witness—unless you're in a jam."

"Thou shalt not commit adultery—except when you're really in love . . ."

Moses would never recognize this version of the Ten Commandments. It is a modern version. It has never been written down on tablets of stone, but, according to U.S. religious leaders, it appears to have acquired a wide following.

There is great concern among Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders about this popular tendency to add convenient escape clauses to the Commandments which have been the basis of the Judeo-Christian moral code for thousands of years.

Theologians call it "moral relativism."

The moral relativist, they say, doesn't ignore moral laws. He just interprets them to suit himself.

TO A POINT

He is honest, up to a point. He is truthful, a good part of the time. You can trust him, especially if you keep an eye on him.

He would never think of robbing a bank. That would be criminal, and also dangerous.

But he sees no great harm in clipping the company for a few bucks on his expense account ("They ought to pay me a better salary anyway") or in pressing a spurious damage suit ("The insurance company can afford it") or in defrauding the government somewhat on his income tax return ("They'll take it all if you let them.")

If he reads in the newspaper about a janitor who returned a sackful of money that fell out of an armored car, he sits down and writes the janitor a letter — telling him how "stupid" he was.

If he happens to be an electric industry executive who is caught fixing prices, he blandly explains to a congressional committee that he didn't do anything really criminal. He just violated a law that was inconvenient to his business.

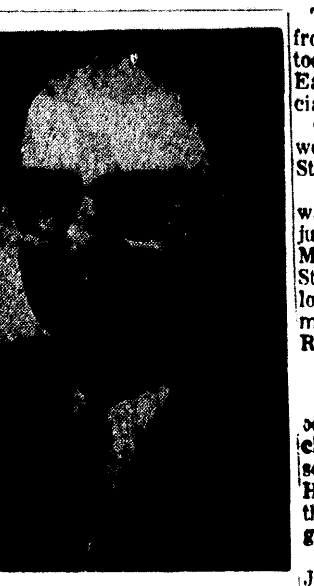
OKAY BY HIM

If his favorite TV quiz shows turn out to be rigged, he doesn't get sore at the well-prompted "geniuses" who played him for a sucker. After all, he asks, who wouldn't lie for $64,000?

He does have a code of sexual morality—in fact, two of them. One, which he expects his wife and children to follow, is based on Biblical teachings. It forbids sexual relations outside of marriage, with no ifs, ands or buts.

The other, which he privately regards as the only suitable rule for a robust man like himself, is borrowed from romantic movies and novels. It holds that marital infidelity is excusable if it results from a mutual, if fleeting, passion sanctified by the name of "love."

Don't get the moral relativist wrong. He doesn't want to repeal the Ten Commandments. He thinks they are a great guide to conduct, especially for the other fellow, and provided, of course, that you don't carry them too far.



REV. FLOYD W. AKIN shown here, and his wife, of Texarkana, Texas, will be in charge of special singing during a revival series at the Monroe First Church of the Nazarene, 201 Thomas Ave., Wednesday through May 6th. Services will be held daily at 7:30 p.m., said Rev. E. P. Akin, pastor.

Dr. G. Walker Speaker For Area Meeting

The president of Northeast State College, George T. Walker, will be featured speaker at a meeting of area Presbyterian laymen at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 200 Selman Drive, 7 p.m. Monday.

Capt. Joseph Milwee, president of Westminster Presbyterian Men said that Dr. Walker, a well-known Presbyterian layman and educator, will speak on the theme, "Higher Education."

EMPHASIS

Milwee explained that the distinguishing characteristic of the Presbyterian Church is its strong emphasis on education. He noted that the Presbyterian Church in the south owns and controls 29 institutions of higher learning.

Men of Westminster Church will serve as hosts for the meeting, and dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

The meeting is open to all Presbyterian laymen in the area. Capt. Milwee is in charge of reservations.

Central Pilgrim is the regional college of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, offering general education, arts and sciences, Bible and theology courses.

The program will be open to the public.

Revival Series Opens Today At Rayville Church

A series of revival services opening today at Woodlawn Baptist Church in Rayville and continuing through the following Sunday, will feature the pastor, Rev. Perry Lassiter, as speaker.

During the meetings the emphasis will be on youth. The Youth Choir will sing every evening, and there will special music presentations, with Miss Gayle Tilbury, Miss Diane Burroughs and Willie Weaver taking part. Services will be held daily at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Reatha Denham will play piano and C. G. Hendrix will direct congregational hymns.

Rev. Lassiter is a native of Monroe, completed high school at Neville and received a BA degree in philosophy from Baylor University. He came to Woodlawn 3½ months ago from California where he served with the Tentmaker Program of the Home Mission Board.

An all-day gospel singing program will be held today at the Hill View Free Will Baptist Church on Cooper Lake Road in Bastrop.

There will be an old fashioned picnic dinner served on the church lawn.

NEW HEADQUARTERS

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — The new American Baptist headquarters, now housing all denominational agencies under one roof here, is a circular building that looks much like Roman colosseum. Personnel moved into the new $8½ - million headquarters early this year.

EVG. JERRY W. BERNARD of Dallas, Texas, will be the speaker Wed. thru Sun. at Paron Baptist Church, Sterlington. Services will be held each night at 7:30 according to the Pastor, Rev. Wayne Gentry who can be heard daily on KLIC at 9 a.m.

Moral Code's New Version Concern Point

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"Thou shalt not steal—much."

"Thou shalt not bear false witness—unless you're in a jam."

"Thou shalt not commit adultery—except when you're really in love . . ."

Moses would never recognize this version of the Ten Commandments. It is a modern version. It has never been written down on tablets of stone, but, according to U.S. religious leaders, it appears to have acquired a wide following.

There is great concern among Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders about this popular tendency to add convenient escape clauses to the Commandments which have been the basis of the Judeo-Christian moral code for thousands of years.

Theologians call it "moral relativism."

The moral relativist, they say, doesn't ignore moral laws. He just interprets them to suit himself.

TO A POINT

He is honest, up to a point. He is truthful, a good part of the time. You can trust him, especially if you keep an eye on him.

He would never think of robbing a bank. That would be criminal, and also dangerous.

But he sees no great harm in clipping the company for a few bucks on his expense account ("They ought to pay me a better salary anyway") or in pressing a spurious damage suit ("The insurance company can afford it") or in defrauding the government somewhat on his income tax return ("They'll take it all if you let them.")

If he reads in the newspaper about a janitor who returned a sackful of money that fell out of an armored car, he sits down and writes the janitor a letter — telling him how "stupid" he was.

If he happens to be an electric industry executive who is caught fixing prices, he blandly explains to a congressional committee that he didn't do anything really criminal: He just violated a law that was inconvenient to his business.

OKAY BY HIM

If his favorite TV quiz shows turn out to be rigged, he doesn't get sore at the well-prompted "geniuses" who played him for a sucker. After all, he asks, who wouldn't lie for $64,000?

He does have a code of sexual morality—in fact, two of them. One, which he expects his wife and children to follow, is based on Biblical teachings. It forbids sexual relations outside of marriage, with no ifs, ands or buts.

The other, which he privately regards as the only suitable rule for a robust man like himself, is borrowed from romantic movies and novels. It holds that marital infidelity is excusable if it results from a mutual, if fleeting, passion sanctified by the name of "love."

Don't get the moral relativist wrong. He doesn't want to repeal the Ten Commandments. He thinks they are a great guide to conduct, especially for the other fellow, and provided, of course, that you don't carry them too far.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Easter Is Theme Of Flower Display

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Winnsboro Garden Club, one of the oldest garden clubs of Louisiana, brought the T.V. and Garden Center show last week. Their new president is Mrs. Sam Carriere.

The Easter theme prevailed in the lovely arrangements which were made by three of the members of this club. Mrs. Guy Kincaid, one of the members, also an accredited flower show judge of Louisiana Fifth District commented on the arrangements after they had been judged by Mrs. K. R. Young, an accredited flower show judge of Monroe.

Mrs. Kincaid remarked on her program that it was really worth all their efforts to bring the arrangements since each one merited a blue ribbon score. If you saw the show you can well see why they did — they were all just lovely in every detail.

HALF OVAL

The first arrangement described on the program by Mrs. Kincaid was made by Mrs. Phil Duncan. She created a half oval design by using a spiral of iris leaves placed in a natural fan shape in the left hand side of a low white ceramic bowl. On the right side she placed three large magnolia leaves which gave the necessary weight and balance to this line. The focal interest was achieved by the placement of one large snowball (viburnum) blossom. The edge of the container was softened by the placement of small ivy leaves. Very lovely for the framing of the mirror over the mantel of hall table during the Easter season.

Mrs. C. R. Adams Sr. made the next arrangement using the lovely light into deep purple Dutch Iris for her massed diagonal line made in a large urn type compote container on a footed base of the same material. As a filler around the focal area she used golden Dutch iris and the bearded iris in shades of gold into bronze.

For interest she added two large artificial Easter eggs, one gold and one light green in color. Ivy leaves were used as a filler around the focal area at the base of the design. She remarked that she had made this for her hall table to greet the visitors for the Easter Holidays ahead. This type arrangement would also be lovely for the dining room buffet.

VERTICAL DESIGN

Mrs. Kincaid brought an arrangement which she said was her Easter motif. Her vertical design was made by the placement of one Easter lily stalk which contained two buds. This first line was placed in a large white ceramic compote container. A large white ceramic madonna figurine was placed within this line as the center of interest. Three open Easter lilies were placed at her feet. For filler she used the foliage and young Easter lily stalks on each side of the madonna. To cover the needlepoint holder she used several small calla lily leaves.

This lovely design made such a serene and peaceful picture. It could be used any place in the home to create a prayerful atmosphere. It is ideal for the church vestibule or library, so appropriate for the Easter season now at hand.

For extra attraction in the show Mrs. Kincaid brought a clever Easter egg tree, one that all the kiddies could enjoy making for their room at home as well as school.

Brownie Troop 5, of Winnsboro made it by first puncturing a hole in the eggs and blowing out the contents. These empty shells were painted with designs (typical Easter egg designs), then, taped on the bare green painted branches of tree to resemble a small tree. This tree was placed in a flower pot filled with sand.

Rocks were used around the base to make it more stable and add weight. The Brownies had made this Easter decoration for the library in Winnsboro. Their leader, Mrs. Sonny Stephens, is very proud of them and, I am sure the whole town is proud of them. We are glad that they shared their idea with us.

Thanks, so much, for this beautiful show — Winnsboro Garden Club.

This week, watch for Lafayette Ruffin from Ruston Tech, who will bring flower arranging to you. We always look forward to his programs.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A letter from a photo fan in far-off Sweden asks hopefully: "When will Polaroid color film be available?"

This exciting prospect, eagerly awaited by American camera fans as well, is pushed aside once again in the company's recent annual report — into the indefinite future. The color film has been perfected, demonstrated and put through pilot production runs. But there are other subtle phases of mass color preferences to be determined before the 10 years' work can come to a conclusion.

"We must choose the moment of introduction," concluded Dr. Edwin Land, inventor of the Polaroid camera and president of the company, "with a clear sense that this is not just the launching of the initiation of the next revolution in picture - taking."

To divert attention momentarily from the revolution - to - be, the company has introduced a multi - purpose industrial view camera, the MP-3. This is a camera mounted on an aluminum post with a wooden baseboard and attached reflector flood lamps, with an unusual number of applications.

The camera can photograph small objects directly in print, negative or slide format. This is particularly useful for medical or gross specimen photography in hospitals. It is also a copy camera reproducing photographs of any size or format from the easel below, or, by pivoting the camera head, it can copy large size charts, maps, blueprints or murals on a wall. It can also copy X-rays or be adapted to photo-micrography and macro-photography. It makes direct lantern slides ready to project 90 seconds after you snap the picture or slides in 2¼ x 2¼ and 35 mm format.

The camera has an adjustable hooded reflex viewer which shows the picture image right side up on the ground glass as it will appear on a print, negative or slide. For instant photography, it accepts the Polaroid roll film (3¼ x 4¼) and 4 x 5 backs. For conventional films in either black and white or color, it also accepts regular 4 x 5 film backs.

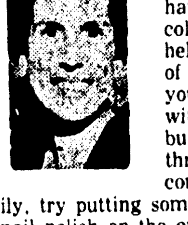
SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

This week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner is Miss Judy Harms, Cedar Falls, Iowa, with this idea.

NAIL POLISH FINDS ITS WAY INTO THE SEWING BASKET:



"I am a home economics major and have found your column very helpful and full of new ideas. If you have trouble with metallic buttons cutting threads and coming off easily, try putting some clear fingernail polish on the eyes of the buttons before sewing them on. The polish makes the edges smoother and less likely to cut the threads."

Another reader suggests that when using velvet or grosgrain ribbon as trims for children's dresses or ladies' hats, immediately after cutting the ribbons, paint the cut edges with colorless nail polish. This will keep the ribbon from fraying and it will look new much longer.

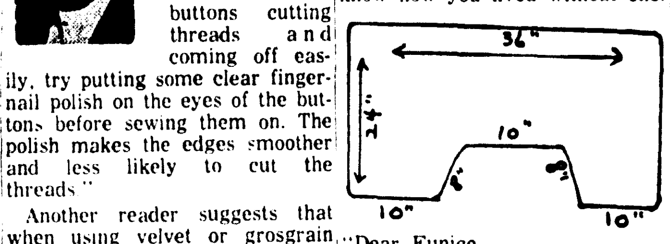
LAP BOARD

Many thanks to all of you who wrote me that you are making the lap board I told you about several weeks ago. Is my face red about the error in dimensions! But your understanding letters were welcome because now I know how carefully you read the column and feel I have made some new friends.

The lap board is made of masonite and is approximately 36 inches long and 24 inches deep. The area that is cut out to fit around your body is approximately as follows: 10 inches wide at each side at the lower edge. Now measure up 8 inches and this center measurement should also be 10 inches wide. This means that there will be a slope of 3 inches each side of the center.

Be sure to round the corners and the center area. If you wish, you may cover one side with felt. The felt should be cut about one and a half inches larger than the finished board. Clip all inner curves and notch out the excess felt from the outer curves. Glue several spots throughout the board and then the raw edges. These will lay nicely over to the back of the board. The felt will keep your garment from slipping when working on it.

Another of our readers says the lap board is the handiest thing since "plastics" and she suggested an added help: Pasting a tape measure on one side of the board for handy measuring. If you make a lap board, you'll never know how you lived without one.



"Dear Eunice,

"Your name is a 'household word' in our family, seems that every time I am about to write and ask you a question, you answer it — it's uncanny. My husband thinks he deserves the 'spot light' for the following suggestion.

"On a fishing trip with the boys, he had to replace a button on his jacket. Since no thread was available, he used a very fine fishing line. The button hasn't come off yet and the jacket is almost worn out. Perhaps other people would like to know what to use on children's jackets and any garment that receives rough handling."

MAKE TIE BELT

"Dear Eunice,

"I would like to make some roping for a 'tie belt' but can't seem to find any cording heavy enough at our stores. Have you any suggestions?"

Mrs. K. M.

Dear Mrs. K. M.:

If you can't find cording in the notion department of department stores or dime stores, you might try the drapery department. They usually have a variety of sizes of cording for use in slip covers etc.

"Dear Eunice,

"I do a great deal of sewing for myself and 4 girls, but can't see my way clear to buy a new sewing machine. The one I am using is so old I can't get a 'zipper foot' for it. Is this necessary to put in a zipper correctly and also for making cordings for their dresses?"

Mrs. M. E. T.

Dear Mrs. M. E. T.:

Yes, a zipper or cording foot is necessary to put in a zipper nicely. It is also required to make a nice cording because it is impossible to stitch close enough to the cord with a regular presser foot.

If you can obtain an "extra foot" that fits your old sewing machine, (they are usually available), have your husband file away the little side of the foot that extends on the right side of the machine needle. You will now have the larger half of the foot —which actually is the same as a zipper or cording foot. Sometimes necessity is the "mother of invention."

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

If you would like a copy of the leaflet for spaghetti straps, tie belts and Chinese ball buttons, send 10 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

Leaf Miners Attack Holly

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Owners of the fine named varieties of American holly are irritated by the leaf miners that disfigure the foliage of this kind of holly. If your trees have been marked up by these tiny black flies, now is the time to take vengeance on them.

Hollies drop their old leaves in spring as they put out new growth, and, just as the old foliage drops, the holly leaf miners emerge from their ugly little tunnels and fly about as tiny black flies.

SPRAY

A spray of two tablespoonfuls of 50 per cent wettable DDT is recommended. Some kind of miticide like aramate or ovotron should be added to the DDT spray, however, because DDT seems to increase southern red mites on hollies.

The object is to kill the tiny flies before they can lay eggs in the leaves. The flies usually fly about puncturing holes in the tender new leaves for some time before actually depositing eggs in these punctures, and cold weather holds them back so some have tiny pin - prick punctures, that may not already have eggs in them.

A second spraying should take place a week or 10 days after the first. In case you have waited too late to kill the flies of holly-leaf miners, it is possible to still kill the miners with a very poisonous kind of spray. Some gardeners seem to use these sprays with the greatest ease, but your columnist confesses to being chicken - hearted about such things. Dieldren is the spray recommended for destroying miners in the leaves, but be sure to wear gloves and follow the directions for using this poison with the greatest of care.

SAME STRENGTH

The DDT spray recommended for holly - leaf miners is the same strength recommended for the box - leaf miner, a pest which also makes tunnels through leaves. Like the holly-leaf miner, this box - leaf post can be controlled most effectively by spraying just as the miners emerge from the leaf surfaces.

The little yellow maggots with black heads wriggle out through tiny blisters on the foliage. You can see them easily and spray them right them. Since they keep coming out for a week or 10 days, two sprayings a week apart are necessary. When you do not get them as they emerge, try using a lindane spray in early summer.

Both box - leaf and holly-leaf miners seem to be recidedly worse in some years than in others. This is probably owing to the weather at the time of emergence from the old foliage.

Lawns Need Fertilizers

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. or Mr. Gardener, want to get your lawn off to a good start after this hard winter, better get out the fertilizer. Use one pound of actual nitrogen, one pound of phosphorus and one pound of potassium per 1,000 square feet. In other words use a complete fertilizer.

Be sure to apply fertilizer when the grass is dry, and water immediately after to wash the fertilizer off the leaves and prevent burning. If you have just sprigged your lawn with St. Augustine, wait until the sprigs have taken root and started growing before fertilizing. The fertilizer will burn the grass.

If you have a place in your garden that needs some color, try coleus. This plant grows best in semi shade. There are shades of red to light pink green, white and brown.

BANANA PLANT

Another interesting plant for your garden is the banana plant. They are beginning to put out leaves now and you can find the roots without cutting and injuring them too much. This plant gives more bloom if left in the same place year after year. So if someone gives you a plant or has promised to give you one, now is a good time to get them and remember they may not have as many blooms the first year as you like, but be patient. Flower arrangers love to use the lavender flower, but the leaves are equally as pretty and useful in arrangements. If you have a great number of small leaf plants the large banana leaf will create interest in your garden, so try one.

HOBBY DAY

Our annual hobby day will be held Wednesday at 9:30 at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe. If you are interested in a hobby, I know you will want to come. Mrs. Carson will make bird cage flower containers out of coat hangers and will also show how to make wood fiber flowers.

Mrs. O. L. Fisher will demonstrate making liquid plastic flowers.

Mrs. Leon Sims will have some ideas for you, Mrs. Homemaker, to help with the handicraft work at Bible School next month.

Mrs. F. Mardis will make the pajama pillow.

Mrs. J. C. Tolbird will show you how to make a French poodle using wool yarn.

Mrs. S. C. Matthews will make plaques and some other interesting small articles.

Mrs. E. E. White will make a decorator's pillow. So you see there's something for each of you so come to the Agricultural Building Wednesday.

DRESS REVUE

Home Demonstration Club members get your garments ready for the dress revue Saturday, May 5th. There will be awards for the best adult dresses, boys suits, (1-6); girls dresses 1-6; girls dresses 6-12 and girls 13 and above. The garments must be in the office on Wednesday, May 6th by 4:30. Be sure your Home Demonstration Club is represented in the revue.

The feminine group of the family will be dressed in all the glory of spring today for the Easter parade. All colors will be seen, but there are some favorites for milady — white, off white, pale beige and firm favorites. But gray, in light shades, is making a big comeback this season. Sherbert pinks, iced melons and shades of coral through apricot and peach, citrus shades of lemons and limes, powdered blues and sea green blues are in keeping with the new feminine trend. Clear bright colors, are not quite so vivid as last season. Many reds tend toward orange. Regardless of the color chosen, the feminine members will make the Easter parade colorful as well as beautiful.

ROASTING BEEF

Modern methods of roasting are based on the results of intensive studies and it has been found that the temperature of the oven is an important factor in getting the best results. So if you, Mrs. Homemaker, want a good roast be sure to use moderately low temperature 300-350 degrees F. A high oven causes excessive shrinkage and uneven cooking, charring, shrunken fibers and decreased juiceness. The old idea of searing to keep in juices has been discarded in the light of present knowledge. Searing only develops aroma and flavor in the outside slices and a browner color. The flavor of the interior slices is not improved by searing. The practice of basting is not necessary. The roast should be placed in the pan with the fat side up, then as the meat cooks the fat will melt over and into the roast, thus doing the basting.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Easter Is Theme Of Flower Display

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Winnsboro Garden Club, one of the oldest garden clubs of Louisiana, brought the T.V. and Garden Center show last week. Their new president is Mrs. Sam Carriere.

The Easter theme prevailed in the lovely arrangements which were made by three of the members of this club. Mrs. Guy Kincaid, one of the members, also an accredited flower show judge of Louisiana Fifth District commented on the arrangements after they had been judged by Mrs. K. R. Young, an accredited flower show judge of Monroe.

Mrs. Kincaid remarked on her program that it was really worth all their efforts to bring the arrangements since each one merited a blue ribbon score. If you saw the show you can well see why they did — they were all just lovely in every detail.

HALF OVAL

The first arrangement described on the program by Mrs. Kincaid was made by Mrs. Phil Duncan. She created a half oval design by using a spiral of iris leaves placed in a natural fan shape in the left hand side of a low white ceramic bowl. On the right side she placed three large magnolia leaves which gave the necessary weight and balance to this line. The focal interest was achieved by the placement of one large snowball (viburnum) blossom. The edge of the container was softened by the placement of small ivy leaves. Very lovely for the framing of the mirror over the mantel of hall table during the Easter season.

Mrs. C. R. Adams Sr. made the next arrangement using the lovely light into deep purple Dutch Iris for her massed diagonal line made in a large urn type compote container on a footed base of the same material. As a filler around the focal area she used golden Dutch iris and the bearded iris in shades of gold into bronze.

For interest she added two large artificial Easter eggs, one gold and one light green in color. Ivy leaves were used as a filler around the focal area at the base of the design. She remarked that she had made this for her hall table to greet the visitors for the Easter Holidays ahead. This type arrangement would also be lovely for the dining room buffet.

VERTICAL DESIGN

Mrs. Kincaid brought an arrangement which she said was her Easter motif. Her vertical design was made by the placement of one Easter lily stalk which contained two buds. This first line was placed in a large white ceramic compote container. A large white ceramic madonna figurine was placed within this line as the center of interest. Three open Easter lilies were placed at her feet. For filler she used the foliage and young Easter lily stalks on each side of the madonna. To cover the needlepoint holder she used several small calla lily leaves.

This lovely design made such a serene and peaceful picture. It could be used any place in the home to create a prayerful atmosphere. It is ideal for the church vestibule or library, so appropriate for the Easter season now at hand.

For extra attraction in the show Mrs. Kincaid brought a clever Easter egg tree, one that all the kiddies could enjoy making for their room at home as well as school.

Brownie Troop 5, of Winnsboro made it by first puncturing a hole in the eggs and blowing out the contents. These empty shells were painted with designs (typical Easter egg designs), then, taped on the bare green painted branches of tree to resemble a small tree. This tree was placed in a flower pot filled with sand.

Rocks were used around the base to make it more stable and add weight. The Brownies had made this Easter decoration for the library in Winnsboro. Their leader, Mrs. Sonny Stephens, is very proud of them and, I am sure the whole town is proud of them. We are glad that they shared their idea with us.

Thanks, so much, for this beautiful show — Winnsboro Garden Club.

This week, watch for Lafayette Ruffin from Ruston Tech, who will bring flower arranging to you. We always look forward to his programs.

Stamp News

A beautifully designed set of five new semi-postals has just been issued by the Netherlands. The additional values on these stamps will go for the benefit of the Netherlands National Health Institutions, social welfare work and various cultural groups. The stamps will help promote the International Congress of Museum Experts to be held in that country July 4-11.

The 4 cents plus 4 green depicts a Roman sculpture. The 6 cents plus 4 gray shows a fossil. The 8 cents plus 4 violet illustrates a pendulum clock. The 12 cents plus 8 bronze features a stone head. The 30 cents plus 10 indigo shows a painting by Frans Hals entitled "Repast of the Officers of St. Jorisdoelen."

The designer of the stamps is Cor van Weele of Amsterdam.

Many readers of this column have written to inquire how to obtain first - day covers of new United States stamps. They will be glad to know that a 15-page booklet entitled "Guide for the Selection of United States Commemorative Postage Stamps" is now available from the Post Office Department.

The pamphlet tells the procedures to be followed and outlines the standards adopted by the 11-member Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee governing their issuance.

Copies of this guide may be obtained free of charge by writing to the Special Assistant to the Postmaster General, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D.C.

Tunisia is the latest nation to issue a set of stamps on the theme of malaria eradication, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. There are three designs, each showing the destruction of the dread insect. The 20 mil value depicts a mosquito caught in a net. The 30 mil features a rider on horseback spearing a mosquito. The 40 mil shows an enlarged closeup of a pair of hands clenching and destroying the disease carrier.

Ethiopia reports that the following issues will be released this year: five values showing Ethiopian birds, a collective security issue picturing U. N. Congo Troops, 10th Anniversary of the Federation and Ethiopian New Year set, ancient Ethiopian Emperors dating from 7 B. C. to 1508 A.D.

Plans for a new multicolor printing press to be designed and constructed for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Post Office Department in Washington D. C. are now being discussed. Bids will be opened on April 30 and, after that, an extensive program of development and evaluation, utilizing the most modern engineering design principles. The new six-color press should be ready for production in 1964.

Ghana has announced it will issue three new stamps commemorating the first anniversary of the Casablanca Conference and simultaneously the fifth anniversary of Ghana's independence. A modernistic common design on a white background will be featured. The 3 pence regular mail is red and blue, 1 shilling 3 pence airmail red and yellow, 2 shilling 6 pence airmail black and yellow.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A letter from a photo fan in far-off Sweden asks hopefully: "When will Polaroid color film be available?"

This exciting prospect, eagerly awaited by American camera fans as well, is pushed aside once again in the company's recent annual report — into the indefinite future. The color film has been perfected, demonstrated and put through pilot production runs. But there are other subtle phases of mass color preferences to be determined before the 10 years' work can come to a conclusion.

"We must choose the moment of introduction," concluded Dr. Edwin Land, inventor of the Polaroid camera and president of the company, "with a clear sense that this is not just the launching of the initiation of the next revolution in picture - taking."

To divert attention momentarily from the revolution - to - be, the company has introduced a multi - purpose industrial view camera, the MP-3. This is a camera mounted on an aluminum post with a wooden baseboard and attached reflector flood lamps, with an unusual number of applications.

The camera can photograph small objects directly in print, negative or slide format. This is particularly useful for medical or gross specimen photography in hospitals. It is also a copy camera reproducing photographs of any size or format from the easel below, or, by pivoting the camera head, it can copy large size charts, maps, blueprints or murals on a wall. It can also copy X-rays or be adapted to photo-micrography and macro-photography. It makes direct lantern slides ready to project 90 seconds after you snap the picture or slides in 2¼ x 2¼ and 35 mm format.

The camera has an adjustable hooded reflex viewer which shows the picture image right side up on the ground glass as it will appear on a print, negative or slide. For instant photography, it accepts the Polaroid roll film (3¼ x 4¼) and 4 x 5 backs. For conventional films in either black and white or color, it also accepts regular 4 x 5 film backs.

NEW VARIETIES in the rudbeckia class are quite different in size and appearance. The one on the left is the Gloriosa daisy. The other is the Gold Flame. These may be used to give added variation to some flower garden assortments.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

This week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner is Miss Judy Harms, Cedar Falls, Iowa, with this idea.

NAIL POLISH FINDS ITS WAY INTO THE SEWING BASKET:

"I am a home economics major and have found your column very helpful and full of new ideas. If you have trouble with metallic buttons cutting threads and coming off easily, try putting some clear fingernail polish on the eyes of the buttons before sewing them on. The polish makes the edges smoother and less likely to cut the threads."

Another reader suggests that when using velvet or grosgrain ribbon as trims for children's dresses or ladies' hats, immediately after cutting the ribbons, paint the cut edges with colorless nail polish. This will keep the ribbon from fraying and it will look new much longer.

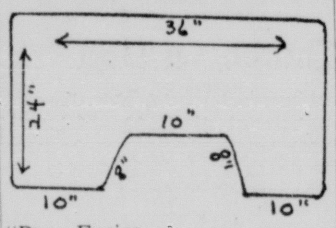
LAP BOARD

Many thanks to all of you who wrote me that you are making the lap board I told you about several weeks ago. Is my face red about the error in dimensions! But your understanding letters were welcome because now I know how carefully you read the column and feel I have made some new friends.

The lap board is made of masonite and is approximately 36 inches long and 24 inches deep. The area that is cut out to fit around your body is approximately as follows: 10 inches wide at each side at the lower edge. Now measure up 8 inches and this center measurement should also be 10 inches wide. This means that there will be a slope of 3 inches each side of the center.

Be sure to round the corners and the center area. If you wish, you may cover one side with felt. The felt should be cut about one and a half inches larger than the finished board. Clip all inner curves and notch out the excess felt from the outer curves. Glue several spots throughout the board and then the raw edges. These will lay nicely over to the back of the board. The felt will keep your garment from slipping when working on it.

Another of our readers says the lap board is the handiest thing since "plastics" and she suggested an added help: Pasting a tape measure on one side of the board for handy measuring. If you make a lap board, you'll never know how you lived without one.



"Dear Eunice,

"Your name is a 'household word' in our family, seems that every time I am about to write and ask you a question, you answer it — it's uncanny. My husband thinks he deserves the 'spot light' for the following suggestion.

"On a fishing trip with the boys, he had to replace a button on his jacket. Since no thread was available, he used a very fine fishing line. The button hasn't come off yet and the jacket is almost worn out. Perhaps other people would like to know what to use on children's jackets and any garment that receives rough handling."

MAKE TIE BELT

"Dear Eunice,

"I would like to make some roping for a 'tie belt' but can't seem to find any cording heavy enough at our stores. Have you any suggestions?"

Mrs. K. M.

Dear Mrs. K. M.:

If you can't find cording in the notion department of department stores or dime stores, you might try the drapery department. They usually have a variety of sizes of cording for use in slip covers etc.

"Dear Eunice,

"I do a great deal of sewing for myself and 4 girls, but can't see my way clear to buy a new sewing machine. The one I am using is so old I can't get a 'zipper foot' for it. Is this necessary to put in a zipper correctly and also for making cordings for their dresses?"

Mrs. M. E. T.

Dear Mrs. M. E. T.:

Yes, a zipper or cording foot is necessary to put in a zipper nicely. It is also required to make a nice cording because it is impossible to stitch close enough to the cord with a regular presser foot.

If you can obtain an "extra foot" that fits your old sewing machine, (they are usually available), have your husband file away the little side of the foot that extends on the right side of the machine needle. You will now have the larger half of the foot —which actually is the same as a zipper or cording foot. Sometimes necessity is the "mother of invention."

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

If you would like a copy of the leaflet for spaghetti straps, tie belts and Chinese ball buttons, send 10 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

Leaf Miners Attack Holly

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Owners of the fine named varieties of American holly are irritated by the leaf miners that disfigure the foliage of this kind of holly. If your trees have been marked up by these tiny black flies, now is the time to take vengeance on them.

BEAUTIFUL DIVERSION surprises Tom Tryon, as Astronaut Richmond Talbot, in the form of a girl from outer space, Dany Saval, aboard his moon-bound space ship in Walt Disney's hilarious Technicolor comedy "Moon Pilot," coming Wednesday, May 2, to the Jim Theatre.

Curtain Call

"Speaking of Murder," has just enjoyed a successful run. It was an unusual murder mystery in that the audience knew who the culprit was during most of the play. Those of you who missed it, missed a very suspensive and entertaining presentation.

'Sweet Bird Of Youth' At Jim Theatre

One of Tennessee Williams' greatest hits,' "Sweet Bird of Youth," which ran on Broadway and on the road for more than two years, is brought to the screen by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer with four of its stars, Paul Newman, Geraldine Page, Rip Torn and Madeleine Sherwood, repeating their original stage roles.

"Sweet Bird of Youth" is now showing at the Jim Theatre.

The film's other principal characters are portrayed by Shirley Knight, Ed Begley and Mildred Dunnock.

Here is another absorbing drama to add to such Tennessee Williams successes as "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Suddenly Last Summer" and "Summer and Smoke." Once again this master storyteller of human relationships has created a fascinating plot in which love, hate, ambition, cruelty, hypocrisy and passion are motivating forces in the destinies of his protagonists.

PRINCIPALS

These are the principals of "Sweet Bird of Youth":

Chance Wayne, young, handsome, determined to win a Hollywood contract no matter at what price . . . Alexandra Del Lago, once famous motion picture star now on the way out and terrified of the future. . . . Heavenly Finley, who has never ceased to love the wandering Chance . . . Boss Finley, her father, an unscrupulous politician who mows down anyone standing in his way . . . Tom, his equally ruthless son . . . Miss Lucy, a girl who likes expensive presents and who talks her way into trouble . . . Aunt Nonnie, the only one who knows the real Chance.

When circumstances bring Chance back to his home town in the company of Alexandra Del Lago, the drama opens on a story of whiplashing intensity and emotional power which never lets up until its final shock climax.

DISTINGUISHED

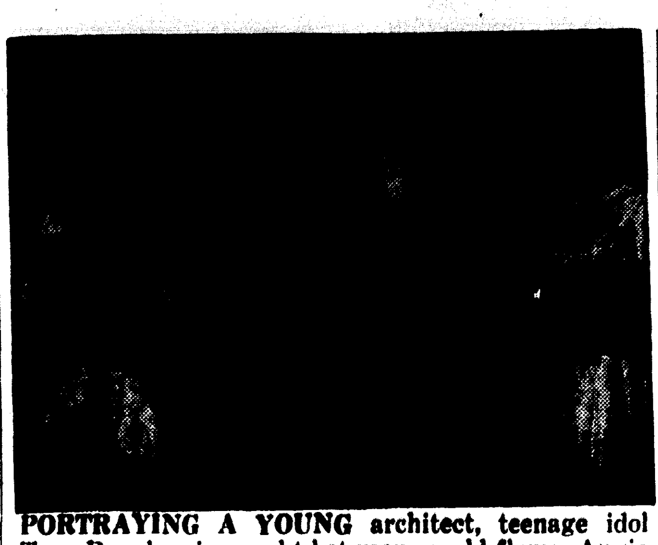
Everyone connected with this picture is distinguished. Richard Brooks, who directed it from his own screen play, won an Academy nomination for his direction of the earlier Tennessee Williams hit, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and subsequently won an Academy Award for "Elmer Gantry."

Pandro S. Berman, the producer, has given the screen many of its outstanding pictures, including "Butterfield 8" for which Elizabeth Taylor won an "Oscar."

DISTINGUISHED

Paul Newman preceded his role as Chance Wayne with brilliant performances in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Exodus" and "The Hustler." Geraldine Page scored a personal triumph in "Summer and Smoke," won an Academy nomination for her very first Hollywood picture, "Hondo," and was named "Best Actress of the Year" by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. Shirley Knight is another Acadmey Award nominee for "Dark at the Top of the Stairs." Ed Begley has created memorable roles on stage, screen and television and most recently won critical praise for his Broadway performance in "Advise and Consent." Rip Torn's most recent screen role was as Judas in "King of Kings." Mildred Dunnock previously appeared at MGM as Elizabeth Taylor's mother in "Butterfield 8" and Madeleine Sherwood also appeared with Miss Taylor as her spiteful sister - in - law in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

Filmed in CinemaScope and color, the screen version of "Sweet Bird of Youth" has a variety of backgrounds and settings which range from the Florida coastline to a small Southern town. Here scenes are played in the home of the political boss, in the leading hotel, at a church service and other locales and the town square where one of the film's highlight scenes takes place—a politicial rally which ends up in a terrorizing riot. One of the story's most unusual locales is a lighthouse which is the setting for a heartbreakingly moving love scene between Newman and Miss Knight.



PORTRAYING A YOUNG architect, teenage idol Troy Donahue is caught between an old flame, Angie Dickinson, and a new arrival, Suzanne Pleshette, in a scene from "Rome Adventure," Technicolor romantic drama opening today at the Paramount Theatre.

DELIGHTFUL DRAMA

'Rome Adventure' Now At Paramount

The determination of a beautiful young librarian to learn about love triggers the delightful romantic drama of "Rome Adventure," the Warner Bros. Technicolor presentation opening today at the Paramount Theatre. Troy Donahue, the teenagers' No. 1 box office favorite, stars opposite Suzanne Pleshette in the Delmer Daves production.

Angie Dickinson and Rossano Brazzi also stars in the film which was written, produced and directed by Daves. "Rome Adventure" is the fourth film in a row Daves has performed this triple assignment on.

The first was "A Summer Place," which brought Donahue to stardom, and it was followed by "Parrish" and "Susan Slade" which also starred Donahue.

ENCOUNTER

As the librarian, Miss Pleshette encounters Brazzi on board ship en route to Naples. Although they become good friends, she is drawn to the young American architect he introduces her to in Rome. Donahue, the architect, has been involved in an affair with a wealthy, beautiful and talented American artist, Angie Dickinson, but she has just left him. Soon, Troy and Suzanne set off on a colorful motor scooter tour of northern Italy.

The exteriors for these scenes were filmed in Italy during a six weeks' location jaunt that crisscrossed the country and ranged from modern wonders to ancient glories.

SCENIC SPLENDORS

Among the many scenic splendors Daves used to background his story are the funicular in Ortizie near the Swiss border, the post - card city of Stresa on Lake Maggiore and the Lake's Isola Bella, Carrara with its world - famous marble quarries, Florence and Michelangelo's David, Pisa with its Leaning Tower, Siena and its racing square, Verona and legendary Juliet's balcony, Bomarzo and its fascinating Villa of the Monsters, And, of course, Rome with its magnificent fountains, piazzas and ruins.

Upon their return to Rome, their fast - developing romance is suddenly complicated when Troy's former girl friend attempts to revive their affair and the disconsolate Suzanne turns to Brazzi.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Glad Voters Okayed Tax

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

I am very happy that the tax payers of Ouachita Parish have shown their approval of the Ouachita Parish Public Library System by going to the polls and voting the funds for its support for the next 10 years. I want to thank each one of you who voted and each one who helped remind voters to go to the polls. The number of you who voted for the continuation of library service was most heartening and I am happy that the funds are now available for the operating expenses of the Ouachita Parish Public Library for the next 10 years.

In spite of all the activities connected with the election, we were still able to get a number of new books out for you to read. Most of these new books are fiction and there are titles to appeal to every reader. Charles Mercer is the author of "The Reckoning," which probes into tortured world of the alcoholic. It has its setting in the economic world of Wall Street and presents a very penetrating picture of some phases of modern life. Those of you who read "The Waters of Kronos" by Conrad Richter, which won the National Book Award last year, will want to read Mr. Richter's latest book, "A Simple Honorable Man." This is the story of Harry Donner, who appeared as the father in the other book. It gives us a picture of a man of integrity engaged in the day-by-day activities of son, husband, father, friend and counseler in an age when home and family exerted moral conviction and social authority. This is a book which adds to the stature of Mr. Richter as a portrayer of life in American fiction.

"Ambassador Extraordinary" is the title of the new novel by Paul Hyde Bonner. It has its setting on the purely imaginary island of Antilla in the Caribbean. The American ambassador to this island has been appointed as a reward for party services and not because of any special fitness for the job. Scandal breaks out when he becomes involved with a former flamenco dancer, now the wife of one of the island's more important politicos. This is an interesting story and will find a ready audience among those who enjoyed "Island in the Sun" and "Plough the Sea". Helga Sandburg, the daughter of Carl Sandburg is the author of a new novel called "The Owl's Roost". The setting for this story is the duneland along Lake Michigan and the book is concerned with the people who form the summer colony. It is well written and will have an appeal for many readers.

Robert Traver, who made such an impression with "Anatomy of a Murder" has a new book. The title is "Hornstein's Boy." This is another story of a small town lawyer and will be read by Mr. Traver's devoted following. Lawrence Schoonover has written an entirely different type of new book from his usual historical novel. The title of this book is "Central Passage" and it's theme is survival after an atomic war. It presents a grim picture of what could happen and of the effort of two families to survive.

Readers of mystery stories will welcome three new titles. They are "Jade for a Lady" by M. C. Chaber, "Trial by Ambuse" by Leslie Ford and "Try Anything Once" by A. A. Fair, which is another name under which Erle Stanley Gardner writes. The facilities of the Ouachita Parish Public Library are free to the people of the parish and they are assured of continuation for the next ten year period.

Break-Through Seen For Kennedy Programs

By JACK BELL and EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders are aiming for a June break-through they believe will bring action on some major segments of President Kennedy's legislative program.

Acting Senate Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota summed up an optimistic review of administration prospects by saying Saturday that things will be really humming in June.

He predicted action by one or both houses in that month on medical care for the elderly, a higher education bill, Kennedy's international trade program and tax revision.

On the other hand, Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., forecast a legislative logjam unless Congress gets into high gear immediately after its Easter vacation ends.

Case said on a television program taped for New Jersey stations he fears "We're going to find ourselves at the end of the summer still in session and still with a workload ahead of us with action then being taken under pressure of everybody's desire to finish and not adequate consideration of the very important matters that we ought to deal with."

Kennedy's sweeping new trade program, intended to set up a duty-free partnership on many major products with the booming European Common Market, has been scheduled tentatively for House debate about two weeks after that body reconvenes, April 30.

This ambitious schedule is based on the expectation that Democratic—and some Republican—votes in the House Ways and Means Committee will overwhelm without undue delay opposition to the more controversial parts of the bill. The toughest is probably the concept of aid for individual businesses hurt by imports, in place of exclusive reliance on tariff relief for industries as a whole.

The committee had hoped for, but didn't achieve, completion of its first review of the bill before the Easter recess. But Democratic leaders, agreeing to a 10-day Easter vacation while the Senate remains in session, indicated they are not perturbed.

"We've got the votes; we may have to do some window dressing," one of them summed up the prospects for the trade bill.

The Senate will be tied up for the next two weeks or longer with debate over a proposal to substitute the requirement of a sixth-grade education for state literacy tests in voting.

Allowing for this, Humphrey said in an interview he expects the wheels to start turning in May and to grind out some results in June.

The Senate Finance Committee hopes to get the House-passed tax revision bill to the Senate by mid-June. If the trade bill isn't delayed in the House, the Finance Committee might send that measure to the Senate late in June.

The Ways and Means Committee, which has been operating at forced draft to dispose of a large proportion of Kennedy's legislative program, also has on its docket, for action sometime after it clears the trade bill Kennedy's plan for health care for the aged under Social Security.

Democratic leaders have been making increasingly optimistic forecasts about their chances of cracking this toughest of nuts in Kennedy's domestic basket. The problem is the Ways and Means Committee; if it approves, passage in the House is expected to follow. Lack of committee approval would not kill the bill, but make passage much more chancy.

One leader's summary of the outlook — "About four members are still in the twilight zone. If we can get them out on our side, we're in."

Humphrey said Kennedy wants a bill passed this year to handle the problem.

Humphrey said he has been told that a bill to provide aid to higher education soon may be sent to a Senate-House conference committee by the House Rules Committee, where it has been stalled. The Senate voted for scholarship grants for which the House did not provide.

Mississippi Solons Face Big Problems

By BEN MCCARTY

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature, wanting to go home but faced with a bundle of problems, could become hopelessly tangled this week over fniances and appropriations, reapportionment and penitentiary affairs.

Financial leaders said they have neared their goal of $27 million in new money to balance a $287 million budget, but face about 160 appropriations bills which could overshoot the proposed figure.

A special joint 15-man committee to study reapportionment of legislative seats and recommendations to both houses and begin deliberations amid conflicting forces. The majority of lawmakers don't want to redidstribute seats, but the U.S. Supreme Court says they must.

Lawmakers were buzzing after a report from a penitentiary investigating committee revealed conflict of authority, tensions and irregularities in Parchman operations.

Rep. Charlie Jacobs of Bolivar County, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Sen. Ellis Bodron of Vicksburg, chairman of the finance committee, have agreed that a House-passed tax bill will bring all but $1 million of the $27 million needed.

However, the agreement ends here.

Jacobs favors a ½ per cent sales tax increase that would put $9 million in the general fund and give $5 million to school teachers and $5 million to the state highway fund, a total new tax load of $19 million.

Bodron favors a ¼ per cent increase that would raise $10 million for the general fund and would earmark any money for special funds. This plan also would bring the additional $1 million needed in new money.

DIVIDEND PAYMENTS

Senate Bombarded On Tax Withholding Movement

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate is being bombarded by letter writers seeking to block the proposed income tax withholding on dividends and interest.

Several senators said Saturday they had received more concentrated mail on this issue in the last few days than on any other question during their careers at the Capitol.

The deluge coincided with committee hearings on the withholding provision of President Kennedy's tax revision bill.

The effect of the thousands of letters also is problematical. Most Senators who have commented so far appear to take the same position they held before the mail campaign began.

One Democratic senator said privately that his study of the letters convinced him they make the case stronger for withholding.

"Many of these people obviously don't know they are supposed to pay taxes on dividends and interest," he said. 'They think this is a new tax."

The President, in urging that the withholding plan be instituted, said taxes are at least $800 million a year are being evaded through nonreporting of dividend and interest income.

The withholding plan would bring in $650 million a year which is now lost, the Treasury estimates. The House accepted this argument and included the provision in the bill it passed last month. Withholding would be at the rate of 20 per cent.

This $650 million is the biggest revenue gainer in the tax revision bill and would offset half the loss from a business modernization incentive feature—a credit on new machinery and equipment.

Administration supporters in the Senate said the bill might die if the withholding section were removed since it would be badly out of balance on the revenue-losing side.

Republicans said they believed the great bulk of the letters attacking the plan were sincere protests from small savers and investors.

However, Sens. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., and Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., said they believed the mail flood resulted from an organized campaign.

Offices of several Democratic senators cited letters that stated they were being written by depositors in response to, a request from a bank or savings and loan association. A few were received scribbled on the back of the letter making the request from the financial institution.

In an effort to meet some of the complaints, the House wrote in a provision permitting a person who expects to have no tax liability for the year to be exempted from the withholding. This is intended to take care of retired persons with modest investment income.

Drive-In Hit By Blaze In West Monroe

A West Monroe business was partially damaged when a fire ignited in the ceiling of the building located on North Seventh Street.

West Monroe Fire Department trucks quickly brought the flames under control after being notified by the owner of the business, Louis Sanders of 105 Roberta Dr., West Monroe.

The fire damaged the ceiling of the Frostop Drive Inn at 2500 Cypress St., as one of the employees was frying some potatoes in the deep fat fryer.

Sanders said the employee, Miss Billie Smith of West Monroe, was frying potatoes when the hot grease popped up on the ceiling. She called him and by the time he arrived, a small blaze had already started in the ceiling. He notified the fire department.

However, firemen were able to confine it to the one small area above the fryers,, but the building was damaged by smoke and water. Firemen pulled part of the ceiling out ot make sure that the fire was not burning and spreading in the ceiling.

Sanders said that operations at the drive in will be closed down for a few days until repairs can be made.

Soviet Newsmen Given Interview With Gizenga

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Congolese authorities let a Soviet newsman visit imprisoned Antoine Gizenga Saturday to scotch Communist reports the leftist leader was dying or dead.

Guorgui Fediachine of the Soviet news agency Tass reported Gizenga is very much alive but much thinner than when he last saw him three months ago..

Fediachine said Gizenga complained bitterly that he was being held illegally and demanded the right to plead his case before the Congolese Parliament.

He quoted Gizenga as saying: "I am still a member of Parliament, and I have parliamentary immunity. I would like the chance to reply to accusations against me in Parliament, the Parliament to which I was elected by the people."

The political heir of the late Patrice Lumumba, Gizenga led a revolt in Oriental Province. No charge has been lodged against him and the government insists he is being held in protective custody. He was transferred to Bula Bemba, an island in the estuary of the Congo River, in February.

Bula Bemba is a narrow strip some two miles long. It consists largely of mangrove swamps.

Fediachine said Gizenga lives in a 9x15-fort room in a well-guarded two-story building. His meals are brought from a hotel on the mainland, and he usually eats in a glass-enclosed terrace. All windows in the building are covered with barbed wire.

Fediachine said Gizenga had a full beard, grown because "my guards will not give me a razor or scissors."

EXCOMMUNICATED

Worship Planned By Mrs. Gaillot

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A New Orleans woman excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church in a segregation dispute plans to follow the Mass on television "with my missal in my hand" on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. B. J. Gaillot Jr., excommunicated by Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel last Monday, said Saturday night she would not attend church on Easter Sunday. The excommunication order, issued because of her opposition to desegregation of parochial schools, said she could not share in the benefits of the Mass.

"They can take my church away from me," she said. "But they can't take me away from God."

She said her husband, 44, who has also asked the archbishop to be excommunicated, would take their two sons to Mass. Gaillot, a parts clerk, wrote Archbishop Rummel that he shared his wife's views on segregation and if she was excommunicated for her beliefs then he should be expelled too.

"I still consider myself a Catholic—a very good Catholic," Mrs. Gaillot, 41, said. "I plan to watch my mass on television every Sunday until they repent.

"I hope that they can see before God that they are wrong."

She expressed the "they" as those who had anything to do with her excommunication. Archbishop Rummel's excommunication edict also included political leader Leander H. Perez, Sr., and Jackson Ricau of the pro-segregation Citizens Council.

The order said they had hindered the archbishop's decision to open parochial schools to all Catholics, regardless of race, next fall. It added that they incited or provoked others to disobedience.

Perez said earlier he would attend Mass but did not define which of four or five neighborhood churches. Ricau had indicated he would attend Mass, claiming he had not been officially informed of his excommunication.

Drive-In Hit By Blaze In West Monroe

A West Monroe business was partially damaged when a fire ignited in the ceiling of the building located on North Seventh Street.

West Monroe Fire Department trucks quickly brought the flames under control after being notified by the owner of the business, Louis Sanders of 105 Roberta Dr., West Monroe.

The fire damaged the ceiling of the Frostop Drive Inn at 2500 Cypress St., as one of the employees was frying some potatoes in the deep fat fryer.

Sanders said the employee, Miss Billie Smith of West Monroe, was frying potatoes when the hot grease popped up on the ceiling. She called him and by the time he arrived, a small blaze had already started in the ceiling. He notified the fire department.

However, firemen were able to confine it to the one small area above the fryers,, but the building was damaged by smoke and water. Firemen pulled part of the ceiling out ot make sure that the fire was not burning and spreading in the ceiling.

Sanders said that operations at the drive in will be closed down for a few days until repairs can be made.

Soviet Newsmen Given Interview With Gizenga

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Congolese authorities let a Soviet newsman visit imprisoned Antoine Gizenga Saturday to scotch Communist reports the leftist leader was dying or dead.

Guorgui Fediachine of the Soviet news agency Tass reported Gizenga is very much alive but much thinner than when he last saw him three months ago..

Fediachine said Gizenga complained bitterly that he was being held illegally and demanded the right to plead his case before the Congolese Parliament.

He quoted Gizenga as saying: "I am still a member of Parliament, and I have parliamentary immunity. I would like the chance to reply to accusations against me in Parliament, the Parliament to which I was elected by the people."

The political heir of the late Patrice Lumumba, Gizenga led a revolt in Oriental Province. No charge has been lodged against him and the government insists he is being held in protective custody. He was transferred to Bula Bemba, an island in the estuary of the Congo River, in February.

Bula Bemba is a narrow strip some two miles long. It consists largely of mangrove swamps.

Fediachine said Gizenga lives in a 9x15-fort room in a well-guarded two-story building. His meals are brought from a hotel on the mainland, and he usually eats in a glass-enclosed terrace. All windows in the building are covered with barbed wire.

Fediachine said Gizenga had a full beard, grown because "my guards will not give me a razor or scissors."

EXCOMMUNICATED

Worship Planned By Mrs. Gaillot

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A New Orleans woman excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church in a segregation dispute plans to follow the Mass on television "with my missal in my hand" on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. B. J. Gaillot Jr., excommunicated by Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel last Monday, said Saturday night she would not attend church on Easter Sunday. The excommunication order, issued because of her opposition to desegregation of parochial schools, said she could not share in the benefits of the Mass.

"They can take my church away from me," she said. "But they can't take me away from God."

She said her husband, 44, who has also asked the archbishop to be excommunicated, would take their two sons to Mass. Gaillot, a parts clerk, wrote Archbishop Rummel that he shared his wife's views on segregation and if she was excommunicated for her beliefs then he should be expelled too.

"I still consider myself a Catholic—a very good Catholic," Mrs. Gaillot, 41, said. "I plan to watch my mass on television every Sunday until they repent.

"I hope that they can see before God that they are wrong."

She expressed the "they" as those who had anything to do with her excommunication. Archbishop Rummel's excommunication edict also included political leader Leander H. Perez, Sr., and Jackson Ricau of the pro-segregation Citizens Council.

The order said they had hindered the archbishop's decision to open parochial schools to all Catholics, regardless of race, next fall. It added that they incited or provoked others to disobedience.

Perez said earlier he would attend Mass but did not define which of four or five neighborhood churches. Ricau had indicated he would attend Mass, claiming he had not been officially informed of his excommunication.

DUE TO THE rapid growth and expansion of our organization we must hire another salesman!

THE MAN we are looking for must have a pleasing personality, he must be neat, he must be at least 24 years of age, he should have a good education, (Of course, we realize that education isn't everything but of our present sales force of 7 men, 3 are college graduates, 2 have 3 years of college, 1 man has 2 years of college and the other has 1 year of college, so you can see why we feel that we have an above average sales force.), but most of all, he must be ambitious—he wants to get started right now on a bigger job and a bigger paycheck.

WANT-AD WONDERS

Art Linkletter's Unusual Use Of Want Ads

While in college, Art found it difficult to arrange dates for himself. He then exercised his ingenuity and placed this ad in the college paper:

WANTED — By 6'1" blond, blue-eyed, basket ball-playing student, a girl, 17 to 20, height 5'5", attractive, good figure, superlative dancer, brown hair and dark eyes. There is opportunity for advancement for the right party. Box 711.

As a result of this ad, Art was able to arrange a date with a statuesque beauty who later used him as a model to paint in a study of anatomy.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Art Linkletter's Unusual Use Of Want Ads

While in college, Art found it difficult to arrange dates for himself. He then exercised his ingenuity and placed this ad in the college paper:

WANTED — By 6'1" blond, blue-eyed, basket ball-playing student, a girl, 17 to 20, height 5'5", attractive, good figure, superlative dancer, brown hair and dark eyes. There is opportunity for advancement for the right party. Box 711.

As a result of this ad, Art was able to arrange a date with a statuesque beauty who later used him as a model to paint in a study of anatomy.

Pope John Invokes Easter Blessings

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII invoked heaven's blessing to all men without exception Saturday as Christians throughout the world prepared to commemorate the Easter Sunday resurrection of Christ.

The supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic Church, in his fourth Easter message to the world, repeated the words of the risen Christ: "Peace be to you."

He spoke from his private library, before the microphones of the Vatican radio, hooked in with networks that brought his words to millions of people. Television also carried the Pope's words and image to millions more.

Pope John, clearly thinking again of Christian unity, devoted a major portion of his Easter address to the Ecumenical Council of the Roman Catholic Church to begin here Oct. 11.

"The opening of the council," said Pope John, "will be as a new Easter morning, brightened by the shining countenance and the sweet words of the risen Christ: 'Peace be to you.'

"It will be as a new Pentecost which will give renewed vigor to the apostolic and missionary enterprises of the Church, exercised to the full extent of her mandate and of her youthful zeal."

The council will be the first in nearly 100 years. It will bring to the Vatican members of the church's hierarchy from all parts of the world.

Representatives of other Christian faiths are also expected to attend as observers. The council is expected to give new, fresh impetus to the world movement for Christian unity.

In his address the pontiff said, "With what longing do we desire our invocation of heaven's blessing to reach out to all those who, though they own another allegiance, are enobled by the glorious sign of the cross of Christ; to reach out, indeed, to all men without exception, for all men bear upon them the seal of the image and likeness of God their creator and all are redeemed by Christ.

"May all of them be touched by the joy of this exultant news: The Lord is risen indeed and has appeared to Simon."

Pope John stressed the importance of the resurrection—the all-important mystery of Christianity.

"It is on account of the resurrection of Christ," said the Pope, "that the Gospel has been preached over the whole world by men who withstood the onslaughts of the forces of evil.

"Jesus Christ endured Calvary. He died, but He has risen again. With these truths in mind a Christian is able to meet the vicissitudes of this life: Pain and death, tragedy and misery can weigh heavily upon his shoulders, but they cannot break his spirit."

A few members of the Vatican curia sat about the pontiff as he read his message in his private library. This was the fourth Easter message of his reign and it was filled with emotion.

"Even today," he said, "it is still Christ who shows the human race the true way that leads to a life of truth and justice."

Concluding his message, the Pope said:

"In this solemn moment of deep emotion, which is felt in every corner of the world, we are happy to renew our greetings and to join to them the strong help of the apostolic benediction as a sign of fatherly affection, of heavenly grace and of true consolation."

The final solemn ceremonies of Lent were observed here and in many of Rome's nearly 500 churches. A final tenebrae or darkness service was observed in St. Peter's basilica, recalling the darkness of the earth when Christ died.

In general, there was a feeling of the joyous celebration of the resurrection of Christ. Hundreds of thousands of pilgrims and tourists at the Vatican and in Rome visited many of the churches. Thousands were on hand for Easter midnight services, when, for the first time since Holy Thursday, the church bells ring out in sign of the risen Christ.

After praying in the loneliness of his room at midnight, Pope John will celebrate Mass Easter Sunday in St. Peter's basilica for about 50,000 people—all who can get into the world's biggest church. Thousands more will gather in the great open square.

Indian Reds Open Meet At New Delhi

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Communist party of India opens a meeting here Sunday that could decide whether Indian Communists look to Moscow or Peiping for leadership.

A struggle for supremacy is expected between two factions. One is the relatively moderate group, aligned with Moscow, that appears content for the time being to work through India's parliamentary system. A pro-Chinese group is inclined toward the tougher approach of fighting Prime Minister Nehru's government with strikes and even violence.

The party struggle will begin in an Executive Committee meeting and move Monday into a six-day meeting of the party's National Council. The result could be compromise.

Main business on the agenda is selection of a general secretary to succeed Ajoy Ghosh, a middle-of-the-road leader who died in January. Choice of his successor was delayed by the parliamentary elections in February and by intense maneuvering within the party since then.

In the February elections, the pro-Chinese faction of the party improved its position in its Calcutta stronghold. The group aligned with Moscow lost heavily in the Bombay area, its home territory, and its leader, S. A. Dange, failed to win re-election to Parliament.

Four Killed In Tennessee Auto Collision

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (UPI) —Three cars collided on a hilltop just west of here early Saturday, killing four persons and injuring seven in the second multiple-fatality accident in Tennessee in 24 hours.

Three of the victims were burned to death when their car burst into flames after the impact. Fire Departments from Johnson City and Elizabethton could not answer a call for help because of local laws restricting them to operations within their respective city limits. A fire truck from Jonesoboro finally put out the flames.

The fourth victim was Mrs. Bruce Carter, 27, of Elizabethton. She was returning from treatment for a heart ailment at a Johnson City hospital.

Barbara Lewis, 19, Herman Pierce, 17, and Robert Carl Bowers, 35, were trapped in the burning car and killed.

Four airmen from Ft. Bragg, N.C., told police the car driven by Miss Lewis swerved into the wrong lane at the Rio Vista hill about two miles west of here and collided with the car in which Mrs. Carter was riding. The airmen's car slammed into the wreckage, and three of them were hurt badly enough to require hospitalization.

Mrs. Florence McQueen, 41, of Elizabethton, Mrs. Carter's sister was reported in critical condition at Carter Memorial Hospital with multiple injuries. Her 13-year-old son, Wayne, also was hurt.

Just about 24 hours earlier, four teen-aged Memphis youths were killed north of Memphis when their car hit a heavy truck.

Barnett Heads State Delegates

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)— Gov. Ross Barnett will head a Mississippi delegation which will attend the "War in the West" conference here June 15-16.

The conference will be sponsored by the Iowa Civil War Centennial Commission, Mrs. Edith McElroy executive secretary said Saturday.

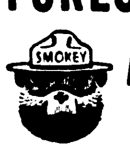
A group of 16 Iowa Centennial Commission members attended the commemoration of the Battle of Vicksburg in Mississippi in April 1961.

Members of the Mississippi Commission on the War Between The States will make up the delegation.

MISSING IN SLIDE

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)— An avalanche buried a parked car in the Grossvenediger range of the Austrian Alps Saturday and two Austrian soldiers believed to have been in the car could not be found.

FOREST FIRES AND YOU!



Did you ever wonder about forest fires and why Smokey Bear tries to keep them down? SMOKEY says that every forest fire costs too much. Just putting out last year's fires cost more than $100,000,000, and it came right out of your pocket.

What else did you lose?

You lost timber, millions of feet of it—timber that won't be there when you want to build your new home or put up a summer cabin.

You lost birds, animals, and fish, that add so much to your outings.

You lost priceless scenery, and recreation areas that are needed now more than ever.

Worst of all, you lost soil and water—the lifeblood of our land. Burn off the cover of a watershed, and the sure result is soil erosion, and destructive runoff of water, flooding our towns, silting our reservoirs. Water—most precious of all resources—wasted through carelessness!

There's much at stake. So, please, be extra careful with fire in 1962!

Remember- only YOU can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

Bragg, N.C., told police the car driven by Miss Lewis swerved into the wrong lane at the Rio Vista hill about two miles west of here and collided with the car in which Mrs. Carter was riding. The airmen's car slammed into the wreckage, and three of them were hurt badly enough to require hospitalization.

Mrs. Florence McQueen, 41, of Elizabethton, Mrs. Carter's sister was reported in critical condition at Carter Memorial Hospital with multiple injuries. Her 13-year-old son, Wayne, also was hurt.

Just about 24 hours earlier, four teen-aged Memphis youths were killed north of Memphis when their car hit a heavy truck.

Barnett Heads State Delegates

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—Gov. Ross Barnett will head a Mississippi delegation which will attend the "War in the West" conference here June 15-16.

The conference will be sponsored by the Iowa Civil War Centennial Commission, Mrs. Edith McElroy executive secretary said Saturday.

A group of 16 Iowa Centennial Commission members attended the commemoration of the Battle of Vicksburg in Mississippi in April 1961.

Members of the Mississippi Commission on the War Between The States will make up the delegation.

MISSING IN SLIDE

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)— An avalanche buried a parked car in the Grossvenediger range of the Austrian Alps Saturday and two Austrian soldiers believed to have been in the car could not be found.

FOREST FIRES AND YOU!

Did you ever wonder about forest fires and why Smokey Bear tries to keep them down? SMOKEY says that every forest fire costs too much. Just putting out last year's fires cost more than $100,000,000, and it came right out of your pocket.

What else did you lose?

You lost timber, millions of feet of it—timber that won't be there when you want to build your new home or put up a summer cabin.

You lost birds, animals, and fish, that add so much to your outings.

You lost priceless scenery, and recreation areas that are needed now more than ever.

Worst of all, you lost soil and water—the lifeblood of our land. Burn off the cover of a watershed, and the sure result is soil erosion, and destructive runoff of water, flooding our towns, silting our reservoirs. Water—most precious of all resources—wasted through carelessness!

There's much at stake. So, please, be extra careful with fire in 1962!

Remember- only YOU can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

"Come not between the dragon and his wrath." Shakespeare. Oh, sure! But what can you do when some slob sets fire to a dragon's tail, and you can't run?
From the blast we heard over the radio, they really must have dropped a gigantic H-bomb into the crater of the island!
Of course, they believed you still were hiding on the island. They meant to make sure this time to destroy you!
But they never believed their radio-man's report of a monster! They thought there were hundreds of their own people still on the island!
To them what is life worth? ...Other lives than their own lives, that is Tens of millions of human beings butchered, to win the power to enslave all people! It's all on the record of history!
So what are a few hundred of their own, spent to win a point, or to hide a failure?
To deal with them is like hoping to reason with that monster they 'roused from the depths of the ancient crater!
Hm!... Wonder what new monster this latest bomb of theirs will turn loose!
Well, Annie's got a ringside seat to report on that one, "Daddy"!
Th' planes we saw streakin' for th' island... then a big boom way back there... remember?
Then a big, big mushroom cloud over where th' island was! They dropped an H-bomb on it; had t'be that!
But that? That's no mushroom cloud!
That's a volcano!
Well, they sure started somethin' this time! Look at 'er go!
Hey! A volcano? That means a tidal wave a hunnert feet high! An' us in this thing!
Quick! Drop th' sails! Cut 'em free! Batten th' for'd hatch! Not a chance o' livin' through this, but we sure can give it a try!

President Wilson changes the clock in his White House office, Mar. 31, 1918, as daylight saving goes into effect....
No, Mr. President.... You're supposed to put it back an hour, aren't you?
That's not right, is it? I think it's supposed to be set an hour ahead... isn't that it?
Well, where does the hour go that we save? Do we get up an hour earlier or an hour later?
I'm not sure, but I think we gained an hour... I'm goin' back to bed!!
